

The book cover features a stylized, monochromatic illustration in shades of brown and tan. A large, white-outlined circle, resembling a globe or a celestial sphere, is centered on the page. Inside this circle, a dark, jagged shape represents a landmass. A vertical line with a small, stylized evergreen tree at the top passes through the center of the circle. The background is divided into two main sections: the upper section shows a city skyline with several tall buildings, including one that resembles the Empire State Building; the lower section shows a desert landscape with saguaro cacti and a winding path. The title "A NEW GEOGRAPHY OF POETS" is written in a bold, sans-serif font across the center of the circle.
