General Lewis B. Hershey and Conscientious Objection during World War II Nicholas A. Krehbiel, 2012-11-01 During World War II the United States drafted 10 1 million men to serve in the military Of that number 52 000 were conscientious objectors and 12 000 objected to noncombatant military service Those 12 000 men served the country in Civilian Public Service the program initiated by General Lewis Blaine Hershey the director of Selective Service from 1941 to 1970 Despite his success with this program much of Hershey's work on behalf of conscientious objectors has been overlooked due to his later role in the draft during the Vietnam War Seeking to correct these omissions in history Nicholas A Krehbiel provides the most comprehensive and well rounded examination to date of General Hershey's work as the developer and protector of alternative service programs for conscientious objectors Hershey whose Selective Service career spanned three major wars and six presidential administrations came from a background with a tolerance for pacifism He served in the National Guard and later served in both World War I and the interwar army A lifelong military professional he believed in the concept of the citizen soldier the civilian who responded to the duty of service when called upon Yet embedded in that idea was his intrinsic belief in the American right to religious freedom and his notion that religious minorities must be protected What to do with conscientious objectors has puzzled the United States throughout its history and prior to World War II there was no unified system for conscientious objectors. The Selective Service Act of 1917 only allowed conscientious objection from specific peace sects and it had no provisions for public service. In action, this translated to poor treatment of conscientious objectors in military prisons and camps during World War I. In response to demands by the Historic Peace Churches, the Brethren, Mennonites, and the Society of Friends, and other pacifist groups, the government altered language in the Selective Service Act of 1940, stating that conscientious objectors should be assigned to noncombatant service in the military, but if opposed to that, would be assigned to work of national importance under civilian direction. Under the direction of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and with the cooperation of the Historic Peace Churches, Hershey helped to develop Civilian Public Service in 1941, a program that placed conscientious objectors in soil conservation and forestry work camps, with the option of moving into detached services as farm laborers, scientific test subjects, and caregivers, janitors, and cooks at mental hospitals. Although the Civilian Public Service program only lasted until 1947, alternative service was required for all conscientious objectors until the end of the draft in 1973. Krehbiel delves into the issues of minority rights versus mandatory military service and presents General Hershey's pivotal role in the history of conscientious objection and conscription in American history. Archival research from both Historic Peace Churches and the Selective Service makes General Lewis B. Hershey and Conscientious Objection during World War II the definitive book on this subject. America, History and Life, 1993. Article abstracts and citations of reviews and dissertations covering the United States and Canada. Yearbook of German-American Studies, 2000. Fides Et Historia, 1993. The CPS Story Albert N. Keim, 1990. The time was World War II. The U.S. government had not devised a way to deal with the thousands who, for reasons of conscience, would refuse to fight. Eager to avoid a repeat of the harsh treatment their young men had experienced during World War I, the Historic Peace Churches, Quakers, Mennonites, Amish, and Brethren fashioned a program acceptable to their peace convictions and the highly militarized U.S. government. It is an earthy story full of personal struggle, government red tape, humor, and loss, an unusual experiment in church-state relations. Experiencias humanitarias en la Guerra de España Immaculada Colomina, 2024-03-14. El presente trabajo no solo nos muestra el lado más humano del conflicto de la Guerra Civil española sino que además nos sirve para comprender y enmarcar mejor las relaciones internacionales entre Estados Unidos y España durante la conflagración a través de la ayuda humanitaria del American Friends Service Committee. We Have Just Begun to Not Fight Heather T. Frazer, John O'Sullivan, 1996. Using the method of oral history, this work presents a sample of the insights and reflections of the diverse group of Americans who entered the Civilian Public Service. The Writers Directory, 2004. Transforming Violence Robert Herr, 1998. Noted writers from Africa, Asia, Europe, and North America tackle such questions as how to make peace in the new millennium, what can be done about ethnic and religious conflicts, and how is it possible to create peaceful communities and influence the world system. The Ecumenical Review, 1990. Refusing War, Affirming Peace Jeffrey

Kovac, 2009 One of the untold stories of America's World War II experience belongs to the thousands who refused military service for reasons of conscience instead serving their country through non military alternate service Refusing War Affirming Peace offers an intimate view of a single Civilian Public Service Camp Camp 21 at Cascade Locks Oregon one of the largest and longest serving camps in the system and one of the most unusual Under the leadership of a remarkable director Rev Mark Y Schrock and some outstanding camp leaders the men at Camp 21 created a vibrant community Despite the requisite long days of physical labor the men developed a strong educational program published a newspaper and a literary magazine produced plays and concerts and participated in a special school and research project called the School of Pacifist Living They also challenged the Selective Service System in two political protests one concerning the threatened removal of a Japanese American George Yamada and a second concerning a warrelated work project Their story shows the CPS system at its best Mennonite Life ,1990
