Foreword by Gary Hoppenstand Dispositions Arthur L. Costa, Bena Kallick, 2013-10-21 Education must include the development of the human elements in our children Costa and Kallick present a reasonable practical and positive alternative the cultivation of dispositional thinking the very core of being human The Dynamics of Dementia Communication Alison Wray, 2020-03-19 WINNER of the 2021 British Association for Applied Linguistics Book prize It is well recognized that when people are living with a dementia effective communication can be a challenge for both them and those they interact with Despite a plethora of good advice it can be surprisingly hard to sustain constructive communicative behaviours and to integrate them successfully into routine daily care and interaction The Dynamics of Dementia Communication asks why that is What is it about communication as a human social and cognitive practice that makes it so difficult to manage the disruptions caused by dementia Why is it so common to feel awkward confused or irritated when talking with a person living with a dementia Why is the experience of living with a dementia so personally and socially devastating What approaches to communication would work best and why To answer these questions the book integrates information from a wide range of different sources covering the biological social and emotional factors associated with the dementia experience New concepts and theoretical perspectives offer novel ways of thinking about the challenges of communication generally and in the context of dementia Topics explored include whether it is acceptable to deceive people living with a dementia and why society's failure to support people living with a dementia and their carers is so devastating The final chapter suggests what people living with a dementia need if communication is to promote and protect everyone's well being By providing a deeper understanding of what topples the best intentioned attempts at interaction and by explaining why poor communication affects everyone involved this book sets new agendas for improving the welfare of people living with a dementia their families and professional carers Pragmatics in Dementia Discourse Boyd H. Davis, Jacqueline Guendouzi, Reyes Gómez Morón, 2014-07-08 Alison Wray notes that Alzheimer's Disease affects language in many different ways Directly language processing is undermined by damage to the language areas of the brain Indirectly language is compromised by short term memory loss distortions in perception and disturbed semantic representation All of this makes AD an obvious focus of interest for linguists and in particular those interested in the field of pragmatics yet a striking amount of what is published about AD language is written by non linguists AD language is independently researched in at least psychology neuroscience sociology clinical linguistics and nursing Each discipline has its own methods theories assumptions and values which affect the research questions asked the empirical approach taken in answering them and how the evidence is interpreted Without a more reliable holistic picture informed by linguistic and applied linguistic theory and methods approaches to diagnosis and care risk being constrained and may result in a less than satisfactory experience for all those whose daily life involves the direct or indirect experience of AD This book is an attempt to address some of the above issues noted by bringing together a group of researchers whose work focuses on interaction in the context of dementia The authors represent the fields of linguistics clinical linguistics nursing and speech pathology and each chapter draws on methods associated with discourse analysis and pragmatics to examine how people with dementia utilize language in the presence of cognitive decline In addition the book seeks to generate academic discussion on how researchers can move forward to focus greater attention on this topic In particular this collection will inspire researchers involved in mainstream theoretical linguistics and pragmatics to turn their attention to the discourse of dementia and investigate what it has to say about our knowledge of language theories and in addition to challenge what we know about ourselves as subjective beings
