The Politics of Investment Treaties in Latin America Julia Calvert,2022-07-28 International investment law is at a crossroads Civil society groups prominent think tanks and international organisations are calling for widespread reform At the centre of controversy are international investment agreements IIAs and investor state dispute settlement ISDS Over 1 000 legal claims have been brought by foreign investors under IIAs since the mid 1990s resulting in multi million dollar fines imposed against governments for policies related to the environment natural resource governance and access to basic services among other areas of public concern Governments targeted by investor claims are pursuing a variety of reforms that range from the incremental to paradigm shifting These different responses raise important questions about the politics of infringement and reform Why do governments infringe on IIAs despite the costs of doing so Why do some governments heavily targeted by investor claims pursue more substantive reforms than others This book provides a timely examination of infringement and reform in Latin America where governments felt the sting of investor claims sooner and with greater frequency than in other regions It focuses on Peru

Argentina and Ecuador countries that responded very differently to waves of investor claims Based on interviews with government officials and international lawyers as well as an extensive analysis of legal transcripts detailed case study chapters examine the conditions that prompted investor claims and the factors that inform country s reform agendas In doing so the book illustrates the conditions under which IIAs constrain state behaviour and how different belief systems produce different responses to external pressures for treaty compliance Arbitration Between Peru and Chile Peru,1924
