

A still life painting depicting a scene of paint spills on a wooden floor. In the upper center, a red paint can lies on its side, its lid removed, with a large, irregular puddle of red paint spreading across the lower half of the frame. To the right, a yellow paint can is tilted, pouring a thick stream of yellow paint onto the floor, creating a bright yellow puddle. Several other paint cans are visible in the background, some upright and some partially obscured. The cans have labels that include the words "On-Fresh" and "PAINT". The wooden floor is light-colored with visible grain and some scattered paint splatters. The overall style is that of a classic oil painting, with visible brushstrokes and a rich, textured appearance.
