Putting Policy Into Practice:

Urban Policy in Practice Tim Blackman, 2013-01-11 Urban Policy and Practice is a practical and critical guide to urban policy in contemporary Britain. The book covers a range of topics including Quality and consumerism in the public sector, Community development, Public Health, Environmental issues, Local intervention in the creation of skills and jobs. Case studies are drawn from housing, planning, the social services, economic development and local government finance. Throughout the concern is for a clear analysis of corporate strategies, democratic control and sustainable development.

An International Perspective on Wetland Rehabilitation W.J. Streever, 1999-07-31 Bill Streever, author of Bringing Back the Wetlands and numerous technical articles about wetland restoration and creation, worked for two years to bring together this collection of papers. Authors ranging from private landowners to government managers to scientists present regional overviews, case studies and discussions of various issues. Regional overviews cover areas as small as the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands to areas as large as Australia and Africa. Case studies range from relatively small projects such as rehabilitation of damage caused by wheel ruts in the high arctic to much larger projects such as attempts to rehabilitate thousands of hectares of Northern Territory wetlands in Australia. Seedbank ecology, economics, remote sensing, community involvement, the role of the wetland consulting industry and other issues are discussed. In an effort to synthesize information from around the world, Joy Zedler presents a model that allows comparison of projects and may lead to better predictability of project outcomes. In An International Perspective on Wetland Rehabilitation, authors describe planting, engineered structures, prescribed flooding, excavation and other rehabilitation methods from Israel to New Zealand to the Netherlands and elsewhere. For the first time, one volume offers an impression of the magnitude and diversity of the field of wetland rehabilitation around the globe.

Learning Disability Policy and Practice Valerie Williams, 2017-09-16 Highlighting examples of positive evidence-based practice throughout, this book explores working with people with learning disabilities at all life stages. With contributions from people with learning disabilities and their families, its person-centred approach illustrates how policy can be translated into practice with life-changing consequences.

Deservingness in Welfare Policy and Practice Laura Tarkiainen, 2022-09-30 This book discusses and illustrates how deservingness can be approached as a discursively and rhetorically accomplished phenomenon having varied empirical consequences with regard to welfare, poverty, class and care arrangements. Providing a thorough analysis of how deservingness representations are generated in the twenty-first century by focusing on the analysis of discourse and rhetoric of policymakers, reality TV participants, frontline workers and unemployed individuals, it shows that different actors actively participate in constructing representations of deservingness through which a variety of political, practical and social implications and objectives are achieved and performed. The book addresses key themes such as: What kinds of rhetorical and discursive tactics can be associated with undeservingness? How is deservingness accomplished as a speech act? How do different actors such as policymakers, reality TV programme participants frontline workers and individual citizens participate in constructing un deservingness What kind of practical implications and consequences deservingness representations have for policy making frontline work and research This book will be of interest to all scholars and students of social policy social work sociology social psychology political science and media studies Policy, Provision and Practice for Special Educational Needs and Disability Peter

Housing Policy and the Housing System

Alan Murie, Pat Niner, Christopher Watson, 2025-11-18 In the 1970s it was widely recognised that our planners and administrators were dealing not with a homogenous housing market but with a complex of housing sectors and sub markets with different locations physical and social characteristics tenures and costs But although factual information was widely available from the Census and other official sources our understanding of the true nature of the British housing system and the relationships at work within it had remained inadequate Originally published in 1976 this book sets out by careful examination of the complexities of the system to improve that understanding and to discuss the implications for policy in the differing roles played by central and local government developers builders the building societies and the voluntary housing movement The book is divided into three parts The first describes and classifies the different household types identifying their various characteristics such as income social class and stage in the family cycle and their dwellings It examines the process of household movement and discusses various explanatory approaches to housing Part Two describes in detail the three main tenure sectors in Britain and emphasizes the opportunities and constraints on access to housing Not only is tenure of profound institutional political and legal importance it is also of great significance in the lives of individual households Part Three analyses the objectives of housing policy and considers the nature of housing policy in Britain at the time Factors that would lead to a more humane and effective policy are assessed and discussed The authors from the Centre for Urban and Regional Studies at the University of Birmingham worked for three years on the SSRC Housing Systems Research Programme They brought to this study a wealth of experience in applied social and policy orientated research and were uniquely qualified to examine housing policy and practice in Britain An important book which would have been of vital interest to all those concerned with contemporary urban and social problems at the time Neoliberalism and Public Education Finance Policy in Canada

Wendy Poole,Vicheth Sen,Gerald Fallon,2021-12-28 This book uses a multi dimensional conceptual framework to demonstrate how neoliberal forces have been manifested through changes to K 12 public education finance policy in British Columbia Canada between 2001 and 2015 The text offers in depth critical policy analysis to illustrate how the public education system has been impacted by the emergence of a hybrid model of public private funding By examining the impacts of this neoliberalized model in which school districts must compete for public funding and engage in for profit activities the book highlights emerging financial inequalities exacerbated inequities for students increased entrepreneurialism closer alignment of administrators subjectivities with a managerial approach to educational leadership and an illusion of local autonomy Ultimately the text makes powerful contributions by calling attention to detrimental processes of neoliberalization marketization and privatization within public education as well as the managerialization of educational leadership This text will benefit researchers academics educators and educational leaders with an interest in the politics of education policy and finance school district leadership international and comparative education and the sociology of education
