Practical Research Methods for Media and Cultural Studies Máire Messenger Davies, Nick Mosdell, 2006 Many very intelligent people don't like dealing with numbers Similarly many gifted scientists are not especially interested in studying people and their cultural behavior In this book we argue that being interested in people and their cultures and helping students and others to use numbers to pursue these interests are not mutually exclusive Research methods are becoming an increasingly important requirement for students of all kinds But many students particularly those in the humanities struggle with concepts drawn from the social sciences and find quantitative and statistical information inaccessible and daunting Nonetheless such concepts are found in nearly all areas of society from market research to opinion polls to psychological studies of human behavior This book provides a simple guide to the process of conducting research in the humanities with special reference to media and culture from the planning stage through the data gathering to the analysis and interpretation of results planning it doing it and understanding it The book shows how students own choice of research topic can be refined into a manageable research question and how the most appropriate methodologies can be applied Each section draws on actual examples from research that the authors and their students have conducted Topics covered include choosing a research question and method instrument design and pilot data practical procedures research with children looking at statistics and interpretation of results
