Reading in the Composition Classroom Joan Carson, Ilona Leki, 1993 Connecting Reading & Writing in Second Language Writing Instruction Alan Hirvela, 2004-08-20 Academic writing often requires students to incorporate material from outside sources like statistics ideas quotations paraphrases into their own written texts a particular obstacle for students who lack strong reading skills In Connecting Reading and Writing in Second Language Instruction Alan Hirvela contends that second language writing students should be considered as readers first and advocates the integration of reading and writing instruction with a survey of theory research and pedagogy in the subject area Although the integrated reading writing model has gained popularity in recent years many teachers have little more than an intuitive sense of the connections between these skills As part of the popular Michigan Series on Teaching Multilingual Writers Connecting Reading and Writing in Second Language Instruction will provide invaluable background knowledge on this issue to ESL teachers in training as well as teachers who are already practicing Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing Barbara Kroll, 2003-04-14 A collection of 13 original articles this book is intended to provide a series of discussions about multiple aspects of second language writing presenting chapters that collectively address a range of issues that are important to new teachers at the post secondary level The chapters provide scholarly visions insight and interpretation oriented toward explaining the field of teaching academic writing to non native speakers The book is designed to provide foundational content knowledge in this area each chapter authored by recognized experts in the field Throughout the chapters presentation and review of scholarship is presented primarily in the interest of understanding how such knowledge directly or potentially impart teaching making this a pedagogically relevant book In addition to helping train new teachers the book will serve as an updated reference book for practicing teachers and scholars to consult Handbook of Second and Foreign Language Writing Rosa M. Dialogue With Bakhtin on Second and Foreign Language Learning Joan Kelly Hall,Gergana Vitanova,Ludmila A. Marchenkova,2004-12-13 This volume is the first to explore links between the Russian linguist Mikhail Bakhtin s theoretical insights about language and practical concerns with second and foreign language learning and teaching Situated within a strong conceptual framework and drawing from a rich empirical base it reflects recent scholarship in applied linguistics that has begun to move away from formalist views of language as universal autonomous linguistic systems and toward an understanding of language as dynamic collections of cultural resources According to Bakhtin the study of language is concerned with the dialogue existing between linguistic elements and the uses to which they are put in response to the conditions of the moment Such a view of language has significant implications for current understandings of second and foreign language learning The contributors draw on some of Bakhtin s more significant concepts such as dialogue utterance heteroglossia voice and addressivity to examine real world contexts of language learning The chapters address a range of contexts including elementary and university level English as a second language and foreign language classrooms and adult learning situations outside the formal classroom The text is arranged in two parts Part I Contexts of Language Learning and Teaching contains seven chapters that report on investigations into specific contexts of language learning and teaching The chapters in Part II Implications for Theory and Practice present broader discussions on second and foreign language learning using Bakhtin s ideas as a springboard for thinking This is a groundbreaking volume for scholars in applied linguistics language education and language studies with an interest in second and foreign language learning for teacher educators and for teachers of languages from elementary to university levels It is highly relevant as a text for graduate level courses in applied linguistics and second and foreign language education

Focusing on EFL Reading Rahma Al-Mahrooqi,Adrian Roscoe,2014-06-02 Reading a complex and multi faceted skill is essential for life and academic success While its mysteries still baffle first language research the nature of reading in a foreign language presents an even greater puzzle However given reading s importance for EFL students who study their specializations in English and whose future employment may depend on their competence in it researchers must continue to investigate foreign language reading and devise ways of improving students capacity for it Hence this book with its thorough coverage of up to date theory practice and research will be of great value in today s educational context As they strive to understand reading and help EFL students to acquire it researchers and language teachers will find much of value here When Dead Tongues Speak John Gruber-Miller,2006-11-02 When Dead Tongues Speak introduces classicists to the research that linguists psychologists and language teachers have conducted over the past thirty years and passes along their most important insights The essays cover a broad range of topics including cognitive styles peer teaching and collaboration learning disabilities feminist pedagogy speaking and writing Each contributor addresses a different problem in the learning process based on his or her own teaching experience and each chapter combines a theoretical overview with practical examples of classroom activities The book was developed for classroom use in Greek and Latin methodology classes in M A and M A T programs It will also appeal to Latin and Greek language instructors who want to get current with the latest scholarship and pedagogical models Landmark Essays on ESL Writing Tony Silva,Paul Kei Matsuda,2013-10-31 In recent years the number of nonnative speakers of English in colleges and universities in North America has increased dramatically As a result more and more writing teachers have found themselves working with these English as a Second Language ESL students in writing classes that are designed primarily with monolingual native English speaking students in mind Since the majority of institutions require these students to enroll in writing courses at all levels it is becoming increasingly important for all writing teachers to be aware of the presence and special linguistic and cultural needs of ESL writers This increase in the ESL population has over the last 40 years been paralleled by a similar growth in research on ESL writing and writing instruction research that writing teachers need to be familiar with in order to work effectively with ESL writers in writing classrooms of all levels and types Until recently however this body of knowledge has not been very accessible to writing teachers and researchers who do not specialize in second language research and instruction This volume is an attempt to remedy this problem by providing a sense of how ESL writing scholarship has evolved over the last four decades It brings together 15 articles that address various issues in second language writing in general and ESL writing in particular In selecting articles for inclusion the editors tried to take a principled approach The articles included in this volume have been chosen from a large database of publications in second language writing The editors looked for works that mirrored the state of the art when they were published and made a conscious effort to represent a wide variety of perspectives contributions and issues in the field To provide a sense of the evolution of the field this collection is arranged in chronological order A Synthesis of Research on Second Language Writing in English Ilona Leki,Alister Cumming,Tony Silva,2010-04-15 I applaud the authors for this sizeable undertaking as well as the care exercised in selecting and sequencing topics and subtopics A major strength and salient feature of this volume is its range It will serve as a key reference tool for researchers working in L2 composition and in allied fields John

Hedgcock Monterey Institute for International Studies Synthesizing twenty five years of the most significant and influential findings of published research on second language writing in English this volume promotes understanding and provides access to research developments in the field Overall it distinguishes the major contexts of English L2 learning in North America synthesizes the research themes issues and findings that span these contexts and interprets the methodological progression and substantive findings of this body of knowledge Of particular interest is the extensive bibliography which makes this volume an essential reference tool for libraries and serious writing professionals both researchers and practitioners both L1 and L2 This book is designed to allow researchers to become familiar with the most important research on this topic to promote understanding of pedagogical needs of L2 writing students and to introduce graduate students to L2 writing research findings

Crossing Languages and Research Methods Cindy Brantmeier, 2009-11-01 In 2002 this series was launched with its first volume Literacy and the Second Language Learner which contained many noteworthy research studies in the learning and teaching of second language reading The selection of this theme for the series entry on the scene demonstrates the importance of the topic of second language reading Because reading plays a key role in the act of acquiring new knowledge it is important to understand this complex process The series again explores this multifaceted and fruitful area of inquiry in this its seventh volume In recent years an explosion of work that strives to create a more complete understanding of second language reading has occurred and researchers today are making gains in fitting together a model of second language reading This current volume brings together a range of high quality analyses of adult foreign language reading across languages and research methods It provides important research findings that will assist foreign language readers and those who support their efforts

Negotiating Academic Literacies Vivian Zamel, Ruth Spack, 2012-08-06 Negotiating Academic Literacies Teaching and Learning Across Languages and Cultures is a cross over volume in the literature between first and second language literacy This anthology of articles brings together different voices from a range of publications and fields and unites them in pursuit of an understanding of how academic ways of knowing are acquired The editors preface the collection of readings with a conceptual framework that reconsiders the current debate about the nature of academic literacies In this volume the term academic literacies denotes multiple approaches to knowledge including reading and writing critically College classrooms have become sites where a number of languages and cultures intersect This is the case not only for students who are in the process of acquiring English but for all learners who find themselves in an academic situation that exposes them to a new set of expectations This book is a contribution to the effort to discover ways of supporting learning across languages and cultures and to transform views about what it means to teach and learn to read and write and to think and know Unique to this volume is the inclusion of the perspectives of writers as well as those of teachers and researchers Furthermore the contributors reveal their own struggles and accomplishments as they themselves have attempted to negotiate academic literacies The chronological ordering of articles provides a historical perspective demonstrating ways in which issues related to teaching and learning across cultures have been addressed over time The readings have consistency in terms of quality depth and passion they raise important philosophical questions even as they consider practical classroom applications The editors provide a series of questions that enable the reader to engage in a generative and exciting process of reflection and inquiry This book is both a reference for teachers who work or plan to work with diverse learners and a text for graduate level courses primarily in bilingual and ESL studies composition studies English education and literacy studies Teaching L2 Composition Dana R. Ferris, John Hedgcock, 2013-10 This popular comprehensive theory to practice text is designed to help teachers understand the task of writing L2 writers the different pedagogical models used in current composition teaching and reading writing connections Moving from general themes to specific pedagogical concerns it includes practice oriented chapters on the role of genre task construction course and lesson design writing assessment feedback error treatment and classroom language grammar vocabulary style instruction Although all topics are firmly grounded in relevant research a distinguishing feature of the text is the array of hands on practical examples materials and tasks that pre and in service teachers can use to develop the complex skills involved in teaching second language writing Each chapter includes Questions for Reflection Further Reading and Resources Reflection and Review and Application Activities An ideal text for L2 teacher preparation courses courses that include both L1 and L2 students and workshops for instructors of L2 writers in academic secondary and postsecondary settings the accessible synthesis of theory and research enables readers to see the relevance of the field's knowledge base to their own present or future classroom settings and student writers Teaching ESL Composition Dana R. Ferris, John Hedgcock, John S. Hedgcock, 2004-09-15 In keeping with the spirit of the first edition Teaching ESL Composition Purpose Process and Practice Second Edition presents pedagogical approaches to the teaching of ESL composition in the framework of current theoretical perspectives on second language writing processes practices and writers The text as a whole moves from general themes to specific pedagogical concerns A primary goal is to offer a synthesis of theory and practice in a rapidly evolving community of scholars and professionals The focus is on providing apprentice teachers with practice activities that can be used to develop the complex skills involved in teaching second language writing. Although all topics are firmly grounded in reviews of relevant research, a distinguishing feature of this text is its array of hands-on practical examples, materials, and tasks which are presented in figures and in the main text. The synthesis of theory and research in a form that is accessible to preservice and in-service teachers enables readers to see the relevance of the field's knowledge base to their own present or future classroom settings and student writers. Each chapter includes Questions for Reflection, pre-reading questions that invite readers to consider their own prior experiences as students and writers and to anticipate how these insights might inform their own teaching practice. Reflection and Review follow up questions that ask readers to examine and evaluate the theoretical information and practical suggestions provided in the main discussion and Application Activities, a range of hands-on practical exercises such as evaluating and synthesizing published research, developing lesson plans, designing classroom activities, executing classroom tasks, writing commentary on sample student papers, and assessing student writing. The dual emphasis on theory and practice makes this text appropriate as a primary or supplementary text in courses focusing on second language writing theory as well as practicum courses that emphasize or include second language writing instruction or literacy instruction more generally. New in the Second Edition: updated research summaries, consider new work that has appeared since publication of the first edition, revised chapter on research and practice in the use of computers in second language writing courses, covers recent developments, streamlined number and type of Application Activities, focus on hands-on practice exercises and critical analysis of primary research, and revisions throughout reflect the authors' own experiences with the text and reviewers' suggestions for improving the text.

Insights into Teaching and Learning Writing Hassan Mohebbi, Yijun Wang, 2023-04-23 Writing is one of the most challenging skills for a language learner to acquire due to its sheer complexity, and language teachers are faced with a demanding task in the teaching and testing of writing. This book presents relevant conceptual and theoretical frameworks of second language writing research and sheds light on the implications of the recent research findings in a clear and practice-oriented style. In this way, it is intended as a companion book for language teachers who include writing as a part of their courses, in particular new teachers as they embark on their teaching careers.

Generation 1.5 Meets College Composition Linda Harklau, Kay M. Losey, Meryl Siegal, 1999-05-01 An increasing number of students graduate from U.S. high schools and enter college while still in the process of learning English. This group, the 1.5 generation consisting of immigrants and U.S. residents born abroad as well as indigenous language minority groups, is rapidly becoming a major constituency in college writing programs. These students defy the existing categories in most college writing programs and in the research literature. Experienced in American culture and schooling, they have characteristics and needs distinct from the international students who have been the subject of most research and literature on ESL writing. Furthermore, in studies of mainstream college composition, basic writing, and diversity, these students' status as second language learners is usually left unaddressed or even misconstrued as underpreparation.

Nevertheless research and pedagogical writings have yet to take up the particular issues entailed in teaching composition to this student population The intent in this volume is to bridge this gap and to initiate a dialogue on the linguistic cultural and ethical issues that attend teaching college writing to U S educated linguistically diverse students This book is the first to address explicitly issues in the instruction of 1 5 generation college writers From urban New York City to midwestern land grant universities to the Pacific Rim experienced educators and researchers discuss a variety of contexts populations programs and perspectives The 12 chapters in this collection authored by prominent authorities in non native language writing are research based and conceptual providing a research based survey of who the students are their backgrounds and needs and how they are placed and instructed in a variety of settings The authors frame issues raise questions and provide portraits of language minority students and the classrooms and programs that serve them Together the pieces paint the landscape of college writing instruction for 1 5 generation students and explore the issues faced by ESL and college writing programs in providing appropriate writing instruction to second language learners arriving from U S high schools This book serves not only to articulate an issue and set an agenda for further research and discussion but also to suggest paths toward linguistic and cultural sensitivity in any writing classroom It is thought provoking reading for college administrators writing teachers and scholars and students of first and second language composition
