Senile Dementia Of The Alzheimer Type:

Diagnosis and Treatment of Senile Dementia Manfred Bergener, Barry Reisberg, 2012-12-06 Senile dementia is one of the major health problems confronting mankind in this century To some extent the problem has of course always existed The condition was sufficiently troubling to classical philosophers and jurists to have apparently provoked comments by Solon in approximately 500 B C and Plato in the fourth century B C Plutarch 1967 translation Plato 1921 translation Medical recognition can be traced at least as far back as the second century A D Adams 1861 However several factors have converged in this century to extend the absolute dimensions of the problem of senile dementia and to increase societal medical and scientific recognition of the magnitude of the condition Perhaps the most important factor relating to the present importance of senile dementia is demographic Although the human population has been increasing since the mid eighteenth century it has only been since the advent of the twentieth century that a decrease in mortality has been noted for those over the age of 45 McKeown 1976 Consequently the absolute number of aged persons and the proportion of increasingly aged persons in the populations of the world's industrial nations have been steadily increasing For example in the United States 4% of the population was over the age of 65 in 1900 In the 1970 census this proportion had grown to 10%

Senile Dementia of the Alzheimer Type Jörg Traber, Willem H. Gispen, 2012-12-06 Society is showing increasing concern for disorders related to aging that lead to a loss of brain function In view of the enormous proportion of elderly people in our society today brain aging is more than ever subject to challenge to us all not only politicians and health authorities but every individual who is confronted with the difficult situation of watching the mental powers of apparently healthy elderly friends neighbours or relatives fail often with alarming rapidity This challenge is directed especially toward us scientists As one of our colleagues succinctly put it 2 years ago at the close of our First International Symposium on Brain Aging Do something We are not dealing here with just another disease we are concerned with human dignity More than any statistics these words convinced me that Tropon's decision to leave the field of classic CNS pharmacology and move into the field of gerontopsychopharmacology was the right one even though we knew that success would be uncertain and that even if it finally comes it will be many years hence At this point let me add a personal comment each one of us is judged by his or her own success We live in a competitive society where success counts This applies not only to the businessman but also to the scientist in particular to those in industry

Vieillessement de la population et allocation des ressources de santé publique P Gilliland      Senile Dementia Bernard Ineichen, 2013-11-11 The concept of dementia has itself been the subject of increasing refinement and precision in definition and diagnosis Two important sub types have been identified Alzheimer's disease and multiple infarct dementia Alzheimer's disease or Senile Dementia of the Alzheimer Type SDAT arises out of changes in the brain which are as yet poorly understood and identifiable with certainty only at post mortem examination This type of dementia has been named after Alois Alzheimer who first identified these changes in the earliest years of this century Alzheimer's is the commonest type of identified dementia The second commonest type is multi infarct dementia MID which follows a stroke or strokes affecting the relevant part of the brain Like SDAT it can be diagnosed with certainty only after death although Jorm 1987 Ch 8 reviews progress in using various types of tests which can suggest if not confirm its presence during the sufferer's lifetime As will be shown in Chapter 2 some populations appear to reverse the general picture and exhibit more MID than SDAT Many dementia sufferers cannot even after a post mortem examination be neatly categorized as one or the other of these sub types A considerable uncertain grey area of dementia remains at present very poorly understood Some elderly people develop dementia as a side effect of known physical disease Some of these conditions are curable Care of the demented person has traditionally taken place in the community hospitalization is a fairly recent innovation
