Interrogating the much cherished concept of poetic thinking this book focuses on what interview and draft materials reveal of how poets actually do think when in the act of writing The interviews confirm what findings from cognitive science and linguistics make clear we rarely know exactly what words we are going to say until we have said them Suddenness and the Composition of Poetic Thought draws out the implications of a radically curtailed view of consciousness on how we understand the drafting and revision of lines of poetry with implications for our theorisation of the composition of prose Henrich von Kleist's assertion that it is not we but a certain condition of ours which knows emerges as central to this reassessment of the nature of the written word Employing an extensive archive of interview materials with major Anglophone poets discussing how they think in the moments of composition this book also provides a lucid account of the links between poetic composition and live performative thinking in the contexts of Romantic compositional practice and the early pre-textual history of ancient Greek epic A transdisciplinary study at the crossroads of philosophy cognitive psychology literary studies and linguistics this book reconceptualizes the wellsprings of poetic thought and advances our understanding of thinking's complex but vital link to improvised speech An Introduction to the Prose Poem Brian Clements, Jamey

Lunn,2006-10-19 This study tackles the neglected subject of word order in biblical Hebrew poetry The fact that the order of clause constituents frequently differs from that found in prose has often been noted but no systematic attempt has been offered by way of explanation Here two separate factors are taken into consideration that of purely poetic variation defamiliarisation and that of pragmatic markedness The former is common to the poetic genre In the latter case there is a discernible significance in the positioning of the words that has implications with respect to the matters of topic and focus Using Lambrecht's theory of information structure and building on the insights of previous studies in biblical Hebrew narrative the present volume shows that marked topic and focus structures in Old Testament poetry are identical to those found in prose and are distinguishable from defamiliarised word order by means of the environment in which the latter is found Here the common phenomenon of parallelism is seen to be an important factor in providing a secondary line in which defamiliarisation may freely occur This work offers a new approach to the poetry of the Old Testament that will be an aid towards more accurate translation exegesis and discourse analysis of poetic texts The Public School Journal ,1887 Teachers Monographs ,1914 Robert

Frost and Northern Irish Poetry Rachel Buxton, 2004-05-27 In this incisive and highly readable study Rachel Buxton offers a much needed assessment of Frost's significance for Northern Irish poetry of the past half century. Drawing upon a diverse range of previously unpublished archival sources including juvenilia, correspondence and drafts of poems, Robert Frost and Northern Irish Poetry takes as its particular focus the triangular dynamic of Frost, Seamus Heaney and Paul Muldoon. Buxton explores the differing strengths which each Irish poet finds in Frost's work while Heaney is drawn primarily to the Frost persona and to the sound of sense, it is the studied slyness and wryness of the American's poetry, the complicating undertow which Muldoon values. This appraisal of Frost in a non-American context not only enables a fuller appreciation of Heaney's and Muldoon's poetry but also provides valuable insight into the nature of trans-national and trans-generational poetic influence. Engaging with the politics of Irish-American literary connections while providing a subtle analysis of the intertextual relationships between these three key twentieth-century poets, Robert Frost and Northern Irish Poetry is a pioneering work.
