

Oh, there had been occasions of passion, but was that love? I had a sentimental notion... that love meant one would risk all, sacrifice all, overlook and endure all in order to be one with the beloved.

Sentimental Notion:

The Sentimental Education of the Novel Margaret Cohen, 2018-06-05 The nineteenth century French novel has long been seen as the heroic production of great men who confronted in their works the social consequences of the French Revolution And it is true that French realism especially as developed by Balzac and Stendhal was one of the most influential novelistic forms ever invented Margaret Cohen however challenges the traditional account of the genesis of realism by returning Balzac and Stendhal to the forgotten novelistic contexts of their time Reconstructing a key formative period for the novel she shows how realist codes emerged in a hostile take over of a prestigious contemporary sentimental practice of the novel which was almost completely dominated by women writers Cohen draws on impressive archival research resurrecting scores of forgotten nineteenth century novels to demonstrate that the codes most closely identified with realism were actually the invention of sentimentality a powerful aesthetic of emerging liberal democratic society although Balzac and Stendhal trivialized sentimental works by associating them with frivolous women writers and readers Attention to these gendered struggles over genre explains why women were not pioneers of realism in France during the nineteenth century a situation that contrasts with England where women writers played a formative role in inventing the modern realist novel Cohen argues that to understand how literary codes respond to material factors it is imperative to see how such factors take shape within the literary field as well as within society as a whole The book also proposes that attention to literature as a social institution will help critics resolve the current vital question of how to practice literary history in the wake of poststructuralism

The Literary Channel Margaret Cohen, Carolyn Dever, 2009-02-14 The Literary Channel defines a crucial transnational literary zone that shaped the development of the modern novel During the first two centuries of the genre's history Britain and France were locked in political economic and military struggle The period also saw British and French writers critics and readers enthusiastically exchanging works codes and theories of the novel Building on both nationally based literary history and comparatist work on poetics this book rethinks the genre's evolution as marking the power and limits of modern cultural nationalism In the Channel zone the novel developed through interactions among texts readers writers and translators that inextricably linked national literary cultures It served as a forum to promote and critique nationalist clichés whether from the standpoint of Enlightenment cosmopolitanism the insurgent nationalism of colonized spaces or the non nationalized culture of consumption In the process the Channel zone promoted codes that became the genre's hallmarks including the sentimental poetics that would shape fiction through the nineteenth century Uniting leading critics who bridge literary history and theory The Literary Channel will appeal to all readers attentive to the future of literary studies as well as those interested in the novel's development British and French cultural history and extra national patterns of cultural exchange Contributors include April Alliston Emily Apter Margaret interdisciplinary text based on Colin Pritchard's first hand experience both as a practising psychiatric social worker and social researcher. It provides an analysis of current research on suicide exploring possible causes and how best to intervene and makes the case for a science based practice art. International rates of suicide are examined as the author looks at suicide in a cross cultural context showing how it is differently understood in different ethnic groups reflecting various degrees of stigma. He argues for greater recognition of these key differences between cultures and ethnic groups and shows how important they can be to our understanding and intervention. Suicide The Ultimate Rejection explores the concepts of prediction and prevention and asks how the current health and community services might work to reduce the number of suicides in line with the targets set by the government's Health of the Nation. Different approaches to intervention and treatment are considered with emphasis on those which research has shown to be the most promising. Special attention is given to the families of the victim and in the final pages a wider view of suicide which includes euthanasia is explored. Using new research Colin Pritchard examines the practical and moral issues raised by euthanasia. Suicide will be of interest to students of social work, psychiatric nursing, health visiting and medicine as well as health professionals and counsellors.

EBOOK: Suicide - The Ultimate Rejection? N/A Pritchard, 1995-10-16 Suicide The Ultimate Rejection is an

Handbook of Ecocriticism and Cultural Ecology Hubert Zapf, 2016-05-10. Ecocriticism has emerged as one of the most fascinating and rapidly growing fields of recent literary and cultural studies. From its regional origins in late twentieth century Anglo American academia it has become a worldwide phenomenon which involves a decidedly transdisciplinary and transnational paradigm that promises to return a new sense of relevance to research and teaching in the humanities. A distinctive feature of the present handbook in comparison with other survey volumes is the combination of ecocriticism with cultural ecology reflecting an emphasis on the cultural transformation of ecological processes and on the crucial role of literature, art and other forms of cultural creativity for the evolution of societies towards sustainable futures. In state of the art contributions by leading international scholars in the field, this handbook maps some of the most important developments in contemporary ecocritical thought. It introduces key theoretical concepts, issues and directions of ecocriticism and cultural ecology and demonstrates their relevance for the analysis of texts and other cultural phenomena. Claiming Others Mark C. Jerng, 2010. Soundings in French Caribbean Writing Since 1950 Mary Gallagher, 2002-11-07. Over the second half of the twentieth century a substantial flow of writing emerged from the French held Caribbean. Much of this work is both theoretically knowing and poetically potent and has attracted international attention to the literary resonances of the uniquely complex geo historical situation of the Caribbean and indeed of the Americas in general. Much of its passion, pertinence and appeal inheres in its approach to time and to space, an approach still reverberating with the shock of displacement and its various after tremors: an exploded sense of diversity, radical relativization, the profound expropriations of enslavement, colonial erosion. Through readings of high profile as well as lesser known writing, this book tracks some of the more striking tensions and tropisms at work in the French Caribbean imagination of space and time and their intersection. It studies generic interplay textual palimpseste narrative structure and other dynamics of writing that realize and manipulate the intersections of time and space history and memory writing and rewriting voice and text referential space and inter textual space as well as cultural theory and literary practice identity and difference place and displacement In this way it probes both the strains and the stresses and also the insights and gravitations that make for the particular French Caribbean timbre of this volume of writing This specific vibration while illuminating Caribbean New World and post colonial thinking in general also encourages wider reflection on global resonances of displacement and dislocation and on more general issues such as the role of writing and of narrative in particular in the confrontation of absence and presence loss and desire distance and diversity This book locates the problematic of time space in relation to historiographical geo cultural and phenomenological thinking and it also takes account of the detonation of critical interest in what is broadly termed post colonial writing Its fundamental concern however is to show how a particular corpus of writing has in the space of half a century and from a bracing position of hyper relationality responded imaginatively and poetically to the challenge of envisioning place and of relating space to time
