Cold War and Decolonization in Guinea, 1946-1958 Elizabeth Schmidt, 2007-09-25 In September 1958 Guinea claimed its independence rejecting a constitution that would have relegated it to junior partnership in the French Community In all the French empire Guinea was the only territory to vote No Orchestrating the No vote was the Guinean branch of the Rassemblement Démocratique Africain RDA an alliance of political parties with affiliates in French West and Equatorial Africa and the United Nations trusts of Togo and Cameroon Although Guinea's stance vis vis the 1958 constitution has been recognized as unique until now the historical roots of this phenomenon have not been adequately explained Clearly written and free of jargon Cold War and Decolonization in Guinea argues that Guinea's vote for independence was the culmination of a decade long struggle between local militants and political leaders for control of the political agenda Since 1950 when RDA representatives in the French parliament severed their ties to the French Communist Party conservative elements had dominated the RDA In Guinea local cadres had opposed the break Victimized by the administration and sidelined by their own leaders they quietly rebuilt the party from the base Leftist militants their voices muted throughout most of the decade gained preeminence in 1958 when trade unionists students the party's women's and youth wings and other grassroots actors pushed the Guinean RDA to endorse a No vote Thus Guinea's rejection of the proposed constitution in favor of immediate independence was not an isolated aberration Rather it was the outcome of years of political mobilization by activists who despite Cold War repression ultimately pushed the Guinean RDA to the left The significance of this highly original book based on previously unexamined archival records and oral interviews with grassroots activists extends far beyond its primary subject In illuminating the Guinean case Elizabeth Schmidt helps us understand the dynamics of decolonization and its legacy for postindependence nation building in many parts of the developing world Examining Guinean history from the bottom up

Schmidt considers local politics within the larger context of the Cold War making her book suitable for courses in African history and politics diplomatic history and Cold War history

The Revolution's Echoes Nomi Dave, 2019-10-02 Music has long been an avenue for protest seen as a way to promote freedom and equality instill hope and fight for change Popular music in particular is considered to be an effective form of subversion and resistance under oppressive circumstances But as Nomi Dave shows us in The Revolution's Echoes the opposite is also true music can often support rather than challenge the powers that be Dave introduces readers to the music supporting the authoritarian regime of former Guinean president S kou Tour and the musicians who even long after his death have continued to praise dictators and avoid dissent Dave shows that this isn t just the result of state manipulation even in the absence of coercion musicians and their audiences take real pleasure in musical praise of leaders Time and again whether in traditional music or in newer genres such as rap Guinean musicians have celebrated state power and authority With The Revolution's Echoes Dave insists that we must grapple with the uncomfortable truth that some forms of music choose to support authoritarianism generating new pleasures and new politics in the process

Conyers Jr., 2016-12-28 Essentially the study of black religion in America has been mysterious quarrelsome and paradoxical Repeatedly the reason in this primer aspires to make a concentric analysis of the function and capacity of spirituality and religiosity within the African American Muslim movement Recently there have been numerous volumes in the form of biographical or communal studies conducted on Black twentieth century religious figures Much of this discussion has exacerbated in hierarchy of religious values rather than a concentric analysis of the role and function of spirituality and religiosity Therefore this collection of essays places emphasis on the role and views of the missionary and voluntary spread of Islam among African Americans in the United States

Gomez, 2000-11-09 The transatlantic slave trade brought individuals from diverse African regions and cultures to a common destiny in the American South In this comprehensive study Michael Gomez establishes tangible links between the African American community and its African origins and traces the process by which African populations exchanged their distinct ethnic identities for one defined primarily by the conception of race He examines transformations in the politics social structures and religions of slave populations through 1830 by which time the contours of a new African American identity had begun to emerge After discussing specific ethnic groups in Africa Gomez follows their movement to North America where they tended to be amassed in recognizable concentrations within individual colonies and later states For this reason he argues it is possible to identify particular ethnic cultural influences and ensuing social formations that heretofore have been considered unrecoverable Using sources pertaining to the African continent as well as runaway slave advertisements ex slave narratives and folklore Gomez reveals concrete and specific links between particular African populations and their North American progeny thereby shedding new light on subsequent African American social formation

Warriors, Merchants, and Slaves, 1987 Over the course of two centuries the region of the Middle Niger valley of the Western Sudan was dominated by three successive states the indigenous Segu Bambara state the Islamic Umarian state and the French colonial state In each of these states warriors were the rulers and not surprisingly warfare was the primary expression of state power The survival of each state depended on its ability to reproduce its capacity to make war in order to do so the warrior state intervened in the economy In each of the three states the interrelationship of warfare the state and the economy produced different results How the state actually intervened in the economy and how this intervention influenced the structure and performance of the economy is the subject of this book During the 200 years under study the regional economy of the Middle Niger valley expanded and contracted in response to the state s capacity to provide conditions favorable to commercial development capital accumulation and investment When the Segu Bambara state was able to control the autonomy of its warriors the state encouraged the expansion of the regional economy The Umarians on the other hand preyed upon producers within the region and created conditions that discouraged long term investments The very success of the French conquest initially encouraged investment especially in the form of slaves After 1894 however conflict between civilian colonial authorities and the French military undermined the economic and social foundations erected by the military From 1905 to 1914 slaves left their masters and helped once again to transform the structure and performance of the economy
