Oliver Mowats Ontario Papers:

Oliver Mowat's Ontario Donald Swainson,1972 Oliver Mowat's Ontario Donald Swainson,1972 Papers and Records - Ontario Historical Society Ontario Historical Society,1918 The Politics of Federalism Chris Armstrong,1981-12-15 The British North America Act of 1867 fashioned a Canadian federation which was intended to be a highly centralized union led by a powerful national government Soon after Confederation however the government of Ontario took the lead in demanding a greater share of the power for the provinces and it has continued to press this case Professor Armstrong analyses the forces which promoted decentralization and the responses which these elicited from the federal government He explains Ontario s reasons for pursuing this particular policy from 1867 to the Second World War The author s sources are the private papers of federal and provincial premiers and other contemporary political figures government publications parliamentary debates and newspapers He has identified and developed three separate but related themes the dynamic role played by private business interests in generating intergovernmental conflicts Ontario s policy of promoting its economic growth by encouraging the processing of its resources at home and the tremendous influence exerted by increasing urbanization and industrialization on the growth of the responsibilities of the provinces During the 1930s efforts to restructure the federal system were rejected by Ontario because it preferred to maintain the status quo and was unsympathetic to greater equalization between the regions Consequently Ontario took a leading part in opposing the redivision of powers recommended by the Royal Commission on Dominion Provincial Relations in 1940 This book provides part of the historical context into which current debates on the question of federalism may be fitted It thus will be of importance and interest to historians students of Canadian history and the general reader alike Ontario Historical Studies Series Themes Minorities and Reconstructive Coalitions Willie Gin,2017-07-06 Through comparative and historical analysis the book shows that reconstructive coalitions such as labor and pan Christian moral movements affect minority incorporation and bring Catholics and Protestants together under new identities and significantly improving Catholic standing It provides overviews of the history of Catholics in Australia Canada and the United States while at the same time advancing unique arguments about the impact of coalitions on minority politics Dictionary of Canadian Biography / Dictionnaire Biographique Du Canada Ramsay Cook,Jean Hamelin,1966 Internet version contains all the information in the 14 volume print and CD ROM versions fully searchable by keyword or by browsing the name index Federalism in Canada and Australia W.H. Heick,2010-10-30 This book is a comparison of the history and politics of two sister societies comparing Canada with Australia rather than as is traditional with the United Kingdom or the United States It is representative of a particular interest in promoting more contact and exchange among Canadian and Australian scholars who were investigating various features of the two societies Because some of them were individually involved in aspects of federalist studies an examination of the early evolution of federalism in what once were the two sister dominions seemed quite an appropriate area in which to begin comparisons The book discusses Canadian federalism from about 1864 to 1880 and Australian federalism from about 1897 to 1914 It examines the background and changes wrought on early Canadian federalism and early Australian federalism Pulp and Paper Magazine of Canada, 1906 Religion, Family, and Community in Victorian Canada Marguerite Van Die, 2006-01-19 Van Die a sympathetic and perceptive observer and a gifted and deft interpreter describes the lives of the Colbys of Carrollcroft members of Canada's emerging economic elite who were active in the local community public life and politics drawing attention to the links connecting domestic religion and private life business concerns and social change in one family's life over three generations Faithful Intellect Neil Semple, 2005-01-28 In 1850 Samuel Nelles a well educated Methodist minister was selected to resuscitate the debt ridden and declining Victoria University As principal and later as president and chancellor he fought against shortsighted government educational policies while making the school into one of the premier universities in Canada A true academic Nelles believed in the importance of testing assumed laws dogmas and creeds However his pursuit of intellectual inquiry was always guided by a rational faith in God as well as the expectation of the future greatness and goodness of humanity Faithful Intellect expands the reader's understanding of many of the key intellectual religious and political concerns of nineteenth century English Canada while providing an essential contribution to the study of Canada's system of higher education

Timothy Warren Anglin, 1822-96 William M. Baker, 1977-12-15 Born in Ireland in 1822 Timothy Warren emigrated to New Brunswick in 1849 and quickly became involved in the life and politics of the city of Saint John and the colony As founder and editor of the newspaper the Freeman he came lay spokesman for the large mainly lower class Irish Catholic population in Saint John supporting its attempts to alleviate the poverty and harshness of life in New Brunswick and voicing its desire to be accepted as a responsible part of the community Although Anglin shared his countrymen's resentment of the British presence in Ireland he saw Britain's role in North America as a positive one Both as a newspaperman and later as a practicing politician he pressed for the constitutional and non violent redress of grievances His Irish background and sympathies coupled with his moderate political stance and strongly middle class outlook made him an effective mediator between the Irish Catholics in New Brunswick and the rest of the community In the 1860s Anglin was an active participant in the complex political manoeuvrings in New Brunswick the Freeman providing a platform for his strenuous opposition to Confederation Although the anti Confederates were unsuccessful Anglin's career provides insight into both the muddy politics of Confederation and the process of adjustment to the new order Ultimately the union that Anglin had opposed won his loyalty a demonstration of the fact that despite its problems the strength of the new nation of Canada was considerable He was a member of the Canadian House of Commons from 1867 to 1882 and Speaker of the House from 1874 to 1878 This study of the public career of Timothy Warren Anglin newspaperman politician Irish Catholic leader sheds light on the political and social history of British North America in the second half of the nineteenth century and on the emergence and growth of the Canadian nation With Good Intentions Celia Haig-Brown, David A. Nock, 2011-11-01 With Good Intentions examines the joint efforts of Aboriginal people and individuals of European ancestry to counter injustice in Canada when colonization was at its height from the mid nineteenth to the early twentieth century. These people recognized colonial wrongs and worked together in a variety of ways to right them but they could not stem the tide of European based exploitation. The book is neither an apologist text nor an attempt to argue that some colonizers were simply well intentioned. Almost all those considered here teachers lawyers missionaries activists had as their overall goal the Christianization and civilization of Canada's First Peoples. While their sensitivity and willingness to work in concert with Aboriginal people made them stand out from their less sympathetic compatriots they were nonetheless implicated in the colonialist project as the contributors to this volume make clear. By discussing examples of Euro Canadians who worked with Aboriginal peoples With Good Intentions brings to light some of the lesser known complexities of colonization. This volume is an important resource for anyone interested in Canadian history particularly post Confederation history and in Native studies and issues of colonization of Native peoples Sessional Papers of the Dominion of Canada Canada. Parliament, 1904 Report of the Dominion fishery commission on the fisheries of the province of Ontario 1893 issued as an addendum to vol 26 no 7

Getting it Wrong Paul Romney, 1999-01-01 This provocative book explains how divergent views of Canada's past have sown dissension between Qu'becois and other Canadians disclosing a lost middle ground between the Canadian nationalist and Qu'bec nationalist visions of Canadian history Swords and Ploughshares Rod Macleod, 1993 This collection of papers focusses on western Canada in the era of the rebellions and on the agricultural experience of settlers and Mt is as well as urban growth and political movements The Canadian Department of Justice and the Completion of Confederation 1867-78 Jonathan Swainger, 2011-11-01 The federal Department of Justice was established by John A Macdonald as part of the Conservative party's program for reform of the parliamentary system following Confederation. Among other things it was charged with establishing national institutions such as the Supreme Court and the North West Mounted Police and with centralizing the penitentiary system. In the process the department took on a position of primary importance in post Confederation politics. This was particularly so up to 1878 when Confederation was completed. Jonathan Swainger considers the growth and development of the ostensibly apolitical Department of Justice in the eleven years after the union of 1867. Drawing on legal records and other archival documents he details the complex interactions between law and politics exploring how expectations both inside and outside the legal system created an environment in which the department acted as an advisor to the government. He concludes by considering the post 1878 legacy of the department's approach to governance wherein any problem legal or otherwise was made amenable to politicized solutions. Unfortunately for the department and the federal government this left them ill prepared for the constitutional battles to come. One crucial task was to establish responsibilities within the federal government rather than just duplicate offices which had existed prior to union.

Others were the establishment of national or quasi national institutions such as the Supreme Court 1875 and the North West Mounted Police 1873 the redrafting of the Governor General s instructions which was done between 1875 and 1877 and centralization of the penitentiary system completed by 1875 The Department benefited from a deeply rooted expectation that law was both apolitical and necessary This ideology functioned in a variety of ways it gave the Department considerable latitude for setting policy and solving problems but rationalized the appearance of politicized legal decisions It also legitimized Department officials claim that it was especially suited to review all legislation advise on the royal prerogative of mercy administer national penitentiaries and appoint judges to the bench Ultimately the fictional notion of law as apolitical and necessary placed the Department of Justice squarely in the midst of the completion of Confederation The Canadian Department of Justice and the Completion of Confederation will be of particular interest to students and scholars of Canadian legal and political history Library of Congress Catalogs Library of Congress,1976 Children in English-Canadian Society Neil Sutherland,2000-07-12 Sutherland educational studies U of British Columbia emeritus examines the growth of the public health movement and its various efforts at improving the health of children He describes the process by which in the latter part of the 19th century English Canadians developed new beliefs about childhood established two special health services to bring children the benefits of recent medical discoveries changed their approach to care for neglected or delinquent children and reformed the education system to meet the needs of industrial society Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR Formidable Heritage Jim Mochoruk,2004-06-03 Canadians have an ambivalent feeling towards the North Although climate and geography make our northern condition apparent Canadians often forget about the north and its problems Nevertheless for the generation of historians that included Lower Creighton and Morton the northern rivers lakes forests and plains were often seen as primary characters in the drama of nation building W L Morton even went so far as to write that the main task of Canadian life has been to make something of that formidable heritage of the northern Canadian shield For many politicians and developers to make something of the North came to mean thinking of the North as an empty hinterland waiting to be exploited and today hydroelectric projects mining milling pulp and paper and other industries have changed much of the North beyond recognition One of the first parts of the North to be aggressively industrialized was northern Manitoba When all of Manitoba was given in 1670 to a group of entrepreneurs a precedent was set that was replicated throughout the province s history After the province entered confederation in 1870 provincial politicians and business leaders began to look to the northern resources as a new key to the province s economic development Particularly after 1912 they saw resource development in the North as a strategy to expand the provincial economy from its agricultural base In Formidable Heritage Jim Mochoruk shows how government and business worked together to transform what had been the exclusive fur trading preserve of the Hudson s Bay Company into an industrial hinterland He follows the many twisting paths established by developers and politicians as they chased their goal of economic growth and recounts the ultimate costs of development in economic ecological and political terms Labouring Children Joy Parr, 2022-11-16 Labouring Children 1980 is a study of child immigrants based on numerous original sources and presents new views on childhood social work and Canadian rural communities Between 1868 and 1925 eighty thousand British boys and girls mostly under fourteen were apprenticed as agricultural labourers and domestic servants in rural Canada A surprising feature is the involvement of the Evangelicals who considered that they were giving children from poor homes a fresh start in the world yet who were otherwise famed for their emphasis on the virtues of close family ties and conversely the parents of the children largely labourers who were at the time regarded as too ground down by economic imperatives to find time for affection but who expended a great deal of effort to maintain contact across imposing distances This book begins with an analysis of the growing child's place within these families and looks at the alternating prominence of demands for wage labour and fear of the dangerous classes which influenced emigration policy idealism The demand for child labour in rural Canada and the work of the children is described in an analysis of the apprenticeship system The book also illustrates how the British child immigrants were household rather than family members in Canada and outsiders in the rural schoolroom as well As adults they did not generally become farmers but entered factory jobs service employment in urban Canada migrated to the US or returned to Britain Finally the book discusses the ending of the movement after World War I as Canadian social workers echoing British socialists argued that even the children of the poor deserved fourteen years of growing and schooling before they were obliged to sell their labour Incorporating much rich documentation from numerous case records and presenting a new quantitative use of some of those records this book sheds light on a dark corner of the Canadian migrant experience
