Three Essays* Alfred Russel Wallace, 2019-07-10 The nineteenth century British naturalist Alfred Russel Wallace was a major influence on Darwin's theory of natural selection He was later moved by a variety of personal experiences to examine the concept of spirituality but his exploration into the potential for compatibility between spiritualism and natural selection alienated him from the scientific community The three controversial essays in this

1875 book attempt to reinforce his beliefs and validate his claims The first written in 1871 and read before The Dialectic Society reconsiders the credibility or incredibility of miracles The second The Scientific Aspect of the Supernatural had been published in a secularist periodical several years earlier and A Defence of Modern Spiritualism appeared in the Fortnightly Review shortly before this book was published Wallace s book takes the modern reader to the heart of the raging debates engendered by Darwin many of which continue over a century later

This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1875 edition Excerpt A DEFENCE OF MODERN SPIRITUALISM reprinted With Notes And Additions From The Fortnightly Review It is with great diffidence but under an imperative sense of duty that the present writer accepts the opportunity afforded him of submitting to the readers of the Fortnightly Review some general account of a wide spread movement which though for the most part treated with ridicule or contempt he believes to embody truths of the most vital importance to human progress The subject to be treated is of such vast extent the evidence concerning it is so varied and so extraordinary the prejudices that surround it are so inveterate that it is not possible to do it justice without entering into considerable detail The reader who ventures on the perusal of the succeeding pages may therefore have his patience tried but if he is able to throw aside his preconceived ideas of what is possible and what is impossible and in the acceptance or rejection of what is submitted to him will carefully weigh The following are the more important works which have been used in the preparation of this article Judge Edmond s Spiritual

Miracles and Modern Spiritualism Alfred Russel Wallace, 2016-07-07 From the introductory AN ANSWER TO THE ARGUMENTS OF HUME LECKY AND OTHERS AGAINST MIRACLES A Paper Read Before The Dialectical Society in 1871 It is now generally admitted that those opinions and beliefs in which men have been educated generation after generation and which have thus come to form part of their mental nature are especially liable to be erroneous because they keep alive and perpetuate the ideas and prejudices of a bygone and less enlightened age It is therefore in the interest of truth that every doctrine or belief however well established or sacred they may appear to be should at certain intervals be challenged to arm themselves with such facts and reasonings as they possess to meet their opponents in the open field of controversy and do battle for their right to live Nor can any exemption be claimed in favour of those beliefs which are the product of modern civilisation and which have for several generations been held unquestioned by the great mass of the educated community for the prejudice in their favour will be proportionately great and as was the case with the doctrines of Aristotle and the dogmas of the schoolmen they may live on by mere weight of authority and force of habit long after they have been shown to be opposed alike to fact and to reason There have been times when popular beliefs were defended by the terrors of the law and when the sceptic could only attack them at the peril of his life Now we all admit that truth can take care of itself and that only error needs protection But there is another mode of defence which equally implies a claim to certain and absolute truth and which is therefore equally unworthy and unphilosophical that of ridicule and misrepresentation of our opponents or a contemptuous refusal to discuss the question at all This method is used among us even now for there is one belief or rather disbelief whose advocates claim more than papal infallibility by refusing to examine the evidence brought against it and by alleging general arguments which have been in use for two centuries to prove that it cannot be erroneous The belief to which I allude is that all alleged miracles are false that what is commonly understood by the term supernatural does not exist or if it does is incapable of proof by any amount of human testimony that all the phenomena we can have cognisance of depend on ascertainable physical laws and that no other intelligent beings than man and the inferior animals can or do act upon our material world These views have been now held almost unquestioned for many generations they are inculcated as an essential part of a liberal education they are popular and are held to be one of the indications of our intellectual advancement and they have become so much a part of our mental nature that all facts and arguments brought against them are either ignored as unworthy of serious consideration or listened to with undisguised contempt Now this frame of mind is certainly not one favourable to the discovery of truth and strikingly resembles that by which in former ages systems of error have been fostered and maintained The time has therefore come when it must be called upon to justify itself

On Miracles and Modern Spiritualism, Three Essays, by Alfred Russel Wallace,... 2nd Edition Alfred Russel Wallace,1881 Miracles and Modern Spiritualism (Classic Reprint) Alfred Russel Wallace,2017-10-11 Excerpt from Miracles and Modern Spiritualism I am well aware that my scientific friends are some what puzzled to account for what they consider to be my delusion and believe that it has injuriously affected what ever power I may have once possessed of dealing with the philosophy of Natural History One of them Mr Anton Dohrn has expressed this plainly I am informed that in an article entitled Englische Kritiker und Anti Kritiker des Darwinismus published in 1861 he has put forth the opinion that Spiritualism and Natural Selection are incompatible and that my divergence from the views of Mr Darwin arises from my belief in Spiritualism He also supposes that in accepting the spiritual doctrines I have been to some extent influenced by clerical and religious prejudice As Mr Dohrn's views may be those of other scientific friends I may perhaps be excused for entering into some personal details in reply About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

The search for belief and meaning among nineteenth century intellectuals The nineteenth century s explosion of scientific theories and new technologies undermined many deep seated beliefs that had long formed the basis of Western society making it impossible for many to retain the unconditional faith of their forebears A myriad of discoveries including Faraday s electromagnetic induction Joule s law of conservation of energy Pasteur s germ theory Darwin s and Wallace s theories of evolution by natural selection and Planck s work on quantum theory shattered conventional understandings of the world that had been dictated by traditional religious teachings and philosophical systems for centuries

Fictions of Certitude Science Faith and the Search for Meaning 1840 1920 investigates the fin de si cle search for truth and meaning in a world that had been radically transformed John S Haller Jr examines the moral and philosophical journeys of nine European and American intellectuals who sought deeper understanding amid such paradigmatic upheaval Auguste Comte John Henry Newman Herbert Spencer Alfred Russel Wallace Thomas Henry Huxley John Fiske William James Lester Frank Ward and Paul Carus all belonged to an age in which one world was passing while another world that was both astounding and threatening was rising to take its place For Haller what makes the work of these nine thinkers worthy of examination is how they strove in different ways to find certitude and belief in the face of an epochal sea change Some found ways to reconceptualize a world in which God and nature coexist For others the challenge was to discern meaning in a world in which no higher power or purpose can be found As explained by D H Meyer The later Victorians were perhaps the last generation among English speaking intellectuals able to believe that man was capable of understanding his universe just as they were the first generation collectively to suspect that he never would
