

resist and struggle to counter them. She urges us not to see the world only in terms of the personal, or only in terms of the political.

Another dichotomy (that we ought to avoid) is in the separation of the private and personal from the social and collective ... Must our solutions be private or collective? Can they not be both? Why do those of us who want social justice tend to ignore calls for private accountability? And why do those of us who call for so-called "family values" and personal morality not demand the social justice in which these can flourish? Let's begin to think in holistic visions, not split paradigms. (Jacqueline Barkley, p. 192)

I plan to take her advice.

It is a fitting time for a book such as Carol Harris' to arrive on the educational landscape. In a period when education is under assault in Nova Scotia as in other parts of Canada, this book is indeed timely. In Nova Scotia the assault on education has included forced amalgamation, which has seen smaller, community schools replaced by larger, modern but sometimes alienating facilities often further removed from the communities they serve. Decentralization and site-based management have become code words for justifying the reduction of staff and services to schools and communities. The neo-conservative agenda of the government that hopes to reduce education to "work training" and "basic literacy" has created an unfriendly climate for support for the arts and the humanities in schools. In such a time a book that stresses the importance of community and the arts and arts education is welcome. Moreover, the story of one woman who devoted her life to arts and community education provides hope and inspiration to those resisting reductionist forms of education and schooling.

In a reader-friendly style that will appeal to both practitioners and lay people, Harris chronicles the life of Elizabeth Murray, or Betty Murray as she preferred to be called. The story is a fascinating one of a woman who grew up

Joanne Tompkins spent 15 years of her teaching career working in Inuit communities in the Canadian Arctic as an elementary teacher, inclusion consultant, school principal, and teacher educator. Presently she is living "down South" as a professor of education at St. Francis Xavier University where she teaches courses at the undergraduate and graduate level in the sociology of education, diverse cultures, bilingual education, and generally issues of equity in education. Her first book, Teaching in a Cold and Windy Place (University of Toronto Press, 1998) chronicles the process of school change in an Inuit school from the perspective of the principal.

Resources in Education ,1998 The Aesthetic Dimensions of Educational Administration & Leadership Eugenie A. Samier,Richard Bates,2006-11-22 The question of aesthetics as a theoretical framework for thinking about modern leadership issues in educational settings is an emergent area of inquiry that is receiving considerable attention There is a growing sense that the mechanistic approach to leadership which has been widely encouraged over the last ten years is sterile and that a more philosophical approach is now required This approach is covered here taking into account the importance of aesthetics on all aspects of the administrative and leadership world the ways ideas and ideals are created how their expression is conveyed the impact they have on interpersonal relationships and the organisational environment that carries and reinforces them and the moral boundaries or limits that can be established or exceeded While presenting a significant departure from conventional studies in the field the international contributors reflect a continuity of thought on administrative and leadership authority from the writings of Plato through to current theory Political Approaches to Educational Administration and Leadership Eugenie A. Samier,with Adam G. Stanley,2008-03-01 This collection explores the political philosophy and theory foundations for educational administration and leadership as they influence our understanding analysis and practice in the field The first section Political Philosophy The Foundations discusses the work of such writers as Machiavelli Kant and Hegel Hayek Habermas and Bourdieu as their theories apply to the educational context The second section Political Analysis The Critique examines various types of political analyses such as the politics of the policy process minority politics civil society micro politics community politics and cosmopolitan theory The last section Current Political Controversies The Practice addresses current topical issues of a political nature including the serving of the state economic agenda the democratisation of educational organisations the neo conservative agenda and globalisation The broad international perspective from which these topics are covered makes this volume an excellent addition to the fields of educational leadership organizational studies and educational administration theory Making and Moving Knowledge John Sutton Lutz,Barbara Neis,2008 It has long been acknowledged that research does not directly translate into knowledge nor does knowledge necessarily or even often translate into wisdom Whether the immediate challenge is global warming epidemic disease poverty environmental degradation or social fragmentation our research efforts are all wasted if we cannot devise processes to create and transfer knowledge to policy makers interested groups and ordinary people in a manner that is efficient and understandable How we maximize the impact of the research that scholars do and how to combine that with knowledge already extant in lay or local communities are key issues in a world with scarce research resources and numerous social and scientific conflicts Making and Moving Knowledge focuses directly on how knowledge is created transferred and used and perhaps most important how it is blocked and atrophies It treats knowledge generated by universities and governments alongside traditional and practical knowledge generated in coastal aboriginal and non aboriginal communities and looks at how the different kinds flow in different directions The chapters are theoretical methodological and applied as the authors model their commitment to knowledge transfer in their work with community academics and policy makers

Critical Perspectives in Canadian Music Education Carol A. Beynon,Kari K. Veblen,2012-09-01 Music education in Canada is a vast enterprise that encompasses teaching and learning in thousands of public and private schools community groups and colleges and universities It involves participants from infancy to the elderly in formal and informal settings Nevertheless as post secondary faculties of music and programs are growing significantly academic books and materials grounded in a Canadian perspective are scarce This book attempts to fill that need by offering a collection of essays that look critically at various global issues in music education from a Canadian perspective Topics range from a discussion of the roots of music education in Canada and analysis of music education practices across the country to perspectives on popular music distance education technology gender globalization Indigenous traditions and community music in music education Foreword by composer R Murray Schafer

Transforming Conversations Dawn Wallin,Janice

Wallace,2018-06-12 What effect has feminism had on Canadian education since the 1970 Royal Commission on the Status of Women and to what end Transforming Conversations explores post commission feminist thought and action in the contexts of primary secondary post secondary and adult education In this volume teachers professors and educational administrators many trailblazers themselves document the historical experiences and outcomes of feminist action in university faculties of education departments of educational administration academic and professional societies teachers unions and community groups over the past five decades They begin by exploring liberal feminism as an initial response to the historical context in which female educators spoke up for women s rights and reshaped formal education systems The contributors further explore how feminist theory was reconceptualized as women moved into formal leadership roles across education sectors Last contributors consider female educators at the intersection of gender and other systems of exclusion such as race and class despite ostensibly inclusive feminist theory that continues to be bounded by Western colonial neoliberal ideologies Transforming Conversations considers the complex effects feminism has had and continues to have on Canadian education acknowledges voices that have been marginalized and invites readers to continue a transformative feminist dialogue

Ethical Foundations for Educational Administration Eugenie Samier, 2003-12-16 Christopher Hodgkinson is one of the most important contributors to the field of educational administration This collection of essays open up the philosophical foundations of ethical educational administration by reviewing his writings and exploring the ethical theories of major philosophers as they apply to administration and leadership Ethical Foundations of Educational Administration is published in honour of the work of Christopher Hodgkinson It is divided into two sections The first comprises biographical essays and a critical evaluation of Professor Hodgkinson s work focusing on his personal and intellectual contributions to a moral theory of educational administration and leadership The second section looks at how his moral philosophy can inform administrative practice The work of a broad range of philosophers is discussed from the pre 20th century theories of Aquinas Adam Smith and Kant to the pragmatists Peirce James and Dewey Heidegger MacIntyre Bourdieu Churchland and Thagard Christopher Hodgkinson s definition of administration as philosophy in action is now famous within the field This collection illustrates the essential truth of that maxim showing that moral philosophy approached in the spirit promoted by Hodgkinson has both practical and critical purpose when brought to bear upon educational administration and leadership Canadian

Perspectives on the Sociology of Education Cynthia Levine-Rasky, 2009 This collection of original essays examines the complex relationship between schooling and society By taking a critical approach the text urges readers to formulate difficult questions about the practice of teaching and the experience of schooling The text also illustrates the multiple forces that come into play for both educators and for students and challenges the reductive and pragmatic approach adopted in conventional education courses Alberta Journal of Educational Research ,1999 Notes from a Musical Garden
