Sentence Comprehension David J. Townsend,2001      Sentence comprehension David J. Townsend,      Sentence Comprehension David J. Townsend,Thomas G. Bever,2001 Using sentence comprehension as a case study for all of cognitive science David Townsend and Thomas Bever offer an integration of two major approaches the symbolic computational and the associative connectionist The symbolic computational approach emphasizes the formal manipulation of symbols that underlies creative aspects of language behavior The associative connectionist approach captures the intuition that most behaviors consist of accumulated habits The authors argue that the sentence is the natural level at which associative and symbolic information merge during comprehension The authors develop and support an analysis by synthesis model that integrates associative and symbolic information in sentence comprehension This integration resolves problems each approach faces when considered independently The authors review classic and contemporary symbolic and associative theories of sentence comprehension and show how recent developments in syntactic theory fit well with the integrated analysis by synthesis model They offer analytic experimental and neurological evidence for their model and discuss its implications for broader issues in cognitive science including the logical necessity of an integration of symbolic and connectionist approaches in the field      The Cambridge Handbook of Spanish Linguistics Kimberly L.

M. Seuren, 2009-02-26 Language in Cognition argues that language is based on the human construal of reality Humans refer to and quantify over virtual entities with the same ease as they do over actual entities the natural ontology of language the author argues must therefore comprise both actual and virtual entities and situations He reformulates speech act theory suggesting that the primary function of language is less the transfer of information than the establishing of socially binding commitments or appeals based on the proposition expressed This leads him first to a new analysis of the systems and structures of cognitive language machinery and their ecological embedding and finally to a reformulation of the notion of meaning in which sentence meaning is distinguished from lexical meaning and the vagaries and multifarious applications of lexical meanings may be explained and understood This is the first of a two volume foundational study of language published under the title Language from Within Pieter Seuren discusses and analyses such apparently diverse issues as the ontology underlying the semantics of language speech act theory intensionality phenomena the machinery and ecology of language sentential and lexical meaning the natural logic of language and cognition and the intrinsically context sensitive nature of language and shows them to be intimately linked Throughout his ambitious enterprise he maintains a constant dialogue with established views reflecting on their development from Ancient Greece to the present The resulting synthesis concerns central aspects of research and theory in linguistics philosophy and cognitive science
