Gerpacio, 2001 Community Seed Production Sustainability in Rice-Wheat Farming Narayan Prasad Khanal, Keshav Lall Maharjan, 2015-05-07 This book analyzes the sustainability of community seed production under a rice wheat farming system from microeconomic perspectives considering how seed producers benefit from community seed production and how those benefits continue into the future Seed producers performance in resource management governance and marketing strategies indicates current benefits whereas soil conservation and risk management practices provide the basis for future benefits Community seed production is a local level seed management system owned by farmers This system provides the institutional mechanism to supply diversified seed demands of open pollinated varieties of food crops in a cost effective way in rural regions Being able to address the concerns of food insecurity poverty climate stress and biodiversity loss in programs and policies of development agencies community seed production is gaining popularity among the farmers and the policy makers in developing countries This book discusses the issues of organizational governance of the community seed producers groups and links them with household level benefits to understand the organizational dynamism and the probable development paths of such organizations in the future It also highlights the necessity to institutionalize lessons learned in community seed production in the stakeholders programs and policies These understandings provide a basis for formulating policies for strengthening the system in developing countries Students researchers policy makers and donor agencies working with CSP in the developing world will find this book useful in broadening their understanding of CSP in general and its sustainability in particular

Efficient Conservation Of Crop Genetic Diversity Detlef Virchow, 2013-03-09 The book reflects the work in progress regarding the analysis of the costs of crop genetic resources conservation that has been conducted at various research institutes over the last couple of years including research conducted at ZEF and associated institutes In addition contributions in this publication were presented at a special session during the Global Dialogue The Role of the Village in the 21 Century Crops Jobs and Livelihood in Hannover Germany at the World Exposition in August 2000 The purpose of the publication is to make a general contribution to the ongoing discussion about the conservation of crop genetic resources as part of the global strategy to secure increasing food production in a sustainable way Specifically it discusses the costs of the worldwide efforts to conserve crop genetic resources on the basis of theoretical and applied studies

It aims to serve decision makers at different levels with information on the costs involved in the conservation of genetic resources and hence to increase the awareness of the importance of improving the cost effectiveness of different conservation methods in order to optimize the sustainability of conservation. The quoted Leipzig Declaration which was adopted at the Fourth International Technical Conference on Plant Genetic Resources in Leipzig in June 1996 demonstrates the close linkage of the contributions to the ongoing discussion about the implementation of the Global Plan of Action for the Conservation and Sustainable Utilization of Plant Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture.

Seed Trade in Rural Markets Leslie Lipper, C. Leigh Anderson, Timothy J. Dalton, 2009-12-01 Markets have been found to be an increasingly important source of the seeds of crops and varieties low income farmers need to improve their livelihoods encompassing both the formal and informal seed sector. Markets also have major impacts on agricultural biodiversity by affecting farmers' choice of crops and varieties to grow. They are not however a homogenous institution although all too frequently policies and regulations are developed as though they were. Markets vary considerably depending on the participants, on the institutions that govern how and what they exchange and on local agricultural economic and social conditions. Developing effective strategies to improve the way agricultural markets work including how farmers use crop genetic resources requires understanding of these variations. Seed Trade in Rural Markets presents a unique set of case studies from Bolivia, India, Kenya, Mali and Mexico on agricultural seed and product markets that describe three important market characteristics expected to affect farmers' access to seeds and varieties: the range of varieties on offer, the information provided about them and relative prices. The case studies all based around a common framework to aid comparability also provide information on social, agricultural and economic factors which may be affecting the market availability, information and cost of crop genetic resources and ultimately the capacity to stimulate agricultural development. Published with the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations.

Reasserting the Rural Development Agenda Arsenio Molina Balisacan, 2003-08-01 The agricultural sector's perceived importance in the international development circle waned dramatically after the 1980s and investments in rural development and agricultural research and development declined sharply. This volume reasserts the role of agricultural and rural development in the economic development debate. By revisiting the evolution of ideas, paradigms and empirical evidence and by drawing on Asian experiences, the book intends to set a reinvigorated agenda on agricultural and rural development both for research and policy discussions in the coming decades. Written by internationally acknowledged research scholars, this book is helpful to a wide range of audience including researchers, policymakers, practitioners and students interested in rural development in Asia and its future evolutions.
