On Growth The Crisis Of Exploding Population And Resource Depletion:

On growth Willem L. Oltmans, 1974 The Immorality of Limiting Growth Edward Walter, 1981-06-30 The Industrial Age has ended according to no growth futurism because the finitude of the earth has been reached Its proponents maintain that technological innovation cannot save industrial society because of pollution over population and inflation They call for a transformed society in which productivity pollution and population growth are strictly controlled This volume emphatically challenges the no growth viewpoint on both philosophical and empirical grounds In it Edward Walter demonstrates that the interests of those who are socially deprived cannot be fulfilled in a steady state because the privileged classes are able to use their power to prevent redistribution of wealth and to retain their advantages Far from equating technology with pollution and the depletion of natural resources Walter sees it as the means by which resource shortages can be overcome and pollution control can be achieved He describes and recommends an essential liberalism that could provide economic development to all classes in a spirit of international cooperation without necessitating the transformation of human nature and political institutions

The Development Dictionary Wolfgang Sachs, 1992 In this pioneering collection some of the world's most eminent critics of development review the key concepts of the development discourse in the post war era Each essay examines one concept from a historical and anthropological point of view and highlights its particular bias Exposing their historical obsolescence and intellectual sterility the authors call for a bidding farewell to the whole Eurocentric development idea This is urgently needed they argue in order to liberate people's minds in both North and South for bold responses to the environmental and ethical challenges now confronting humanity These essays are an invitation to experts grassroots movements and students of development to recognize the tainted glasses they put on whenever they participate in the development discourse

The Social and Cultural Construction of Risk B.B. Johnson, V.T. Covello, 2012-12-06 The Social and Cultural Construction of Risk Issues Methods and Case Studies Vincent T Covello and Branden B Johnson Risks to health safety and the environment abound in the world and people cope as best they can But before action can be taken to control reduce or eliminate these risks decisions must be made about which risks are important and which risks can safely be ignored The challenge for decision makers is that consensus on these matters is often lacking Risks believed by some individuals and groups to be tolerable or acceptable such as the risks of nuclear power or industrial pollutants are intolerable and unacceptable to others This book addresses this issue by exploring how particular technological risks come to be selected for societal attention and action Each section of the volume examines from a different perspective how individuals groups communities and societies decide what is risky how risky it is and what should be done The writing of this book was inspired by another book Risk and Culture An Essay on the Selection of Technological and Environmental Dangers Published in 1982 and written by two distinguished scholars Mary Douglas a British social
