carefully organized as The Uncoiling Python Harold Scheub one of the world's leading scholars of African oral traditions and folklore explores the ways in which oral traditions have served to combat and subvert colonial domination in South Africa From the time colonial forces first came to southern Africa in 1487 oral and written traditions have been a bulwark against what became 350 years of colonial rule characterized by the racist policies of apartheid The Uncoiling Python South African Storytellers and Resistance is the first in depth study of oral tradition as a means of survival In open insurrections and other subversive activities Africans resisted the daily humiliations of colonial rule but perhaps the most effective and least apparent expression of subversion was through indigenous storytelling and poetic traditions Harold Scheub has collected the stories and poetry of the Xhosa Zulu Swati and Ndebele peoples to present a fascinating analysis of how the apparently harmless tellers of tales and creators of poetry acted as front line soldiers

The Crucible of Carolina Michael Montgomery, 1994 The ten essays in The Crucible of Carolina explore the connections between the language and culture of South Carolina's barrier islands West Africa the Caribbean and England Decades before any formal scholarly interest in South Carolina barrier life outsiders had been commenting on and documenting the African qualities of the region's black inhabitants These qualities have long been manifest in their language religious practices music and material culture Although direct contact between South Carolina and Africa continued until the Civil War the era of Caribbean contact was briefer and ended with the close of the American colonial period Throughout this volume though the contributors look beyond the cultural motivations and political appeal of strengthening the links between coastal Carolina and Africa and examine the cost of a diminished recognition of this important Caribbean influence Not surprisingly the influence of the pioneering linguist Lorenzo Dow Turner is reflected in many of these essays The work presented in this volume however moves beyond Turner in dealing with the discourse and stylistic aspects of Gullah in relating patterns of Gullah to other Anglophone creoles and to various processes of creolization and in questioning the usefulness of retention survival and continuity as operational concepts in comparative research Within this context of furthering and challenging Turner's work in the barrier islands and in seeking a truer measure of both African and Caribbean influences there the contributors cover such topics as names and naming the language of religious rituals basket making traditions creole discourse patterns and the grammatical morphology of Gullah and related creole and pidgin languages Other contributors consider the substrate contributions and African continuities to be found in New World language patterns into new patterns adapted to the various situations in the New World Opening new and advancing previous areas of research The Crucible of Carolina also contributes to a further appreciation of the richness and diversity of South Carolina s cultural heritage
