Critical Essays Georges Bataille, 2022-12-06 This first book in a three volume collection of Georges Bataille's essays introduces English readers to his philosophical and critical writings In the aftermath of the Second World War French thinker and writer Georges Bataille forged a singular path through the moral and political impasses of his age In 1946 animated by a need to live events in an increasingly conscious way and to reject any compartmentalization of intellectual life Bataille founded the journal Critique Adopting the format of the review essay he surveyed the post war cultural landscape while advancing his reflections on excess non knowledge and the general economy Focusing on literature as a mode of sovereign uselessness he tackled prominent and divisive figures such as Henry Miller and Albert Camus In keeping with Critique's mission to explore the totality of human knowledge Bataille's articles did not just focus on the literary but featured important reflections on the science of sexuality the Chinese Revolution and historical accounts of drunkenness among other matters Throughout he was attuned to how humanity would deal with the excessive forces of production and destruction it had unleashed his aim being a way of thinking and living that would inhabit that excess This is the first of three volumes collecting Bataille's post war essays Beginning with an article on Nietzsche and fascism written shortly after the liberation of Paris and running to the end of 1948 these texts make available for the first time in English the systematic diversity of Bataille's post war thought

Critical Essays Georges Bataille, 2024-12-06 An introduction for English language readers to Georges Bataille's postwar philosophical and critical writings In the aftermath of World War II French thinker and writer Georges Bataille forged a singular path through the moral and political impasses of his age In 1946 animated by a need to live events in an increasingly conscious way and to reject any compartmentalization of intellectual life Bataille founded the journal Critique Continuing the publication of his postwar writings this second book in a three volume collection of Bataille's work collects his essays and reviews from the years 1949 to 1951 In this period of intellectual isolation and intense reflection Bataille developed and refined his genealogy of morality through a sustained reflection on the fate of the sacred in the modern world He offered a critique of the limits of existing morality especially in its denial of excess while sketching the lineaments of a new hyper morality Bataille's wide ranging reflections are true to the intellectual mission of Critique which he founded as a space open to the broadest considerations of the present As well as discussing significant figures like Samuel Beckett Andr Gide and Ren Char Bataille also offers fascinating reflections on American politics Nazism existentialism materialism and play The connecting thread in these diverse essays remains Bataille s concern with the extremes of human experience and the possibilities of transcending the limits of societies founded on utility and restraint His writings remain a provocative incitement to rethink the boundaries we impose on expression and existence Trajectories

Companion to the French Novel Karen L. Taylor,2006 French novels such as Madame Bovary and The Stranger are staples of high school and college literature courses This work provides coverage of the French novel since its origins in the 16th century with an emphasis on novels most commonly studied in high school and college courses in world literature and in French culture and civilization A Companion to Continental Philosophy Simon Critchley,William R.

Schroeder,1998-06-08 Covering the complete development of post Kantian Continental philosophy this volume serves as an essential reference work for philosophers and those engaged in the many disciplines that are integrally related to Continental and European Philosophy Aesthetics of Negativity William S. Allen,2016-04-01 Maurice Blanchot and Theodor W

Adorno are among the most difficult but also the most profound thinkers in twentieth century aesthetics While their methods and perspectives differ widely they share a concern with the negativity of the artwork conceived in terms of either its experience and possibility or its critical expression Such negativity is neither nihilistic nor pessimistic but concerns the status of the artwork and its autonomy in relation to its context or its experience For both Blanchot and Adorno negativity is the key to understanding the status of the artwork in post Kantian aesthetics and although it indicates how art expresses critical possibilities albeit negatively it also shows that art bears an irreducible ambiguity such that its meaning can always negate itself This ambiguity takes on an added material significance when considered in relation to language as the negativity of the work becomes aesthetic in the further sense of being both sensible and experimental and in doing so the language of the literary work becomes a form of thinking that enables materiality to be thought in its ambiguity In a series of rich and compelling readings William S Allen shows how an original and rigorous mode of thinking arises within Blanchot s early writings and how Adorno s aesthetics depends on a relation between language and materiality that has been widely overlooked Furthermore by reconsidering the problem of the autonomous work of art in terms of literature a central issue in modernist aesthetics is given a greater critical and material relevance as a mode of thinking that is abstract and concrete rigorous and ambiguous While examples of this kind of writing can be found in the works of Blanchot and Beckett the demands that such texts place on readers only confirm the challenges and the possibilities that literary autonomy poses to thought Max Weber and Michel Foucault Arpad Szakolczai, 2013-09-13 Max Weber and Michael Foucault are among the most controversial and fascinating thinkers of our century This book is the first to jointly analyse them in detail and to make effective links between their lives and work it coincides with a substantial resurgence of interest in their writings The author s exciting interpretative approach reveals a new dimension in reading the work of Foucault and Weber it will be invaluable to students and those researching in sociology and philosophy The Postmodern Saints of France Colby

Dickinson, 2013-07-18 From the mid to the late 20th century various French thinkers have at times toyed with the label of the saint applying it to friends colleagues the revered and even the worshipped such as Genet Sartre Camus or Foucault Despite this profaning of the term however here are many subtle truths which emerge from its usage among such writers This volume is devoted to exploring certain varied notions of the saint in recent French philosophical and literary thought from within a theological context offering insights and valuable contributions toward how we understand sainthood in cultural philosophical and religious terms Each essay focuses on the convergence of a particular author s work and their various re formulations of saintliness in their writings whether this concept is directly expressed in their writings or not In general the aim of the volume is to develop a critical engagement between each authors philosophical worldview and historical notions of sainthood such that we are capable of providing new understandings of what a saint could be said to be in our world today

John Shannon Hendrix, 2005 The Symposium and the aesthetics of Plotinus The aesthetics of Schelling Plotinian hypostases in Hegel s Phenomenology of spirit The aesthetics of Hegel Architecture and the philosophy of spirit Plotinus Estetik Schelling Friedrich Wilhelm Joseph von 1775 1854 Estetik Hegel Georg Friedrich Wilhelm 1770 1831 Estetik Estetik Tarih Sacred Surrealism, Dissidence and International Avant-Garde Prose Vivienne Brough-Evans, 2016-05-05 Vivienne Brough Evans proposes a compelling new way of reevaluating aspects of international surrealism by means of the category of divin fou and consequently deploys theories of sacred ecstasy as developed by the Coll ge de Sociologie 1937 39 as a critical tool in shedding new light on the literary oeuvre of non French writers who worked both within and against a surrealist framework

The minor surrealist genre of prose literature is considered herein rather than surrealism's mainstay poetry with the intention of fracturing preconceptions regarding the medium of surrealist expression. The aim is to explore whether International surrealism can begin to be more fully explained by an occluded strain of dissident surrealist thought that searches outside the self through the affects of ekstasis. Bretonian surrealism is widely discussed in the field of surrealist studies and there is a need to consider what is left out of surrealist practice when analysed through this Bretonian lens. The Collège de Sociologie and Georges Bataille's theories provide a model of such elements of dissident surrealism which is used to analyse surrealist or surrealist influenced prose by Alejo Carpentier, Leonora Carrington and Gellu Naum respectively representing postcolonial feminist and Balkan locutions. The Collège and Bataille's dissident surrealism diverges significantly from the concerns and approach towards the subject explored by surrealism. Using the concept of ekstasis to organise Bataille's theoretical ideas of excess and inner experience and the Collège's thoughts on the sacred it is possible to propose a new way of reading types of International surrealist literature many of which do not come to the forefront of the surrealist literary oeuvre.

Washed in Blood Claire Sisco King, 2011-11-25 Will Smith in I Am Legend Leonardo DiCaprio in Titanic Charlton Heston in just about everything. Viewers of Hollywood action films are no doubt familiar with the sacrificial victim hero the male protagonist who nobly gives up his life so that others may be saved. Washed in Blood argues that such sacrificial films are especially prominent in eras when the nation and American manhood is thought to be in crisis. The sacrificial victim hero continually imperiled and frequently exhibiting classic symptoms of post traumatic stress disorder thus bears the trauma of the nation. Claire Sisco King offers an in depth study of three prominent cycles of Hollywood films that follow the sacrificial narrative the early to mid 1970s the mid to late 1990s and the mid to late 2000s. From Vietnam era disaster movies to post 9/11 apocalyptic thrillers she examines how each film represents traumatized American masculinity and national identity. What she uncovers is a cinematic tendency to position straight white men as America's most valuable citizens and its noblest victims.

Sabotage Art Sophie Halart, Mara Polgovsky Ezcurra, 2016-03-31 Sabotage is the deliberate disruption of a dominant system be it political military or economic. Yet in recent decades sabotage has also become an artistic strategy most notably in Latin America. In Brazil Colombia Mexico Chile and Argentina artists are producing radical unruly or even iconoclastic work that resists state violence social conformity and the commodification of art. Sabotage Art reveals how contemporary Latin American artists have resorted to sabotage strategies as a means to bridge the gap between aesthetics and politics. The global status of and market for Latin American art is growing rapidly. This book is essential reading for those who want to understand this new dissident work as well as its mystification co option and commercialisation within current academic historiographies and art world curatorial initiatives.

Rethinking the Political Simonetta Falasca-Zamponi, 2011 A compelling account of a controversial and innovative episode in sociological thought.

I was a Cold War Monster Cynthia Hendershot, 2001 Horror films provide a guide to many of the sociological fears of the Cold War era In an age when warning audiences of impending death was the order of the day for popular nonfiction horror films provided an area where this fear could be lived out to its ghastly conclusion Because enemies and potential situations of fear lurked everywhere within the home the government the family and the very self horror films could speak to the invasive fears of the cold war era I Was a Cold War Monster examines cold war anxieties as they were reflected in British and American films from the fifties through the early sixties This study examines how cold war horror films combined anxiety over social change with the erotic in such films as Psycho The Tinseltown Girl The Horror of Dracula and House of Wax

Posing Sex Alan Singer, 2018-04-19 Posing Sex Toward a Perceptual Ethics for Literary and Visual Art views the long and provocative tradition of representing the sexual act in Western art as an occasion for challenging assumptions about personhood It is uncontroversial that what Singer dubs the sex image the artist's posing of human figures in the act of coitus is an enduring compositional armature for artists from antiquity to the present Singer however makes the quite controversial claim that this aesthetic practice in literature and painting especially serves as a powerful medium for exploring how the mind is continuous with the sensuously lively body rather than its rationalistic antagonist Singer draws upon a rich philosophical tradition from the Greek Stoics Descartes Spinoza and Hegel to contemporary theorists of perception and aesthetic agency to show how the stakes of aesthetic experience epitomized in the sex image are essentially ethical Referencing a broad range of image based artworks literary painterly and cinematic Singer illustrates the proposition that posing sex broadens the scope of our knowledge about how feeling reciprocates with reason giving

Touched Bodies Mara Polgovsky Ezcurra, 2019-06-21 Shortlisted for the 2020 Association for the Study of the Arts of the Present Book Prize Winner of the 2019 Art Journal Prize from the College Art Association What is the role of pleasure and pain in the politics of art In Touched Bodies Mara Polgovsky Ezcurra approaches this question as she examines the flourishing of live and intermedial performance in Latin America during times of authoritarianism and its significance during transitions to democracy Based on original documents and innovative readings her book brings politics and ethics to the discussion of artistic developments during the long 1980s She describes the rise of performance art in the context of feminism HIV activism and human right movements taking a close look at the work of Diamela Eltit and Raúl Zurita from Chile León Ferrari and Liliana Maresca from Argentina and Marcos Kurtz the No Grupo art collective and Proceso Penguino from Mexico The comparative study of the work of these artists attests to a performative turn in Latin American art during the 1980s that like photography and film before recast the artistic field as a whole changing the ways in which we perceive art and understand its role in society
