

Compiling an Annotated Bibliography

The format and purpose of an annotated bibliography can vary; therefore, it is important that you ask your instructor for specific guidelines.

- A bibliography is a list of sources used to research a topic. A bibliography may include books, journals, periodicals, websites, and other forms of media. A typical entry includes bibliographic information such as author, title, and publication information.
- An annotated bibliography is a list of sources in which each entry offers bibliographic information as well as an account of the content of the source.

There are two types of annotations: descriptive and evaluative.
Check with your instructor to see which type of annotation he/she requires.

Descriptive

The descriptive annotation may follow the paraphrase format or the commentary format.

Paraphrase

- A paraphrase annotation provides a summary of the information offered in the source. This type of annotation should focus on the major points addressed by the work. It is not necessary to recount every topic mentioned in the publication, but the reader should have a good understanding of what is contained within the source. A paraphrase annotation tells the reader what the source says.
- It may help to think about the answers to these questions:
 - What is the author's primary purpose or argument?
 - What are the main points of the source?
 - What topics are covered in the source?
 - If someone asked you what the source is about, what would you say?¹
- A paraphrase annotation should be composed of complete sentences.

Example:

Endicott, Annabel. "Tip, Philip and Astrophel: Dickens' Debt to Sidney?" Dickensian, 63(1966) 158-62.

Sidney was the inspiration of Dickens's concept a gentleman as given in Great Expectations. Philip and Estella have parallels with Philip and Stella. Both Philips love married women of higher rank; both have friends who try to dissuade them. The words "great expectations" occur in Sonnet 21. Dickens may have been exploring the idea of the Petrarchan convention; certainly Estella resembles the Petrarchan mistress.²

Practical Handbook to Dissertation and Thesis Writing NDALAHWA MUSA MASANJA, In most higher learning institutions a thesis or dissertation represents a significant part of research task that leads to the contribution toward the body of knowledge in a given field. Normally the two terms Dissertation and Thesis are used interchangeably. However, dissertation refers to a research work which requires course work in a particular program, while occasionally thesis is applied for research work without course work. For this reason, most of the programs in graduate level require a student to either write a dissertation or a thesis. Every institution has a format or guideline of preparing a dissertation or thesis. Therefore, every student or researcher should take into consideration the guidelines provided by their institutions. This book provides broad practical guidelines to prepare a research proposal and dissertation or thesis report. It is a step by step guide for writing a dissertation or thesis.

Academic Writing Andrew P. Johnson, 2016-05-08 This book provides a foundation and framework to enhance your understanding of the various processes involved in academic writing. The term academic writing here refers to the types of writing used in college level writing courses at both the undergraduate and graduate level. However, this book was not written simply to help you pass another English class or to get you through the next writing intensive course, although it will certainly do that. At some point you will be out in the real world, hopefully. Thus the purpose of this book is to enable you to be an effective writer and thinker in all contexts, including your personal and professional lives.

Successful Academic Writing Anneliese A. Singh, Lauren Lukkarila, 2017-05-23 Subject Areas: Keywords: academic writing, behavioral sciences, dissertations, empirical articles, graduate students, graduate writing, journal articles, peer reviewed articles, publications, research articles, research methods, research reporting, research reports, scholarly writing, social sciences, thesis.

DESCRIPTION Using rich examples and engaging pedagogical tools, this book equips students to master the challenges of academic writing in graduate school and beyond The authors delve into nitty gritty aspects of structure style and language and offer a window onto the thought processes and strategies that strong writers rely on Essential topics include how to identify the audience for a particular piece of writing craft a voice appropriate for a discipline specific community of practice compose the sections of a qualitative quantitative or mixed methods research article select the right peer reviewed journal for submitting an article and navigate the publication process Readers are also guided to build vital self coaching skills in order to stay motivated and complete projects successfully

Building Writing Center Assessments That Matter Ellen Schendel, William J. Macauley, 2012-10-16 No less than other divisions of the college or university contemporary writing centers find themselves within a galaxy of competing questions and demands that relate to assessment questions and demands that usually embed priorities from outside the purview of the writing center itself Writing centers are used to certain kinds of assessment both quantitative and qualitative but are often unprepared to address larger institutional or societal issues In Building Writing Center Assessments that Matter Schendel and Macauley start from the kinds of assessment strengths already in place in writing centers and they build a framework that can help writing centers satisfy local needs and put them in useful dialogue with the larger needs of their institutions while staying rooted in writing assessment theory The authors begin from the position that tutoring writers is already an assessment activity and that good assessment practice rooted in the work of Adler Kassner O Neill Moore and Huot already reflects the values of writing center theory and practice They offer examples of assessments developed in local contexts and of how assessment data built within those contexts can powerfully inform decisions and shape the futures of local writing centers With additional contributions by Neal Lerner Brian Huot and Nicole Caswell and with a strong commitment to honoring on site local needs the volume does not advocate a one size fits all answer But like the modeling often used in a writing consultation examples here illustrate how important assessment principles have been applied in a range of local contexts Ultimately Building Writing Assessments that Matter describes a theory stance toward assessment for writing centers that honors the uniqueness of the writing center context and examples of assessment in action that are concrete manageable portable and adaptable
