the other hand tend to fall more under the purview of philosophers in particular social and political philosophers Further to obtain an insider's view on practice and possibilities the volume includes essays from a handful of thoughtful business leaders Research should consider not just how to make sustainability profitable but also how to make profitability and the modern economic system sustainable If we are to better comprehend why the world is in protest to reflect on progress or dilemmas of trust we must appreciate the tenuous assumptions of modern microeconomics and markets and hear from modern philosophers about the basis and limits of rationality Stock Market Logic Norman G. ranking exercises this book is a timely and welcome contribution Linda Wedlin unpacks for us the real meaning of the contemporary explosion of rankings Rather than simple classification schemes and mechanisms rankings are she suggests arenas where the field of business education is being created and re created They are the loci of boundary work whereby a field is progressively evolving and constituting itself This is a convincing study relying on rich empirical data and carefully anchored in relevant theoretical debates A must read for all those academics students policy makers and education professionals who want to understand the complex contemporary logics of higher education in management but also probably well beyond Marie Laure Djelic ESSEC Business School Paris France League tables appear everywhere and have become important aspects of business school environments Based on in depth and creatively combined empirical studies Linda Wedlin provides us with explanations and insights on the emergence and impact of such rankings This book should be of great value for all those who seek to play the ranking game It gives a fresh perspective on how classification mechanisms drive the emergence boundary setting and change of organizational fields Kerstin Sahlin Andersson Uppsala University Sweden A fascinating study of the complex issues surrounding MBA rankings Business schools really hate them but at times have to pretend to love them Magazines and newspapers are really interested in their sales potential but have to make pretensions about their veracity Linda Wedlin focuses on an area rich in hypocrisy and hype but also one where there are real consequences ranking furthered re inforces the homogenising tendencies of MBAs Anthony Hopwood Sa d Business School University of Oxford UK This is a most fascinating topic dealt with in a manner which is both serious and entertaining everyone in a business school would want to read it Linda Wedlin s excellent research is presented with a no nonsense approach if there is anything worth counting she counts it and then interprets it no fuss Exemplary Barbara Czarniawska G teborg University Sweden This engaging book offers a fresh perspective on the burgeoning field of European management education and its intense concern with rankings Using a creative mix of well crafted research tools Wedlin deftly captures a professional field in transition as it both expands and develops shared standards Walter W Powell Stanford University US International comparisons and rankings of universities and business schools have proliferated in recent years Ranking Business Schools provides a welcome analysis of this development and its implications for the field of management education theorizing the role of classifications such as rankings in forming and structuring organizational fields Focusing on the European experience with rankings and the subsequent response the book illustrates how business schools use rankings to form identities and positions and to draw boundaries for the field By both creating and confirming belonging to a business school community and providing distinction within that group rankings are important for defining an international field of management education organizations constructing an international business school market and constitute an arena for debating and establishing the boundaries of this field Building an extensive theoretical framework for understanding classification

The Theory of Social Democracy Thomas Meyer, 2013-09-30 The ascendancy of neo liberalism in different parts of the world has put social democracy on the defensive. Its adherents lack a clear rationale for their policies. Yet a justification for social democracy is implicit in the United Nations Covenants on Human Rights ratified by most of the world's countries. The covenants commit all nations to guarantee that their citizens shall enjoy the traditional formal rights but they likewise pledge governments to make those rights meaningful in the real world by providing social security and cultural recognition to every person. This new book provides a systematic defence of social democracy for our contemporary global age. The authors argue that the claims to legitimation implicit in democratic theory can be honored only by social democracy. Libertarian democracies are defective in failing to protect their citizens adequately against social, economic and environmental risks that only collective action can obviate. Ultimately social democracy provides both a fairer and more stable social order. But can social democracy survive in a world characterized by pervasive processes of globalization? This book asserts that globalization need not undermine social democracy if it is harnessed by international associations and leavened by principles of cultural respect, toleration and enlightenment. The structures of social democracy must in short be adapted to the exigencies of globalization as has already occurred in countries with the most successful social democratic practices.

Capital in Higher Education Krystian Szadkowski, 2023-08-26. This book offers a systematic, sectoral and in-depth Marxist perspective on the critique of political economy of higher education. It proposes an original method of analysis of higher education as a field of capitalist production grounded at the intersection of mainstream higher education research and contemporary debates in Marxist theories. At the same time, it imbues a political perspective based on the embedding of higher education within the wider social network of antagonistic relations that traverse the capitalist economy at large.

The Marketization of Nonprofits Sophie Hersberger-Langlois, 2020-12-18. This thesis deals with the concept and consequences of marketization in the nonprofit sector.

Marketization describes the process of nonprofit organizations becoming more business like and is caused among other things by increased competition for scarce resources the rise of professionalism and calls for more transparency and efficiency by funders and the public Research about marketization is inconclusive some researchers believe marketization can increase not only efficiency but also effectiveness of organizations while others fear that nonprofits lose their focus on a social mission The four articles presented in this thesis focus on the theoretical and practical implications of nonprofits relying more on earned income a dominant feature of marketization and nonprofits actively and passively adopting management practices and tools from the for profit sector another key characteristic of increased marketization The results show that marketization can increase the economic and social performance of an organization and when handled well and implemented through a clear strategic focus foster mission achievement Particularly the focus on beneficiaries and internal processes can help organizations to better fulfill their mission A loss of focus on the mission must be feared if regulatory forces act on the organization without a simultaneous professionalization of management or if an organization focuses too much on its competitors

Society of Singularities Andreas Reckwitz, 2020-04-21 Our contemporary societies place more and more emphasis on the singular and the unique The industrial societies of the early 20th century produced standardized products cities subjects and organizations which tended to look the same but in our late modern societies we value the exceptional unique objects experiences places individuals events and communities which are beyond the ordinary and which claim a certain authenticity Industrial society's logic of the general has been replaced by late modernity's logic of the particular In this major new book Andreas Reckwitz examines the causes structures and consequences of the society of singularities in which we now live The transformation from industrial to cultural capitalism the rise of digital technologies and their culture machine and the emergence of an educated urban new middle class form a powerful engine for the singularization of the social In late modernity what is singular is valorized and stirs the emotions while what is general has to remain in the background and this has profound social consequences The society of singularities systematically produces devaluation and inequality winner takes all markets job polarization the neglect of rural regions and the alienation of the traditional middle class The emergence of populism and the rise of aggressive forms of nationalism which emphasize the cultural authenticity of one's own people thus turn out to be the other side of singularization This prize winning book offers a new perspective on how modern societies have changed in recent decades and it will be of great value to anyone interested in the forces that are shaping our world today
