Roehner, 2012-12-06 Book titles because they are compromises between concision and precision provide but an approximate description of real content For this book an alternative and more comprehensive title would be An investigation of spatial arbitrage as an introduction to the theory of commodity markets trade and space time patterns of price fluctuations In this title both the specificities and the limitations of our approach are emphasized Firstly our approach concentrates on the basic mechanisms of spatial arbitrage leaving aside a number of accessory facets of international trade such as the impact of quotas or of exchange rates Secondly for the sake of simplicity we restrict ourselves to single commodity markets the interrelationship of different goods on multi commodity markets are only occasionally mentioned The previous restrictions however drastic they may at first appear delimit and define what can be considered as the core of the process of trade and of spatial transactions Having thus simplified the object of our study we are able to tackle the problem in a systematic way and to model spatial differentials along with their relationships to the volume of trade both in equilibrium and in non equilibrium situations As far as the subtitle of the book is concerned we shall postpone the discussion of what is meant by the expression analytical economics until the concluding chapter Technical Bulletin, 1973 Free market economics Bettina Bien Greaves, 1977 Foreign Agricultural Economic Report, 1971 Technology, Sustainability, and Rural Development in Africa Blessing M. Modeling Mineral and Energy Markets Walter C. Labys, 2012-12-06 This book provides a framework for analyzing and forecasting a variety of mineral and energy markets and related industries Such modeling activity has been at the forefront of the economic and engineering professions for some time having received a major stimulus following the first oil price shock in 1973 Since that time other shocks have affected these markets and industries causing disequilibrium economic adjustments which are difficult to analyze and to predict Moreover geopolitics remains an important factor which can destabilize crude oil markets and associated refining industries Mineral and energy modeling consequently has become a major interest of energy related corporations mining and drilling companies metal manufacturers public utilities investment banks national government agencies and international organizations This book hopes to advance mineral and energy modeling as follows 1 The modeling process is presented sequentially by leading the model builder from model specification estimation simulation and validation to practical model applications including explaining history analyzing policy and market and price forecasting 2 New developments in modeling approaches are presented which encompass econometric market and industry models spatial equilibrium and programming models optimal resource depletion models input output models economic sector models and macro oriented energy interaction models including computable general equilibrium 3 The verification and application of the models is considered not only individually but also in relation to the performance of alternative modeling approaches and 4 The modeling framework includes a perspective on new directions so that the present model building advice will extend into the future The European Union Ali El-Agraa, 2007-08-09 The European Union provides a comprehensive introduction to the economics and policies of the EU Swedish Economics Bo Sandelin,1998

This set reprints works by and about Swedish economists working between the turn of the century and 1960 The editor provides an overview of Swedish economics as well as growth and specialization within the discipline Interregional Competition in Agriculture Ronald Lester Mighell,John Donald Black,Harvard University. Committee on Research in the Social Sciences,United States. Bureau of Agricultural Economics,1951 Agricultural planning individual or national depends on an understanding of competition in farm products between one region of the United States and another The agriculture of different parts of the United States competes constantly with that of other parts as for example the early competition in cotton between the northern frontier and southern growers later between the southwest frontier and the Old South and recently between California and the South There is equally strong competition between potato growing regions It is this inter regional competition in a country with no trade barriers which two outstanding economists analyze in this book They present the results of a concrete study of one outstanding example competition in dairy production between the Northeastern States and the Lake States of the central Midwest for the New England market for fluid milk and cream Six selected sample areas were analyzed carefully in each region in 1935 36 and predictions were made about future production and marketing of dairy products in each of these areas Ten years later these areas were surveyed and the production changes compared with the predictions The authors conclusions about the conditions under which New England will be able to continue to compete with the lake states for the New England market are significant in themselves Even more important however is the development of a method of analysis which can be widely employed to furnish the information which is needed to guide future developments in the agriculture of the United States or in any other country This study is therefore an important contribution to the theory of interregional and international trade Situation and Outlook Series ,1988 Food Security in Africa Alexander Sarris,2010-01-01 As they often do Jamie Morrison and Alexander Sarris have provided researchers policy makers and the interested public with the firm empirical grounding needed for sound agricultural development policies They have synthesized from a rich and varied set of country studies a unique contribution to one of the key challenges of our times increasing the productivity of smallholder food production in the age of globalization Timothy A Wise Tufts University US Food security has been a major concern in Africa for decades and a more pressing problem with recent increases in food prices The editors and contributors to this volume are experts in the field and should be commended for a timely informative and in places challenging analysis of food production and markets in eastern and southern Africa The volume brings a refreshing variety of theoretical analytical and informed case study approaches to bear on the food security problem it should be read by anybody seriously interested in African development Oliver Morrissey University of Nottingham UK Drawing on insights from theoretical applications empirically based approaches and case study experience this book contributes to the improved design and use of trade and related policy interventions in staple food markets Trade policy interventions have a potentially critical role to play in the development of staple food markets in developing countries and as a source of revenue in wider processes of rural development Governments have long defended trade and related policy interventions in staple food markets on the basis of food security concerns However the design and implementation of these policies has often resulted in unintended impacts increasing the risks faced by private sector actors and reducing their incentives for investment in improved market performance In the context of increasingly volatile staple food markets this book commissioned from leading experts in this field seeks to enhance dialogue between stakeholders involved in and affected by the design and use of trade and related policy interventions This significant book will appeal to policy analysts and decision makers influential in the design and implementation of trade and related market interventions as well as students of development economics Researchers contributing to debates on the use and impacts of trade and related market interventions in staple food markets in poor countries will also find this volume of great benefit
