Markets In Early Medieval Europe:

Markets in Early Medieval Europe Tim Pestell, Katharina Ulmschneider, 2003 The identification of productive sites mostly through the detection of coins has increasingly shown how economic and cultural exchange went on not just in coastal ports but at a myriad of other places many of them inland

Markets in Early Medieval Europe Tim Pestell, Katharina Ulmschneider, 2003-12-01 Major sites such as Hamwic and Dorestad typically dominate any discussion of early medieval trade and emporia this study is altogether atypical in many ways Comprising nineteen papers taken from a conference held at Worcester College Oxford in 2000 the focus here is very much on the smaller more rural trading centres and inland markets of Northern Europe The contributors reflect very different approaches to the material including studies that examine up to date historical archaeological and numismatic evidence from Britain Denmark the Netherlands Norway and Sweden dating from the 7th to 9th century The authors consider the rather controversial use of metal detecting in identifying and defining new sites and patterns of interaction and exchange highlighting its positive contribution Contributors include Mark Blackburn David Griffiths Lars Jorgensen Michael Metcalf Julian D Richards Peter Sawyer and Astrid Tummuscheit

Early Medieval Monetary History Martin Allen, 2016-12-05 Mark Blackburn was one of the leading scholars of the numismatics and monetary history of the British Isles and Scandinavia during the early medieval period He published more than 200 books and articles on the subject and was instrumental in building bridges between numismatics and associated disciplines in fostering international communication and cooperation and in establishing initiatives to record new coin finds This memorial volume of essays commemorates Mark Blackburn's considerable achievement and impact on the field builds on his research and evaluates a vibrant period in the study of early medieval monetary history Containing a broad range of high quality research from both established figures and younger scholars the essays in this volume maintain a tight focus on Europe in the early Middle Ages 6th 12th centuries reflecting Mark's primary research interests In geographical terms the scope of the volume stretches from Spain to the Baltic with a concentration of papers on the British Isles As well as a fitting tribute to remarkable scholar the essays in this collection constitute a major body of research which will be of long term value to anyone with an interest in the history of early medieval Europe

Money and the Church in Medieval Europe, 1000-1200 Giles E. M. Gasper, Svein H. Gullbekk, 2016-03-09 Bringing together essays from experts in a variety of disciplines this collection explores two of the most important facets of life within the medieval Europe money and the church By focusing on the interactions between these subjects the volume addresses four key themes Firstly it offers new perspectives on the role of churchmen in providing conceptual frameworks from outright condemnation to sophisticated economic theory for the use and purpose of money within medieval society Secondly it discusses the dichotomy of money for the church and its officers on one hand voices emphasise the moral difficulties in engaging with money on the other the reality of the ubiquitous use of money in the church at all levels and in places within Christendom Thirdly it places in dialogue interdisciplinary perspectives and approaches and evidence from philosophy history literature and material culture to the issues of money and church Lastly the volume provides new perspectives on the role of the church in the process of monetization in the High Middle Ages Concentrating on northern Europe from the early eleventh century to the beginning of the thirteenth century the collection is able to explore the profound changes in the use of money and the rise of a money economy that this period and region witnessed By adopting a multi disciplinary approach the collection challenges current understanding of how money was perceived understood and used by medieval clergy in a range of different contexts It furthermore provides wide ranging contributions to the broader economic and ethical issues of the period demonstrating how the church became a major force in the process of monetization

An Eoraip: Gaelic Ireland in Medieval and Early Modern Europe, 2025-08-14 Medieval and early modern Irish scholars thought of themselves as Europeans As an expression of territorial association this belief reflects both their familiarity with the geographical traditions of Antiquity and the integration of their society into economic cultural and political networks that spanned the continent But it was also an articulation of a perceived cultural affinity often denied in modern scholarship The chapters in this volume examine the many and various ways that Gaelic Ireland was integrated into the broader European world focusing on literature and learning real world politics economics and travel and questions of identity Contributors are Rachel Brody Michael Clarke Simon Egan Deborah Hayden Brendan Kane Victoria L McAlister Ken Donnchu Patricia Palmer Brian Stone and Patrick Wadden

Symbolic Reproduction in Early Medieval England Katharine Sykes, 2024-07-12 In the early Middle Ages the conversion of the early English kingdoms acted as a catalyst for significant social and cultural change One of the most visible of these changes was the introduction of a new type of household the monastic household These reproduced through education and training rather than biological means their inhabitants practised celibacy as a lifelong state rather than as a stage in the life course Because monastic households depended on secular households to produce the next generation of recruits previous studies have tended to view them as more mutable than their secular counterparts which are implicitly regarded as natural and ahistorical Katharine Sykes charts some of the significant changes to the structure of households between the seventh to eleventh centuries as ideas of spiritual non biological reproduction first fostered in monastic households were adopted in royal households in the tenth and eleventh centuries and as ideas about kinship that were generated in secular households such as the relationship between genealogy and inheritance were picked up and applied by their monastic counterparts In place of binary divisions between secular and monastic biological and spiritual real and imagined Sykes demonstrates that different forms of kinship and reproduction in this period were intimately linked Money and the Church in Medieval Europe, 1000-1200 Dr Giles E M Gasper, Professor Svein H. Gullbekk, 2015-05-28 Bringing together essays from experts in a variety of disciplines this collection focuses on the interaction between money and the church in northern Europe in order to challenge current understanding of how money was perceived understood and used by medieval clergy in a range of contexts It provides wide ranging contributions to the broader economic and ethical issues of the period demonstrating how the church became a major force in the process of monetization The Crowd in the Early Middle Ages Shane Bobrycki, 2024-11-19 The importance of collective behavior in early medieval Europe By the fifth and sixth centuries the bread and circuses and triumphal processions of the Roman Empire had given way to a quieter world And yet as Shane Bobrycki argues the influence and importance of the crowd did not disappear in early medieval Europe In The Crowd in the Early Middle Ages Bobrycki shows that although demographic change may have dispersed the urban multitudes of Greco Roman civilization collective behavior retained its social importance even when crowds were scarce Most historians have seen early medieval Europe as a world without crowds In fact Bobrycki argues early medieval European sources are full of crowds although perhaps not the sort historians have trained themselves to look for Harvests markets festivals religious rites and political assemblies were among the gatherings used to regulate resources and demonstrate legitimacy Indeed the refusal to assemble and other forms of slantwise assembly became a weapon of the powerless Bobrycki investigates what happened when demographic realities shifted but culture religion and politics remained bound by the past The history of crowds during the five hundred years between the age of circuses and the age of crusades Bobrycki shows tells an important story one of systemic and scalar change in economic and social life and of reorganization in the world of ideas and norms The Heirs of the Roman West Joachim Henning, 2009-05-05 In this collection leading international authorities analyse the structures and economic functions of non agrarian centres between ca 500 and 1000 A D their trade their surrounding settlements and the agricultural and cultural milieux The thirty one papers presented at an international conference held in Bad Homburg focus on recent archaeological discoveries in Central Europe Vol 1 as well as on those from southeastern Europe to Asia Minor Vol 2 Coinage and Coin Use in Medieval Italy Alessia Rovelli, 2023-05-31 The volume gathers together seventeen articles dedicated to the monetary history of medieval Italy most of them newly translated into English The articles in the first section of the volume trace the development of monetisation in Italy from the Lombard period until the rise of the communes taking Rome Lazio Tuscany and several cities and regions in north central Italy as case studies The articles in the second section analyse different aspects of monetary production and circulation in Byzantine Italy while the third gathers together studies on various aspects of Carolingian coinage the transition from the Lombard system and the problem of furnishing an adequate supply of silver mints and royal administration and the activity and inactivity of mints operating at the edges of the Regnum Italiae All of the articles share the author's characteristic concern with setting the evidence from written sources against the wealth of new data emerging from recent archaeological research

A Cultural History of Work in the Medieval Age Valerie L. Garver, 2020-09-17 Winner of the 2020 PROSE Award for Multivolume Reference Humanities Work was central to medieval life Religious and secular authorities generally expected almost everyone to work Artistic and literary depictions underlined work's cultural value The vast majority of medieval people engaged in agriculture because it was the only way they could obtain food Yet their work led to innovations in technology and production and allowed others to engage in specialized labor helping to drive the growth of cities Many workers moved to seek employment and to improve their living conditions For those who could not work charity was often available and many individuals and institutions provided forms of social welfare Guilds protected their members and created means for the transmission of skills When they were not at work medieval Christians were to meet their religious obligations yet many also enjoyed various pastimes A consideration of medieval work is therefore one of medieval society in all its creativity and complexity and that is precisely what this volume provides

A Cultural History of Work in the Medieval Age presents an overview of the period with essays on economies representations of work workplaces work cultures technology mobility society politics and leisure

The Archaeology of the East Anglian Conversion Richard Hoggett, 2010 The huge changes in the landscape as a result of the Christian conversion of East Anglia are examined in this multi disciplinary study The conversion to Christianity of the Anglo Saxon kingdom of East Anglia left huge marks on the area both metaphorical and literal Drawing on both the surviving documentary sources and on the eastern region's rich archaeological record this book presents the first multi disciplinary synthesis of the process It begins with an analysis of the historical framework followed by an examination of the archaeological evidence for the establishment of missionary stations within the region's ruinous Roman forts and earthwork enclosures It argues that the effectiveness of the Christian mission is clearly visible in the region's burial record which exhibits a number of significant changes including the cessation of cremation The conversion can also be seen in the dramatic upheavals which occurred in the East Anglian landscape including changes in the relationship between settlements and cemeteries and the foundation of a number of different types of Christian cemetery Ultimately it shows that far from being the preserve of kings the East Anglian conversion was widespread at a grassroots level changing the nature of the Anglo Saxon landscape forever Dr RICHARD

HOGGETT is currently Coastal Heritage Officer with Norfolk County Council Cultivating the City in Early Medieval Italy
