The War Between the State and the Family Patricia Morgan,2017-07-28 Patricia Morgan's core assumption is that the family is an extremely effective vehicle for raising the welfare of its members If this is correct it is quite possible that the state can best support the family by doing very little by not taxing the family heavily and by minimizing the subsidization of those who choose alternatives to financially self-sustaining family life At one level Morgan argues the family can be seen as a unit within which there occurs enormous transfer of economic resources between husband and wife parents and children and on a wider scale within extended families The family is the most important vehicle of welfare and the welfare vehicle of first resort Within the family many services are provided by family members to each other rarely for direct personal benefit Basic economic analysis Morgan asserts suggests that the family could be seriously undermined if the state provided significant support for dependents who are not brought up within self-sustaining family units and if it also provided services such as childcare that are generally provided within families This work shows that this is precisely what has happened in the last twenty-five years The driving force of significantly reduced family formation is not economic but social Perhaps social changes have led to a desire by individuals to bring up children in family circumstances different from those of a generation or two ago but evidence does not support this hypothesis Rather tax and benefit systems seem to be important determinants of family structure worldwide Patricia Morgan does not simply analyze the problem she also suggests policy solutions The author argues that divorce laws should be reformed to ensure that those who make commitments are held financially responsible The author's argument is compelling because it is backed up with strong evidence and is argued from an unemotional economic perspective individuals within families are rational agents who respond to incentives Hampton Heights Caleb Starbuck,1856 Richard Haines and His Descendants John Wesley Haines,1966 Richard Haines was probably born in England He married Margaret in England Richard and his wife with their three sons and one daughter left England in 1682 for America While at sea Richard died and another son Joseph was born The family settled in Burlington County New Jersey Descendants lived in New Jersey Virginia North Carolina South Carolina Pennsylvania Ohio and
