Christianity on Trial Mark L. Chapman, 2006-02-02 Since slavery times African American religious thinkers have struggled to answer this question Is Christianity a source of liberation or a source of oppression In a study that reviews representative thinkers over the last fifty years Mark Chapman reviews the variety of ways that African Americans have addressed this problem and how it has informed their work and lives Beginning with Benjamin Mays the leading Negro theologian of the post World War II period Chapman explores the critical implications of this question right up to the present day The pivotal turning point in this period is the emergence of the Black Power movement in the 1960s Sparked in part by the challenge of the Black Muslims for whom Christianity was simply the white man's religion inherently racist and oppressive the era of Black Power saw the rise of militant Black theologies as well After analyzing the work of the Muslim Elijah Muhammad Chapman turns to the pioneering work of Black theologians Albert Cleage and James H Cone Chapman demonstrates the differences but also uncovers surprising lines of continuity between the older Negro theologians and the later Black theologians particularly in their efforts to uncover the truly liberative potential of Christianity Christianity on Trial concludes by exploring the recent emergence of womanist theology As articulated by Delores S Williams and other African American women womanist theology challenges not only the patriarchal aspects of historical Christianity but the same limitations in previous Black theologies An Introduction to Colonial African-American Evangelical Theology Cory J. May, 2025-02-04 Who were some of the early pioneers of colonial African American Christianity Were there specific doctrines that shaped colonial African American evangelical theology Did influential colonial African American Christians prioritize their racial identity above and beyond their Christian identity How did some African American Christians construct their Blackness sense of belonging and existence within shared space with the human Other The genuine Christian faith of many colonial evangelical African Americans has been for some time systematically ignored dismissed and neglected The darker aspect of this agenda at least for some is that when these colonial Christians are discussed their existence is typically reinterpreted through contemporary Western racialized politics The greatest protagonists of this sociopolitical drama have been various influential Black scholars within and outside the academy This project serves as an introductory discourse into the theology and authentic faith of various colonial evangelical African Americans who influenced the identity sense of belonging and conceptions of shared space for Christians within and outside the colonial Black church The journey this book will take some through is within the conservative evangelical tradition of African American Christianity The Bloomsbury Encyclopedia of Philosophers in America John R.
