Jensen, 2013-02-11 This book introduces theological hermeneutics by giving a historical account of the development of hermeneutical thinking It defines hermeneutics as the analysis of the obstacles to understanding The history of hermeneutical thinking and responses to obstacles is told here beginning with the allegorical interpretation of myths in Hellenism through to the contemporary view of the hermeneutical problem as universal Following the opening chapters on the history of hermeneutical thought the book presents an overview of the various contemporary hermeneutical schools of thought and shows their rootedness in different parts of the hermeneutical tradition The focus is clearly on biblical interpretation however it does also take account of developments outside the field of theology as they influence the theological reflection on the hermeneutical problem The questions raised and the possible answers suggested in this volume will be of interest to students of other disciplines such as philosophy and literature

The Author s chief desire in giving to the Public this short History has been to meet what he believes to be a real want among general readers not to make a student s book for we have already many able works of this kind but a popular handbook such as might be read with profit by those who have no time or inclination for a more exhaustive study In short he has endeavoured to gather together in a single volume all that is interesting and essential and to so write his history that the mind of the reader may not be wearied even while the dullest facts are passing before it These are high aims and only those who have attempted a similar task can understand the difficulties by which the Author has been surrounded An outline knowledge of Church History is not only useful to the class of readers referred to but necessary to all who would tread firmly in the present day when rationalism on the one hand and superstition on the other are luring the unwary into by paths of worldliness and unrest In the open page of history we may see the infidelity of the one and the idolatry of the other and admonished by the miserable consequences of each may be prepared against their insidious approaches in the future We have not yet seen the end of mystic Babylon or the beast that carries her The Author has been sparing of quotations save from such writers as were contemporaneous with the events described but he has not scrupled to avail himself of the thoughts of others when they have commended themselves to his judgment because of their peculiar fitness and importance He would cover this liberty by the reflection that truth is the property of all seekers The authors to whom he is chiefly indebted and whose works he has had in constant reference are Eusebius Socrates Sozomen Theodoret and St Augustine among old writers Waddington James White Haweis Timpson Barth and Andrew Miller for complete epitomes Cave Milman Milner and Edward Burton for histories of the early church and for the period of the Middle Ages Fleury Hallam Monastier Dr Gilly Dr Muston Hazlitt s translation Keightley and Jane Willyams as well as the author of a valuable little work The Church in the Middle Ages For the period of the Reformation Fox the Martyrologist Burnet Robertson McCrie Scott D Aubigne Ludwig Hausser Ranke Green etc and the works of the English reformers published by the Parker Society Southey for his Book of the Church and the French historians Sismondi and Michela have also been frequently consulted together with the authors of sundry biographies outline histories etc whose names it is needless to enumerate From this it will be seen that the Author makes no pretensions to originality in the strict sense of the word although he would claim for his book that it is more than a mere compilation It is in fact the result of the earnest labour of several months and while he has gone much to other books it has been with the purpose of reference and not of plunder Others have laboured and he has entered into their labours In conclusion he would commend these fruits of his labour to the blessing of God without which they can only prove a failure but crowned with this they may succeed beyond his hopes and in spite of every defect October 1888
