Learning to Love the Bomb Sean M. Maloney, 2007 In Learning to Love the Bomb Sean M Maloney explores the controversial subject of Canada's acquisition of nuclear weapons during the Cold War Based on newly declassified Canadian and U S documents it examines policy strategy operational and technical matters and weaves these seemingly disparate elements into a compelling story that finally unlocks several Cold War mysteries For example while U S military forces during the 1962 Cuban Missile Crisis were focused on the Caribbean Sea and the southeastern United States Canadian forces assumed responsibility for defending the northern United States with aircraft armed with nuclear depth charges flying patrols and guarding against missile attack by Soviet submarines This defensive strategy was a closely guarded secret because it conflicted with Canada's image as a peacekeeper and therefore a more passive member of NATO than its ally to the south It is revealed here for the first time The place of nuclear weapons in Canadian history has until now been a highly secret and misunderstood field subject to rumor rhetoric half truths and propaganda Learning to Love the Bomb reveals the truth about Canada's role as a nuclear power

Left, Right Engler Yves Engler, 2019-10-15 The left is supposed to be opposed to colonialism and at least skeptical of nationalism However Left Right shows that for decades now this hasn't been the case in Canada Yves Engler marshals damning detail on the long surprising history of support from the New Democratic Party and labor unions for such policies and international interventions as the coup in Haiti the assassination of Patrice Lumumba the Bay of Pigs invasion the Korean War and much more The rhetoric of the mainstream left he shows has also tended to concede major points to the dominant war mongering ideology with prominent commentators such as Linda McQuaig and Stephen Lewis echoing the terminology of right wing politicians and thinkers More than simply diagnosing a problem however Left Right offers a path forward laying out ways to get us working for an ecologically sound peace promoting and non exploitative foreign policy
