Felker, 2013-03-28 The Pacific Theater in World War II depended on American sea power. This power was refined between 1923 and 1940 when the U S Navy held twenty one major fleet exercises designed to develop strategy and allow officers to enact plans in an operational setting. Prior to 1923 naval officers relied heavily on the theories of Capt Alfred Thayer Mahan who argued that sea control was vital to military victory best attained through use of the battleship. Fleet exercises however allowed valuable practice with other military resources and theories. As a direct result of these exercises the navy incorporated different technologies and updated its own outdated strategies. Although World War II brought unforeseen challenges and the disadvantages of simulation exercises quickly became apparent fleet problems may have opened the door to different ideas that allowed the U S Navy ultimately to succeed Testing American Sea Power challenges the conventional wisdom that Mahanian theory held the American Navy in a steel grip Felker s research and analysis the first to concentrate on the navy s interwar exercises will make a valuable contribution to naval history for historians military professionals and naval instructors

China, the United States, and 21st-Century Sea Power Andrew S. Erickson,Lyle J Goldstein,Nan Li,2010-12-01 China s reaction to the United States new maritime strategy will significantly impact its success according to three Naval War College professors Based on the premise that preventing wars is as important as winning wars this new U S strategy they explain embodies a historic reassessment of the international system and how the United States can best pursue its interests in cooperation with other nations The authors contend that despite recent turbulence in U S China military relations substantial shared interests could enable extensive U S China maritime security cooperation as they attempt to reach an understanding of competitive coexistence But for professionals to structure cooperation they warn Washington and Beijing must create sufficient political and institutional space
