Search For Identity:

Collective Search for Identity Orrin Edgar Klapp, 1969 From the Preface This book is about identity seeking movements of modern society It deals with such things as fashions fads poses ritual cultic movements recreation heroes and celebrities and crusades from the point of view of what they tell about the identity search of a mass society My view briefly is that a collective identity search is symptomatic of the fact that some modern social systems deprive people of psychological payoffs the lack of which expressed by terms such as alienation meaninglessness identity problem motivates a mass groping for activities and symbols with which to restore or find new identity People grope because they do not really know what is wrong especially when there is physical prosperity yet a sense of being cheated When mass movements become concerned with identity they develop certain characteristics such as ego screaming concern with costume and self ornamentation style rebellion concern with emotional gestures rather than practical effects adulation of heroes cultism and the like with which I shall deal Such signs show that ordinary economic and political solutions are not what is wanted People feel the futility and irrelevance of such measures yet do not know quite what else to do

Identity and Capitalism Marie Moran, 2014-11-13 This is a splendid book that dispels myths about identity and presents a cultural materialist case for the study of such keywords and their preoccupations under the hegemony of neoliberal capitalism Professor Jim McGuigan Loughborough University Identity particularly as it is elaborated in the associated categories of personal and social identity is a relatively novel concept in western thought politics and culture The explosion of interest in the notion of identity across popular political and academic domains of practice since the 1960s does not represent the simple popularisation of an older term as is widely assumed but rather the invention of an idea Identity and Capitalism explores the emergence and evolution of the idea of identity in the cultural political and social contexts of contemporary capitalist societies Against the common supposition that identity always mattered this book shows that what we now think of routinely as personal identity actually only emerged with the explosion of consumption in the late twentieth century It also makes the case that what we now think of as different social and political identities only came to be framed as such with the emergence of identity politics and new social movements in the political landscapes of capitalist societies in the 60s and 70s Marie Moran provides an important new exploration of the articulation of the idea of identity to the social logic of capitalism from the organised capitalism of the mid twentieth century up to and including the neoliberal capitalism that prevails today Drawing on the work of Raymond Williams the cultural materialist approach developed here provides an original means of addressing the political debates about the value of identity in contemporary capitalist societies

Here I am I am tired I am tired of running of having to carry my life like it was a basket of eggs Light in August 255 These are the words of Joe Christmas at the age of thirty six They signify tiredness and resignation Christmas is one of the main characters and a central figure in William Faulkner s Light in August LIA What causes this state of fatigue What makes Joe Christmas give up This paper deals with several factors that become the trigger for Joe s obvious resignation Faulkner created a character who mainly suffers from elements like the race issue womankind self destruction and society These factors belong to a stirring complex of themes which can hardly be separated Nevertheless I will work on them separately in this paper in order to illustrate their connections In Joe s case these factors are not only strongly connected they even cause each other All his experiences his behavior and his environment mold Christmas into an outcast from society and push him into isolation He becomes a kind of third rate human being who is not able to leave the vicious circle that captures him until he is killed by Percy Grimm Christmas embodies a constant struggle for identity which already starts in his early childhood At the orphanage dark people call him white On the other hand white human beings look down on him as a nigger This period will be dealt with in the following chapter It introduces most of the topics belonging to Christmas fate Tradition and

Reflection Wilhelm Halbfass, 1990-12-11 This book examines above all the relationship between reason and Vedic revelation and the philosophical responses to the idea of the Veda It deals with such topics as dharma karma and rebirth the role of man in the universe the motivation and justification of human actions the relationship between ritual norms and universal ethics and reflections on the goals and sources of human knowledge Halbfass presents previously unknown materials concerning the history of sectarian movements including the notorious Thags thaka and relations between Indian and Iranian thought The approach is partly philosophical and partly historical and philological to a certain extent it is also comparative The author explores indigenous Indian reflections on the sources the structure and the meaning of the Hindu tradition and traditional philosophical responses to social and historical realities He does not deal with social and historical realities per se rather basing his work on the premise that to understand these realities the reflections and constructions of traditional Indian theorists are no less significant than the observations and paradigms of modern Western historians and social scientists he explores the self understanding of such leading thinkers as Sankara Kumarila Bhartrhari and Udayana
