Taking Shape Martina Droth, Penelope Curtis, 2009 This exhibition challenges the reasons why sculpture is usually considered alone in the gallery and the decorative arts are considered as part of a period setting It suggests that by breaking away from these conventional categories we can see how sculpture is also part of a spatial conversation and how furniture and fittings can be appreciated as unique works With five original essays and forty complete catalogue entries this publication both documents an exhibition and goes beyond it opening our eyes to the fluidity of formal language in the long eighteenth century and to the ways in which objects can change according to whether they are seen together or apart as mobile or fixed as two or three dimensional as ideal or as functional Book Jacket Taunton's Fine Woodworking, 1995

The Art Bulletin, 2002 Includes section Notes and reviews Fine Woodworking, 1995 L'enseignement professionnel du menuisier Pierre Ramond, 1989 Marquetry also called intarsia or inlay is the art of making pictures and geometric designs with thin slices of colored wood shell and other precious materials It is a widespread technique for decorating the smooth surfaces of pieces of furniture as well as a versatile means of creative expression This book written by the world's foremost authority and translated here for the first time into English covers the history tools and techniques of the art of marquetry Pierre Ramond's long experience as both a practicing marqueteer and as a teacher at l'Ecole Boulle in Paris makes him uniquely qualified to write about this subject His approach is to inform both the novice and advanced marquetters in the hope that readers will apply their knowledge of these techniques not only to the reproduction and restoration of antiques but also to the creation of new works Cabinetmakers will learn how to incorporate marquetry into their own work Restorers and art historians will benefit from the many examples and precise explanations of the working techniques of the masters
