Historical and Comparative Linguistics Raimo Anttila, 1989-01-01 In any course of historical and comparative linguistics there will be students of different language backgrounds different levels of linguistic training and different theoretical orientation This textbook attempts to mitigate the problems raised by this heterogeneity in a number of ways Since it is impossible to treat the language or language family of special interest to every student the focus of this book is on English in particular and Indo European languages in general with Finnish and its closely related languages for contrast The tenets of different schools of linguistics and the controversies among them are treated eclectically and objectively the examination of language itself plays the leading role in our efforts to ascertain the comparative value of competing theories This revised edition 1989 of a standard work for comparative linguists offers an added introduction dealing mainly with a semiotic basis of change a final chapter on aspects of explanation particularly in historical and human disciplines and added sections on comparative syntax and on the semiotic status of the comparative method

Toward Proto-Nostratic Allan R. Bomhard, 1984-01-01 This book represents the culmination of the author's work to date it incorporates and updates previous articles and adds much new material This book is not nor was it ever intended to be a comparative grammar of either the Indo European or the Afroasiatic language families It is rather a comparison of Proto Indo European with Proto Afroasiatic While this is not the first attempt to demonstrate that Proto Indo European and Proto Afroasiatic are genetically related it is the first to use the radical revision of the Proto Indo European consonantal system proposed by Thomas V Gamkrelidze Paul J Hopper and Vjačeslav V Ivanov Moreover unlike previous endeavors this is the first to make extensive use of data from the non Semitic branches of Afroasiatic The assumptions underlying this investigation of the possibility of the common genetic origin of Proto Indo European and Proto Afroasiatic differ considerably from the assumptions made in other works on Nostratic the methodological approach followed in this monograph has been one of rigorous adherence to the time honored principles of comparative reconstruction

Lehmann, Yakov Malkiel, 1982-01-01 This volume presents seven extensive essays by specialists in their respective fields of historical linguistics The first essay after the Introduction states the principles presented in Directions for Historical Linguistics 1968 and assesses the progress made since then towards constructing a general theory of language change Like the following essays on phonology and morphology it poses new questions that have arisen in the increasingly ambitious research Historical attention to discourse the topic of the next essay is virtually new though it too finds predecessors among philologists who devoted themselves to texts Finally two essays treat etymology one concentrating on the rigorously investigated Romance field the other on Indo European especially on new insights prompted by attention to Hittite
