

covered with a thin layer of red clay. Children, seeing this, know that this place and by implication are dirty places and they should take preventive measures before entering the locality or having contact with its occupants. This way, from passing on ideas to having meaningful relationships.

It is noted to white and red, black has purifying properties. For example, the body of a woman that was recently widowed will be coloured black with macho, the funeral people of the soul play her (Dionysus) (after Jean Schatzsch 1995, see also Kemp 1997, Ingeborg Sævi 1997). She will also wear clothes that are black with red. On the other hand, black may also be viewed as neutral – as absence of heat – and hence it is associated with women just maturing among the young.

In many instances, the uses of these colours are linked with other symbolic actions as well, such as medication, tattooing, shaving the head, cutting hair into a specific style, and wearing specific costumes made for the occasion (Fig. 4). For example, one only would a woman wear macho (yellow), but she would shave her hair into a specific style. A dancer would prepare a number of amulets for her to wear and treat her with macho – to cleanse her as well as for future protection. Furthermore, certain actions and events such as touching of water and making of clay pots are taboos, and she has to avoid all public gatherings of people. It is only after a period of approximately one year, when certain cleansing rituals are performed, that she is set free from these constraints. These type of actions, in its specific

Sculptured in Clay E. O. M. Hanisch, 2002 The Oxford Handbook of Prehistoric Figurines Timothy Insoll, 2017 The Oxford Handbook of Prehistoric Figurines is the first text to offer a comparative survey of figurines from across the globe bringing together myriad contemporary research approaches to provide invaluable insights into their function context meaning and use as well as past thinking on the human body gender and identity The Archaeology of Southern Africa Peter Mitchell, 2024-06-06 Some of humanity's earliest ancestors lived in southern Africa and evidence from sites there has inspired key debates on human origins and the emergence of complex cognition Building on its rich rock art heritage archaeologists have developed theoretical work that continues to influence rock art studies worldwide with the relationship between archaeological and anthropological data central to understanding past hunter gatherer pastoralist and farmer communities alike New work on pre colonial states contests models that previously explained their emergence via external trade while the transformations wrought by European colonialism are being rewritten to emphasise Indigenous agency feeding into efforts to decolonise the discipline itself Inhabited by humans longer than almost anywhere else and with an unusually varied complex past southern Africa thus has much to contribute to archaeology worldwide In this revised and updated edition Peter Mitchell provides a comprehensive and extensively illustrated synthesis of its archaeology over more than three million years Material Explorations in African Archaeology Timothy Insoll, 2015 Material Explorations in African Archaeology examines materiality in African archaeology by exploring concepts of material agency and material engagement and entanglement in relation to their manifest presence in persons animals objects substances and contexts of the African past Foragers in the middle Limpopo Valley: Trade, Place-making, and Social Complexity Tim Forssman, 2020-09-24 Foragers were present in the Limpopo Valley South Africa before the arrival of farmers and not only witnessed but also participated in local systems leading to the appearance of a complex society Despite numerous studies in the valley forager involvement in socio political developments has been until now largely ignored Historical Ecologies, Heterarchies and Transtemporal Landscapes Celeste Ray, Manuel Fernández-Götz, 2019-04-23 Interlacing varied approaches within Historical Ecology this volume offers new routes to researching and understanding human environmental interactions and the heterarchical power relations that shape both socioecological change and resilience over time Historical Ecology draws from archaeology archival research ethnography the humanities and the biophysical sciences to merge the history of the Earth's biophysical system with the history of humanity Considering landscape as the spatial manifestation of the relations between humans and their environments through time the authors in this volume examine the multi directional power dynamics that have shaped settlement agrarian monumental and ritual landscapes through the long term field projects they have pursued around the globe Examining both biocultural stability and change through the longue durée in different regions these essays highlight intersectionality and counterpoised power flows to demonstrate that alongside and in spite of hierarchical ideologies the daily life of power is heterarchical Knowledge of transtemporal human environmental relationships is necessary for strategizing socioecological resilience Historical Ecology shows how the past can be useful to the future

Quaternary Environmental Change in Southern Africa Jasper Knight, Stefan W. Grab, 2016-06-23 Ongoing climate change necessitates advances in our understanding of the interrelationships between climate landscape shaping processes and human activity over long time periods especially in areas that are already climatically stressed This volume presents new ideas on macroscale landscape evolution mountain fluvial and aeolian processes and environments in southern Africa a key region in the story of human evolution during the last two million years Interdisciplinary in scope it brings together an international team of experts to synthesise the latest research and understanding of landscape human relationships in this region It incorporates results from the emerging fields of geoarchaeology and cultural landscapes and utilises the latest data and analytical techniques A key reference for researchers studying hominid evolution geoarchaeology and environmental change it provides a benchmark study of southern African landscape evolution during the Quaternary It will also appeal to professionals and policymakers with interests in future human landscape evolution in southern Africa

A Material Culture Stephanie Wynne-Jones, 2016-05-12 A Material Culture focuses on objects in Swahili society through the elaboration of an approach that sees people and things as caught up in webs of mutual interaction It therefore provides both a new theoretical intervention in some of the key themes in material culture studies including the agency of objects and the ways they were linked to social identities through the development of the notion of a biography of practice These theoretical discussions are explored through the archaeology of the Swahili on the Indian Ocean coast of eastern Africa This coast was home to a series of settlements from the seventh century onwards some grew to become coral built stonetowns These precolonial towns such as Kilwa Kisiwani Mombasa and Gede represent a unique urban tradition They were deeply involved in maritime trade carried out by a diverse Islamic population This book suggests that the Swahili are a highly significant case study for exploration of the relationship between objects and people in the past as the society was constituted and defined through a particular material setting Further it is suggested that this relationship was subtly different than in other areas and particularly from western models that dominate prevailing analysis The case is made for an alternative form of materiality perhaps common to the wider Indian Ocean world with an emphasis on redistribution and circulation rather than on the accumulation of wealth The reader will therefore gain familiarity with a little known and fascinating culture as well as appreciating the ways that non western examples can add to our theoretical models

Cognitive Archaeology David Whitley, Johannes Loubser, Gavin Whitelaw, 2019-11-28 Cognitive Archaeology Mind Ethnography and the Past in South Africa and Beyond aims to interpret the social and cultural lives of the past in part by using ethnography to build informed models of past cultural and social systems and partly by using natural models to understand symbolism and belief How does an archaeologist interpret the past Which theories are relevant what kinds of data must be acquired and how can interpretations be derived One interpretive approach developed in southern Africa in the 1980s has been particularly successful even if still not widely known globally With an expressed commitment to scientific method it has resulted in deeper well tested understandings of belief ritual settlement patterns and social systems This volume brings together a series of papers that demonstrate and illustrate this approach to archaeological interpretation including contributions from North America Western Europe and sub Saharan Africa in the process highlighting innovative methodological and substantive research that improves our understanding of the human past Professional archaeological researchers would be the primary audience of this book Because of its theoretical and methodological emphasis it will also be relevant to method and theory courses and postgraduate students Limpopo Life Anneli Ekblom, Michel

Notelid, 2025-06-20 Limpopo Life introduces the reader to the material culture oral histories and the negotiation of conservation and landscape in an area now known as Limpopo National Park Introducing the archaeology of a region that has not been surveyed or discussed this book connects to the archaeology history heritage and conservation discussions in the southern African region as a whole Vegetation history and paleoecology are combined with archaeological surveys and excavations written sources oral histories and travelogues to draw a picture of the diverse landscape of the Limpopo region Intermixed within this narrative are sections that focus on an individual species a life history or an event providing a view of the complex and dynamic interactions The role of humans in this diverse environment and how they have co evolved with other species shaping each other s destinies in a consequential and accidental way is outlined This book will be of interest to researchers and students interested in the archaeology heritage and conservation of Mozambique Zimbabwe and northern South Africa It will also be of relevance to readers interested in the social history of the Limpopo and Kruger National Parks and this cross border area The Nature of Culture Miriam N. Haidle, Nicholas J. Conard, Michael Bolus, 2016-01-19 This volume introduces a model of the expansion of cultural capacity as a systemic approach with biological historical and individual dimensions It is contrasted with existing approaches from primatology and behavioural ecology influential factors like differences in life history and demography are discussed and the different stages of the development of cultural capacity in human evolution are traced in the archaeological record The volume provides a synthetic view on a the different factors and mechanisms of cultural development and b expansions of cultural capacities in human evolution beyond the capacities observed in animal culture so far It is an important topic because only a volume of contributions from different disciplines can yield the necessary breadth to discuss the complex subject The model introduced and discussed originates in the naturalist context and tries to open the discussion to some culturalist aspects thus the publication in a series with archaeological and biological emphasis is apt As a new development the synthetic model of expansion of cultural capacity is introduced and discussed in a broad perspective The South African Archaeological Bulletin, 2005 Spatial

Approaches in African Archaeology Cameron Gokee, Carla Klehm, 2023-01-01 This book explores the interplay between

African archaeology and geospatial methods from three broad perspectives First several contributors examine the technical possibilities and limits of using satellite imagery to detect archaeological sites and model their physical environs A second perspective is the integration of new geospatial data and methods into site and landscape scale analyses to better address questions about social organization and subjective experience in African pasts A final perspective considers the interplay between geospatial technologies and community archaeology in Africa Recognizing that GIS and RS supersede traditional divisions in African archaeology such as different periods geographic regions and theoretical orientations the chapters aim to be widely applicable Arranged by methodological emphasis the case studies move from technical discussions of specific geospatial tools to general applications for addressing specific sociohistorical topics Each chapter clearly explains the links between their archaeological questions and analytical methods as well as how their results advance our understanding of African pasts and heritage resources Many of the chapters can serve as learning models for archaeologists who are new to GIS or curious about its applications to their work Others represent recent advances in geospatial applications of greater interest to more seasoned GIS practitioners demonstrating the potential for African scholarship to contribute to methodological innovations This book is of interest to students and researchers of African and historical archaeology and anthropology Previously published in African Archaeological Review Volume 37 issue 1 March 2020 A Companion to Gender Prehistory Diane Bolger, 2012-09-25 An authoritative guide on gender prehistory for researchers instructors and students in anthropology archaeology and gender studies Provides the most up to date comprehensive coverage of gender archaeology with an exclusive focus on prehistory Offers critical overviews of developments in the archaeology of gender over the last 30 years as well as assessments of current trends and prospects for future research Focuses on recent Third Wave approaches to the study of gender in early human societies challenging heterosexist biases and investigating the interfaces between gender and status age cognition social memory performativity the body and sexuality Features numerous regional and thematic topics authored by established specialists in the field with incisive coverage of gender research in prehistoric and protohistoric cultures of Africa Asia Europe the Americas and the Pacific The Oxford Handbook of African Archaeology Peter Mitchell, Paul Lane, 2013-07-04 This Handbook provides a comprehensive synthesis of African archaeology covering the entirety of the continent's past from the beginnings of human evolution to the archaeological legacy of European colonialism It includes a mixture of key methodological and theoretical issues and debates and situates the subject's contemporary practice Mapungubwe Reconsidered MISTRA MISTRA, 2015-06-03 The Mapungubwe Cultural Landscape is one of the profound treasures of southern Africa's social and archaeological history appropriately declared a World Heritage Unesco in 2003 Contained within this landscape is indispensable information on precolonial state formation social hierarchies architecture of stone walled towns mineral processing and intercontinental trade And yet the Mapungubwe state rose towered over its environs and then declined long before European colonial incursions What exactly were the social dynamics in this polity What technologies did it utilise How did it relate to neighbouring unable to sustain itself In this combined edition of two MISTRA publications now jointly titled Mapungubwe Reconsidered A Living Legacy MISTRA seeks to contribute to the body of knowledge about Mapungubwe straddling such issues as the relationships between humans and the environment management of mineral endowments and the form and impact of southern Africa's global intercourse in this historical period

Five Hundred Years Rediscovered Natalie Swanepoel, Amanda Esterhuysen, Phil Bonner, 2008-08-01

In the age of the African Renaissance southern Africa has needed to reinterpret the past in fresh and more appropriate ways The last 500 years represent a strikingly unexplored and misrepresented period which remains disfigured by colonial apartheid assumptions most notably in the way that African societies are depicted as fixed passive isolated unenterprising and unenlightened This period is one the most formative in relation to southern Africa's past while remaining in many ways the least known Key cultural contours of the subcontinent took shape while in a jagged and uneven fashion some of the features of modern identities emerged Enormous internal economic innovation and political experimentation was taking place at the same time as expanding European mercantile forces started to press upon southern African shores and its hinterlands This suggests that interaction flux and mixing were a strong feature of the period rather than the homogeneity and fixity proposed in standard historical and archaeological writings Five Hundred Years Rediscovered represents the first step taken by a group of archaeologists and historians to collectively reframe revitalise and re-examine the last 500 years By integrating research and developing trans-frontier research networks the group hopes to challenge thinking about the region's expanding internal and colonial frontiers and to broaden current perceptions about southern Africa's colonial past
