

The search for extraterrestrial life—and the future of life on Earth

ARNOLD WOLFENDALE

Introduction

One of the great questions for humanity is "Are we alone?" The question is not a new one, of course, but has taken on the form since the last year or two. For it is now one of possession. First, nuclear technology has achieved such high sensitivities that we look for signs of life from the distances of outer space. We seek all "intelligent" radio signals, in fact, by "listening" practices. Second, recently, several claims for the detection of great (and possibly "life") on Mars have raised the possibility of the actual formation of "voluntary" life being very common. Finally, the observations of "dark-forest" comets and asteroids has pointed out the threat to life on Earth from the impacts of these bodies. Another impact on outer (possibly) life-bearing planets is one of the future which need be considered when estimating how many "civilizations" there are likely to be in the Galaxy.

Historical attitudes

There have, commonly held opinions, that "intelligent life" is quite common in the Galaxy (at least a few). From many traditions, even the great past ones, by the Greek Philosophers, Egyptians and by the Chinese Philosophers, Feng Shui.
