Seasonal Undernutrition In Rural Ethiopia Magnitude Correlates And Functional Significance:

Seasonal Undernutrition in Rural Ethiopia Anna Forro Luzzi, Saul S. Morris, Samson Taffesse, Tsegaye etc Demissie, 2001 Seasonal Undernutrition in Rural Ethiopia Anna Ferro-Luzzi, 2001-01-01 Research questions and motivation for policy analysis Data and methodology Seasonal energy stress in southern Shewa Physiological correlates of undernutrition in adults Heterogeneity of response to seasonal stress Methods used to assess the nutritional and functional status of study individuals Seasonality, Rural Livelihoods and Development Stephen Devereux, Rachel Sabates-Wheeler, Richard Longhurst, 2013-07-03 Seasonality is a severe constraint to sustainable rural livelihoods and a driver of poverty and hunger particularly in the tropics Many poor people in developing countries are ill equipped to cope with seasonal variations which can lead to drought or flood and consequences for agriculture employment food supply and the spread of disease The subject has assumed increasing importance as climate change and other forms of development disrupt established seasonal patterns and variations This book is the first systematic study of seasonality for over twenty years and it aims to revive academic interest and policy awareness of this crucial but neglected issue Thematic chapters explore recent shifts with profound implications for seasonality including climate change HIV AIDS and social protection Case study chapters explore seasonal dimensions of livelihoods in Africa Ethiopia Kenya Malawi Asia Bangladesh China India and Latin America Peru Others assess policy responses to adverse seasonality for example through irrigation migration and seasonally sensitive education The book also includes innovative tools for monitoring seasonality which should enable more appropriate responses The Egyptian Food Subsidy System Akhter U. Ahmed, 2001 The Egyptian Food Subsidy System Structure Performance and Options for Reform evaluates the economic political and technical feasibility of reducing costs while improving or maintaining the welfare of the poor The report addresses five questions 1 How well does the present system target the poor 2 How much leakage the pilferage of subsidized foods in the distribution channel occurs 3 At what cost does the government transfer income to the needy 4 How can subsidies be better targeted to the needy And 5 What are politically feasible options for reform Seasons of Hunger Stephen Devereux, Bapu Vaitla, Samuel Hauenstein Swan, 2008-09-20 Every year millions of the rural poor suffer from predictable and preventable seasonal hunger This hunger is less dramatic but no less damaging than the starvation associated with famines wars and natural disasters Seasons of Hunger explores why the world does not react to a crisis that we know will continue year after year Seasonal hunger is caused by annual cycles of shrinking food stocks rising prices and lack of income This hidden hunger pushes millions of children to the brink of starvation every year permanently stunting their physical and cognitive development weakening their immune systems and opening the door for killer diseases Action Against Hunger argue that ending seasonal hunger could save millions of young lives and is key to achieving the Millennium Development Goals This book documents seasonal hunger in four countries India Malawi Mali and Myanmar including personal stories and country wide data which shows the magnitude of the problem The authors also find encouraging examples of interventions designed to address seasonality initiatives led by governments donors and NGOs and poor people themselves and propose a package of advocacy messages that could contribute to the global eradication of seasonal hunger This book will be a valuable resource for journalists policy makers NGO members and students of development studies

Insurance Against Poverty World Institute for Development Economics Research,2005 Poor people in developing countries are often affected by droughts floods illness crop failure job loss and economic downturns Much of their energy goes into coping with these shocks and into day to day survival While insurance and credit markets combined with widespread social security provide an important cushion against poverty in rich countries the need for immediate survival may lock the poor into persistent poverty in developing countries The poor in developing countries do have informal mechanisms to cope with risk and misfortune These are based on income diversification risk avoidance self insurance by saving together with family and community based mutual assistance Nevertheless the scope of these mechanisms remains limited Repeated individual specific shocks such as illness or pests or covariate risks associated with drought flood or recession undermine the ability of individuals and their families to cope with risk We now know much more about vulnerability to risk and how poor people cope Even more importantly we have learned much about the large long term consequences of these risks which condemns many to persistent poverty and excludes them from economic growth But there is much that can be done The micro level studies that underpin this book offer new insights on how effective public action could be more effective in protecting the vulnerable against persistent poverty Policy should focus on providing a comprehensive menu of ex ante and post crisis protection mechanisms including new forms of insurance savings safety nets and the means to strengthen the poor s asset base Local communities have a big role to play public funds should not be used to replace indigenous community based support networks rather they should be used to build on the strengths of these networks to ensure broader and more effective protection With numerous thematic chapters and case studies of both best practice and of failure from a mix of low income and middle income countries across the developing world this book evaluates alternatives in widening insurance and protection provision and makes an important contribution to the topical field of insurance and risk

Evolving Human Nutrition Stanley J. Ulijaszek,Neil Mann,Sarah Elton,2012-10-18 While most of us live our lives according to the working week we did not evolve to be bound by industrial schedules nor did the food we eat Despite this we eat the products of industrialization and often suffer as a consequence This book considers aspects of changing human nutrition from evolutionary and social perspectives It considers what a natural human diet might be how it has been shaped across evolutionary time and how we have adapted to changing food availability The transition from hunter gatherer and the rise of agriculture through to the industrialisation and globalisation of diet are explored Far from being adapted to a Stone Age diet humans can consume a vast range of foodstuffs However being able to eat anything does not mean that we should eat everything and therefore engagement with the evolutionary underpinnings of diet and factors influencing it are key to better public health practice

Facing the Development Challenge in Mozambique Finn

Tarp,2002-01-01 This study responds to some of Mozambique s basic development challenges and provides qualitative and quantitative insights for policymaking from an economywide perspective The report highlights the importance of agricultural development showing agriculture s large sectoral multiplier effects and that applying scarce capital to agriculture is generally more effective than applying it to industry and services A novel CGE model is developed and used in a series of analyses focused on the impact and design of economic policy Issues addressed are aid dependency biases in price incentives facing the agriculture sector improvement in agricultural technology and marketing margins risk reducing behavior and gender roles in agricultural production and food aid distribution The study also provides a future perspective and analyzes the Mozambican economy using dynamic macroeconomic modeling techniques demonstrating that sophisticated analytical tools can be of significant value even in data poor situations

Watershed Development Projects in India J. M. Kerr,Ganesh

Pangare,Vasudha Pangare,2002-01-01 The Green Revolution that transformed irrigated agriculture elsewhere in India had little effect in the rainfed semi arid regions Agricultural productivity remained low natural resources were degrading and the people were poor In the 1980s and 1990s planners turned to watershed management to develop rainfed agriculture while conserving natural resources By the late 1990s India was spending US 500 million a year on watershed development projects Strategies ranged from the purely technical to those that emphasized social organization Little systematic analysis exists however on the success of the different approaches This study based on a survey of 86 villages in Andhra Pradesh and Maharashtra states attempts to fill that information gap by evaluating the projects relative success in raising agricultural productivity improving natural resource management and reducing poverty In looking at the question of what approaches enable a project to succeed it uses both quantitative and qualitative analysis to compare project and nonproject villages before and after the projects were implemented The authors find that projects involving the villagers in planning and decisionmaking performed better than their technocratic top down counterparts but projects that combined participation with sound technical input performed best of all All projects faced difficulties in ensuring that poor people shared the benefits of watershed development

Natural Resource Management in the Hillside of Honduras Bruno

Barbier,Gilles Bergeron,2001-01-01 Farmers who live in fragile tropical hillsides often operate under severe resource constraints and face difficult tradeoffs when confronted with changes in production conditions Using a bioeconomic linear programming model this study simulates the effects of population market and technological changes on farmers income and on their management of the natural resource in a hillside area of Central Honduras The results show that economic growth and agricultural intensification are not necessarily adverse for fragile environments In fact farmer incomes would be much lower and degradation much higher if intensive agriculture had not been adopted Such a result however must be framed within a complex set of conditioning factors among which agroecology plays a fundamental role Although the economic advantages of horticultural production are clear in the area studied this strategy is not suited for all contexts This report offers a series of policy recommendations that implicitly recognize such limitations thereby helping to direct resources where they will have their greatest impact

Land, Trees, and Women Maria Agnes R. Quisumbing,2001-01-01 How do women s land rights change as customary tenure systems give way to individualized land tenure While the individualization of land rights creates incentives for poor farmers in marginal areas to adopt agroforestry not much is known about its impact on women s land rights Land Trees and Women examines the evolution of customary land tenure institutions in areas of Western Ghana and Western Sumatra where traditional matrilineal inheritance systems have been changing In these two areas the authors find that individualization of land tenure has contributed to both increased gender equity and greater efficiency in agroforestry management While property rights institutions are moving toward providing proper incentives for efficient natural resource management the authors conclude that any program or legal framework that assigns rights to resources must be evaluated for barriers to women s participation

The 1998 Floods in Bangladesh Carlo Del Ninno,2001-01-01 In 1998 the flood of the century covered more than two thirds of Bangladesh causing crop losses of 2 04 million tons of rice an amount equal to 10 45 percent of target production in 1998 99 This flood threatened the health and lives of millions through food shortages caused by crop failure loss of purchasing power and the spread of water borne disease Yet very few flood related deaths occurred and reportedly none was due to food shortages This report based on data from a survey of 757 rural households in seven flood affected regions thanas conducted in November and December 1998 and on analysis of secondary data on food grain markets describes how Government of Bangladesh policy well functioning private markets household coping strategies and donor and NGO interventions combined to avert a major food crisis To further enhance its food security Bangladesh needs continued investments in agricultural research extension roads electricity and other rural infrastructure policies promoting efficient markets and programs to provide targeted transfers and credit to poor households

Market Institutions, Transaction Costs, and Social Capital in the Ethiopian Grain Market Eleni Zaude Gabre-Madhin,2001-01-01 This report addresses the overarching question regarding the role of institutions in enhancing market development following market reforms It uses the New Institutional Economics framework to empirically analyze the role of a specific market institution that of brokers acting as intermediaries to match traders in the Ethiopian grain market in reducing the transaction costs of search faced by traders Brokers play a key role in facilitating exchange in a weak marketing environment where limited public market information the lack of grain standardization oral contracts and weak legal enforcement of contracts increase the risk of contract failure Relying on primary data it analyzes traders microeconomic behavior social capital the nature and extent of their transaction costs and the norms and rules governing the relationship between brokers and traders The study uses an innovative approach to quantify the costs of search and demonstrates that the brokerage institution is economically efficient both for individual traders and for global economic welfare

Seasonal Undernutrition in Rural Ethiopia ,1976 Does market access mitigate the impact of seasonality on child growth? Abay, Kibrewossen,Hirvonen, Kalle,2016-03-01 Seasonality in agricultural production continues to shape intra annual food availability and prices in low income countries Using high frequency panel data from northern Ethiopia this study attempts to quantify seasonal fluctuations in children s weights In line with earlier studies we document considerable seasonality in children s age and height adjusted weights While children located closer to local food markets are better nourished compared to their counterparts residing in more remote areas their weights are also subject to considerable seasonality Further analysis provides evidence that children located closer to food markets consume more diverse diets than those located farther away However the content of these diets varies across seasons children are less likely to consume animal source foods during the lean season
