major depression 14% with anxiety disorders and 4% with bipolar disorder It is gratifying to witness the enhanced interest and popularity in HRQL research and publications yet the field continues to suffer from conceptual inconsistencies as well as a good deal of methodological limitations It is worrisome that we still do not have a clear understanding of the concept itself as applied to mental health and illness as well as the complex array of its determinants Similarly there is a lag in the application of quality of life data in improving clinical practice

Quality of Life Elizabeth Eckermann, 2013-12-11 This publication addresses the gender dimensions of people s lived experience and emphasizes how gender relationships differentially impact on women s and girls as well as men s and boys subjective well being across the lifespan It therefore fills a significant gap in the literature on quality of life and subjective well being The book brings together research which compares female s and male s subjective experiences of well being at various life stages from a variety of countries and regions particularly focusing on women s subjective well being Sex disaggregation of data on objective conditions of quality of life is now routinely undertaken in many countries of the world However despite the burgeoning of objective data on sex differences in life conditions across the world very little gender analysis is carried out to explain fully such difference and there is still a serious dearth of data on gender differences in subjective experiences of quality of life and well being This publication will assist researchers teachers service providers and policy makers in filling some of the gaps in currently available literature on the nexus between age and gender in producing
