Mating Mind How Sexual Choice Shaped The Evolution Of Human Nature:

The Mating Mind Geoffrey Miller, 2011-12-21 At once a pioneering study of evolution and an accessible and lively reading experience a book that offers the most convincing and radical explanation for how and why the human mind evolved Consciousness morality creativity language and art these are the traits that make us human Scientists have traditionally explained these qualities as merely a side effect of surplus brain size but Miller argues that they were sexual attractors not side effects He bases his argument on Darwin's theory of sexual selection which until now has played second fiddle to Darwin's theory of natural selection and draws on ideas and research from a wide range of fields including psychology economics history and pop culture Witty powerfully argued and continually thought provoking The Mating Mind is a landmark in our understanding of our own species

Aesthetics, Creativity and the Arts Colin Martindale, Paul Locher, Vladimir M Petrov, Arnold Berleant, 2019-06-04 In this book well known scholars describe new and exciting approaches to aesthetics creativity and psychology of the arts approaching these topics from a point of view that is biological or related to biology and answering new questions with new methods and theories All known societies produce and enjoy arts such as literature music and visual decoration or depiction Judging from prehistoric archaeological evidence this arose very early in human development Furthermore Darwin was explicit in attributing aesthetic sensitivity to lower animals These considerations lead us to wonder whether the arts might not be evolutionarily based Although such an evolutionary basis is not obvious on the face of it the idea has recently elicited considerable attention The book begins with a consideration of ten theories on the evolutionary function of specific arts such as music and literature The theory of evolution was first drawn up in biology but evolution is not confined to biology genuinely evolutionary theories of sociocultural change can be formulated That they need to be formulated is shown in several chapters that discuss regular trends in literature and scientific writings Psychologists have recently rediscovered the obvious fact that thought and perception occur in the brain so cognitive science moves ever closer to neuroscience Several chapters give overviews of neurocognitive and neural network approaches to creativity and aesthetic appreciation The book concludes with two exciting describing brain scan research on what happens in the brain during creativity and presenting a close examination of the relationship between genetically transmitted mental disorder and creativity Not So Weird

After All Rosemary L. Hopcroft, Martin Fieder, Susanne Huber, 2024-03-26 This is the first book to fully examine from an evolutionary point of view the association of social status and fertility in human societies before during and after the demographic transition In most nonhuman social species social status or relative rank in a social group is positively associated with the number of offspring with high status individuals typically having more offspring than low status individuals However humans appear to be different As societies have gotten richer fertility has dipped to unprecedented lows with some developed societies now at or below replacement fertility Within rich societies women in higher income families often have fewer children than women in lower income families Evolutionary theory suggests that the relationship between social status and fertility is likely to be somewhat different for men and women so it is important to examine this relationship for men and women separately When this is done the positive association between individual social status and fertility is often clear in less developed pre transitional societies particularly for men Once the demographic transition begins it is elite families particularly the women of elite families who lead the way in fertility decline Post transition the evidence from a variety of developed societies in Europe North America and East Asia is that high status men particularly men with high personal income do have more children on average than lower status men The reverse is often true of women although there is evidence that this is changing in Nordic countries The implications of these observations for evolutionary theory are also discussed This book will be of interest to students and researchers in the social sciences with an interest in evolutionary sociology evolutionary anthropology evolutionary psychology demography and fertility
