

Practice Direction 7A –

Procedure for Applications in Matrimonial and Civil Partnership Proceedings

This Practice Direction supplements FPR Part 7.

Applications for matrimonial and civil partnership orders: general

1.1 An application for a matrimonial or civil partnership order must be made in the form referred to in Practice Direction 5A. The application form sets out the documents which must accompany the application.

1.2 The application for a matrimonial order or a civil partnership order must be completed according to the detailed notes which accompany the form. It is especially important that the particulars provide evidence to show why the applicant is entitled to –

- (a) in matrimonial proceedings, a dissolution or annulment of the marriage or a decree of judicial separation;
- (b) in civil partnership proceedings, a dissolution or annulment of the civil partnership or a separation order.

The particulars should, however, be as concise as possible consistent with providing the necessary evidence.

Respondents: restrictions

2.1 Where the application refers to adultery or to an improper association with another person, that other person should not be named in the application unless the applicant believes the other party to the marriage or civil partnership in question is likely to object to the making of a matrimonial or civil partnership order on the application. Furthermore, such a person should not be a respondent if under the age of 16 or alleged to have been the victim of rape committed by the other party to the marriage or civil partnership, unless the court gives permission.

Proof of marriage or civil partnership to accompany the application

3.1 The application form for a matrimonial order or a civil partnership order sets out the documents which must accompany the application. Where the existence and validity of a marriage or civil partnership is not disputed, its validity will be proved by the application being accompanied by –

- (a) one of the following –
 - (i) a certificate of the marriage or civil partnership to which the application relates issued under the law in force in the country where the marriage or civil partnership registration took place;
 - (ii) a similar document issued under the law in force in the country where the marriage or civil partnership registration took place; or
 - (iii) a certified copy of such a certificate or document obtained from the appropriate register office; and
- (b) where the certificate, document or certified copy is not in English (or, where the court is in Wales, in Welsh), a translation of that document certified by a notary public or authenticated by a statement of truth.

Filing without accompanying proof of marriage or civil partnership

3.2 If –

- (a) the applicant cannot produce –
