Doing Web Development Deborah Kurata, 2013-11-09. More and more traditional developers are moving into the world of web application development. Proper use of client side scripts, style sheets, and XML are essential for building high performance web applications that provide a rich user experience. Doing Web Development: Client Side Techniques addresses the client side issues that every web application developer needs to know. This insightful guide is designed for professional software developers who are moving into Web development. It provides comprehensive coverage of all aspects of client side Web development, including the understanding of the basics of HTML scripting with JavaScript and using XML schemas and XSL. Deborah Kurata takes a task based approach to these topics, providing developers with real world techniques they can immediately apply in today's web applications.

Distributed .NET Programming in C# Tom Barnaby, 2002-05-29. With the release of .NET, Microsoft has once again altered the distributed programming landscape. Almost everything has changed: from data access to remote object calls to the deployment of software components. And of course .NET introduces a new technology in XML Web services that may revolutionize Web development. Distributed .NET Programming in C# describes how to use these new .NET technologies to build fast, scalable, and robust distributed applications. Along the way, it answers common questions such as: How do I use the .NET Remoting Framework? What role does COM play in the .NET universe? How can I interoperate with COM components? What's the difference between .NET Remoting and Web services? How will these changes affect the architecture and design of a distributed application? Author Tom Barnaby assumes the reader is already familiar with the fundamentals of .NET. However, a .NET overview is provided to concisely explain several of the core .NET technologies that are essential for distributed programming, including building, versioning, and deploying assemblies, garbage collection, serialization, and attribute based programming.
