Redefining German Health Care Michael E. Porter,Clemens Guth,2012-01-25 The German health care system is on a collision course with budget realities Costs are high and rising and quality problems are becoming ever more apparent Decades of reforms have produced little change to these troubling trends Why has Germany failed to solve these cost and quality problems The reason is that Germany has not set value for patients as the overarching goal defined as the patient health outcomes achieved per euro expended This book lays out an action agenda to move Germany to a high value system care must be reorganized around patients and their medical conditions providers must compete around the outcomes they achieve health plans must take an active role in improving subscriber health and payment must shift to models that reward excellent providers Also private insurance must be integrated in the risk pooling system These steps are practical and achievable as numerous examples in White, Julia E. Connelly, 2012-12-06 Medical schools exist as part of a complex educational and health care system with affiliations to universities teaching hospitals outpatient clinics students and communities Those of us who serve as trustees and volunteers on boards and committees of medical schools carry obvious responsibilities for the performance of the institution with regard to those affiliations including those that relate to the community By what criteria and by what standards do we as trustees assess that performance For trustees of medical schools I suggest that the most important criteria are those concerned with the purpose for which the school was originally established and those that relate to the community that supports it and is served by it For a medical school performance criteria should be defined in a statement of purpose the mission of the school This mission statement should provide trustees with direction on such vital matters as the following What does the medical school seek to accomplish Whom does it serve Where is it going What is the relationship to the geographic region or other community that it may seek to serve Such questions are stated more easily than they are answered but they should be asked For trustees who are responsible for the education of students the management of faculty and the stewardship of funds they are a matter of serious concern Burden of diarrhoeal diseases Amir Abdoli, Ali Taghipour, D.
