Renaissance Donna Seger explores the diffusion and reception of prescriptive publications over the 16th and 17th centuries. Published in an age of dynamic religious and political change, these texts demonstrate the universal desire for health and wealth, a fortified body and an orderly household. Showing how classical and continental information had been Englished over time, this book shows how new publications supplanted these traditional ideas with more empirical and authoritative knowledge. Published in an age of dynamic religious and political change, these texts include plague tracts, husbandry handbooks, printed recipe books, and navigation manuals, demonstrating the universal desire for health and wealth, a fortified body and an orderly household. Divided into three parts, the opening chapters explore factors which affected the diffusion of practical knowledge via prescriptive texts. Part two focuses on the interaction between new discoveries and traditional authority, and the final section considers debates in the medical marketplace, the term knowledge mongerer, and the commodification of knowledge at this time. A thorough exploration into the popular and pragmatic expressions of the period. The Practical Renaissance offers a new window into the movement in which knowledge and information became power.

Unsettled Patricia Fumerton, 2006-05 Migrants made up a growing class of workers in late sixteenth and seventeenth century England. In fact, by 1650 half of England's rural population consisted of homeless and itinerant laborers. Unsettled is an ambitious attempt to reconstruct the everyday lives of these dispossessed people. Patricia Fumerton offers an expansive portrait of unsettledness in early modern England that includes the homeless and housed alike. Fumerton begins by building on recent studies of vagrancy, poverty, and servants, placing all in the light of a new domestic economy of mobility. She then looks at representations of the vagrant in a variety of pamphlets and literature of the period. Since seamen were a particularly large and prominent class of mobile wage laborers in the seventeenth century, Fumerton turns to seamen generally and to an individual poor seaman as a case study of the unsettled subject. Edward Barlow, b. 1642, provides a rare opportunity to see how the laboring poor fashioned themselves, for he authored a journal of over 225,000 words and 147 pages of drawings. Barlow's journal, studied extensively here for the first time, vividly charts what he himself termed his unsettled mind and the perpetual anxieties of England's working and wayfaring poor. Ultimately, Fumerton explores representations of seamen as unsettled in the broadside ballads of Barlow's time.

The Seaforth Bibliography Eugene Rasor, 2009-04-17 This remarkable work is a comprehensive historiographical and bibliographical survey of the most important scholarly and printed materials about the naval and maritime history of England and Great Britain from the earliest times to 1815. More than 4,000 popular, standard, and official histories, important articles in journals and periodicals, anthologies, conference symposiums, and seminar papers, guides, documents, and doctoral theses are covered, so that the emphasis is the broadest possible. But the work is far far more than a listing. The works are all evaluated, assessed, and analysed, and then integrated into an historical narrative that makes the book a hugely useful reference work for student, scholar, and enthusiast alike. It is divided into twenty-one chapters which cover resource centres, significant naval writers, preeminent and general histories the chronological periods from Julius Caesar through the Vikings Tudors and Stuarts to Nelson and Bligh major naval personalities warships piracy strategy and tactics exploration discovery and navigation archaeology and even naval fiction Quite simply no one with an interest and enthusiasm for naval history can afford to be without this book at their side

Mapping and Charting in Early Modern England and France Christine Petto, 2015-03-26 Mapping and Charting for the Lion and the Lily Map and Atlas Production in Early Modern England and France is a comparative study of the production and role of maps charts and atlases in early modern England and France with a particular focus on Paris the cartographic center of production from the late seventeenth century to the late eighteenth century and London which began to emerge in the late eighteenth century to eclipse the once favored Bourbon center The themes that carry through the work address the role of government in map and chart making In France in particular it is the importance of the centralized government and its support for geographic works and their makers through a broad and deep institutional infrastructure Prior to the late eighteenth century in England there was no central controlling agency or institution for map chart or atlas production and any official power was imposed through the market rather than through the establishment of institutions There was no centralized support for the cartographic enterprise and any effort by the crown was often challenged by the power of Parliament which saw little value in fostering or supporting scholar geographers or a national survey This book begins with an investigation of the imagery of power on map and atlas frontispieces from the late sixteenth century to the seventeenth century In the succeeding chapters the focus moves from county and regional mapping efforts in England and France to the paper wars over encroachment in their respective colonial interests The final study looks at charting efforts and highlights the role of government support and the commercial trade in the development of maritime charts not only for the home waters of the English Channel but the distant and dangerous seas of the East Indies

Tracks on the Ocean Sara Caputo, 2024-10-22 An engaging look at ocean routes complicated beginnings and elusive impact Sara Caputo's Tracks on the Ocean is a sweeping history of how we have understood routes of travel over the ocean and how we came to represent that movement as a cartographical line Focusing on the representation of sea journeys in the Western world from the early sixteenth century to the present Caputo deftly argues that the depiction of these lines is inextricable from European imperialism the rise of modernity and attempts at mastery over nature Caputo recounts the history of ocean tracks through an array of lively stories and characters from the expeditions of Captain James Cook in the eighteenth century to tracks depicted in Moby Dick and popular culture of the nineteenth century to the use of navigational techniques by the British navy She discusses how tracks evolved from tools of surveying into tools of surveillance and eventually into paths of environmental calamity The impulse to record tracks on the ocean is Caputo argues reflective of an ongoing desire for order schematization and personal visibility as well as occupation and permanent ownership in this case over something that is unoccupiable and impossible to truly possess Both beautifully written and deeply researched Tracks on the Ocean shares how the lines drawn on maps tell the audacious and often tragic and violent stories of ocean voyages The Crone Library Hubert J.M.W.
