Out of Our Minds Johannes Fabian, 2000-06-13 Out of Our Minds shows explorers and ethnographers in Africa during colonial expansion were far from rational often meeting their hosts in extraordinary states influenced by opiates alcohol sex fever fatigue and violence

The Lomidine Files Guillaume Lachenal, 2017-10-01 This prize winning study examines the nightmarish effects of the so called wonder drug in preventing sleeping sickness in Africa After the Second World War French colonial health services set out to eradicate sleeping sickness in Africa The newly discovered drug Lomidine also known as Pentamidine promised to protect against infection and mass campaigns of preventive lomidinization were launched across Africa But the drug proved to be both inefficient and dangerous In numerous cases it led to fatality In The Lomidine Files Guillaume Lachenal traces the medicine's trajectory from experimental trials during the Second World War to its abandonment in the late 1950s He explores colonial doctors dangerous obsession with an Africa freed from disease and describes the terrible reactions caused by the drug the resulting panic of colonial authorities and the decades long cover up that followed A fascinating material history that touches on the drug's manufacture and distribution as well as the tragedies that followed in its path The Lomidine Files resurrects a nearly forgotten scandal Ultimately it illuminates public health not only as a showcase of colonial humanism and a tool of control but also as an arena of mediocrity powerlessness and stupidity Winner of the George Rosen Prize by the American Association for the History of Medicine

The French Colonial Mind: Violence, military encounters and colonialism Martin Thomas, 2011-01-01 Violence was prominent in France's conquest of a colonial empire and the use of force was integral to its control and regulation of colonial territories What if anything made such violence distinctly colonial And how did its practitioners justify or explain it These are issues at the heart of The French Colonial Mind: Violence Military Encounters and Colonialism The second of two linked volumes this book brings together prominent scholars of French colonial history to explore the many ways in which brutality and killing became central to the French experience and management of empire Sometimes concealed or denied at other times highly publicized and even celebrated French violence was so widespread that it was in some ways constitutive of colonial identity Yet such violence was also destructive destabilizing for its practitioners and lethal or otherwise devastating for its victims The manifestations of violence in the minds and actions of imperialists are investigated here in essays that move from the conquest of Algeria in the 1830s to the disintegration of France's empire after World War II The authors engage a broad spectrum of topics ranging from the violence of first colonial encounters to conflicts of decolonization Each considers not only the forms and extent of colonial violence but also its dire effects on perpetrators and victims Together their essays provide the clearest picture yet of the workings of violence in French imperialist thought

Decolonial Feminist Research Jeong-eun Rhee, 2020-10-29 Honourable Mention ICQI 2022 Outstanding Qualitative Book Award Honorable Mention AERA Qualitative SIG for 2023 Outstanding Book Award Category In Decolonial Feminist Research Haunting Rememory and Mothers Jeong eun Rhee

embarks on a deeply personal inquiry that is demanded by her dead mother's haunting rememory and pursues what has become her work-life question: What methodologies are available to notice and study a reality that exceeds and defies modern scientific ontology and intelligibility? Rhee is a Korean migrant American educational qualitative researcher who learns anew how to notice, feel, research, and write her mother's rememory across time, geography, languages, and ways of knowing and being. She draws on Toni Morrison's concept of rememory and Theresa Hak Kyung Cha's fragmented multi-self. Using various genres such as poems, dialogues, fictions, and theories, Rhee documents a multi-layered process of conceptualizing researching and writing her mother's transnational rememory as a collective knowledge project of intergenerational decolonial feminists of color. In doing so, the book addresses the following questions: How can researchers write in the name and practice of research what can never be known or narrated with logic and reason? What methodologies can be used to work through and with both personal and collective losses, wounds, and connections that have become our questions? Rhee shows how to feel connectivity and fragmentation as of self, not as binary, but as constitutive through rememory and invites readers to explore possibilities of decolonial feminist research as an affective bridge to imagine rememory and engender healing knowledge. Embodied onto epistemologies of women of color, haunt, and thus demand researchers to contest and cross the boundary of questions, topics, methodologies, and academic disciplinary knowledge that are counted as relevant, appropriate, and legitimate within a dominant western science regime. This book is for qualitative researchers and feminism scholars who are pursuing these kinds of boundary-crossing personal inquiries.

A Training School for Elephants Sophy Roberts, 2025-04-22 An informative, well-researched retracing of a colonial-era African expedition that brings alive the preposterous grab for Africa from the acclaimed author of The Lost Pianos of Siberia. In 1879 King Leopold II of Belgium launched an ambitious plan to plunder Africa's resources. The key to cracking open the continent, or so he thought, was its elephants; if only he could train them. And so he commissioned the charismatic Irish adventurer Frederick Carter to ship four tamed Asian elephants from India to the East African coast, where they were marched inland towards Congo. The ultimate aim was to establish a training school for African elephants. Following in the footsteps of the four elephants, Roberts pieces together the story of this long forgotten expedition in travels that take her to Belgium, Iraq, India, Tanzania, and Congo. The storytelling brings to life a compelling cast of historic characters and modern voices, from ivory dealers to Catholic nuns, set against rich descriptions of the landscapes travelled. She digs deep into historic records to reckon with our broken relationship with animals, revealing an extraordinary and enduring story of colonial greed, ineptitude, hypocrisy, and folly.

Travel Writing and Atrocities Robert Burroughs, 2010-06-24 Looking at travelogues, ethnographic monographs, consular reports, diaries, and letters, sketches, photography, and more, Burroughs examines eyewitness travel reports of atrocities committed in European-funded slave regimes in the Congo Free State, Portuguese West Africa, and the Putumayo district of the Amazon rainforest during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. As Burroughs articulates, as well as bringing home to readers ongoing brutalities eyewitness narratives importantly contributed to debates on humanitarianism trade colonialism and race and racial prejudice in late Victorian and Edwardian Britain Medicine and Empire Pratik Chakrabarti,2013-12-13 The history of modern medicine is inseparable from the history of imperialism Medicine and Empire provides an introduction to this shared history spanning three centuries and covering British French and Spanish imperial histories in Africa Asia and America Exploring the major developments in European medicine from the seventeenth century to the mid twentieth century Pratik Chakrabarti shows that the major developments in European medicine had a colonial counterpart and were closely intertwined with European activities overseas The increasing influence of natural history on medicine The growth of European drug markets The rise of surgeons in status Ideas of race and racism Advancements in sanitation and public health The expansion of the modern quarantine system The emergence of Germ theory and global vaccination campaigns Drawing on recent scholarship and primary texts this book narrates a mutually constitutive history in which medicine was both a tool and a product of imperialism and provides an original accessible insight into the deep historical roots of the problems that plague global health today European Overseas Empire, 1879 - 1999 Matthew G. Stanard,2018-02-19 A Timely Look Back at the Era That Shaped Our World Thousands of years of recorded history show that the main way in which human societies have been organized is as empires Today the evidence of recent European overseas empire s lasting effects is all around us from international frontiers and fusion cuisine to multiplying apologies for colonial misdeeds European Overseas Empire 1879 1999 A Short History explores the major events in this critical period that continue to inform and affect our world today New access to archives and a renewed interest in the most recent era of European overseas empire building and the decolonization that followed have produced a wealth of fascinating information that has recharged perennial debates and shed new light on topics previously considered settled At the same time current events are once again beginning to echo the past bringing historical perspective into the spotlight to guide our actions going forward This book examines our collective past providing new insight and fresh perspectives as it Traces current events to their roots in the European overseas imperialism of the 19th and 20th centuries Challenges the notion of political cultural social and economic exchanges of the era as being primarily Europe outward Examines the complexity and contingency of colonial rule and the range of outcomes for the various territories involved Explores the power dynamics of overseas empires and their legacies that continue to shape the world today Mountains and Megastructures Martin Beattie,Christos Kakalis,Matthew Ozga-Lawn,2020-12-21 This book explores the shared qualities of mountains as naturally formed landscapes and of megastructures as manmade landscapes seeking to unravel how each can be understood as an open system of complex network relationships human natural and artificial By looking at mountains and megastructures in an interchangeable way the book negotiates the fixed boundaries of natural and artificial worlds to suggest a more complex relationship between landscape and architecture It suggests an ecological understanding of the interconnectedness of architecture and landscape and an entangled network of relations Urban colonialist fictional rural and historical landscapes are interwoven into this fabric that also involves discontinuities tensions and conflicts as parts of a system that is never linear but rather fluid and organic as driven by human endeavor

The Wasteland: America's Search for Redemption Mark Romel, 2018-03-07 Imagine the Spirit of America as the Fisher King the Maimed King of the medieval Arthurian romances The King is charged with preserving the Holy Grail American greatness But the King has been wounded in the genitals and rendered impotent The power of the Grail is the only thing that keeps him alive He cannot move He is unable to perform his tasks His kingdom suffers just as he does His impotence stretches across all the land affecting its fertility devastating it and turning it into a barren wasteland The Wounded King reigns over a cursed land America is a Wasteland for its people The rich elite the 1% are the wound that afflicts the nation and curses it Only the plutocrats prosper in America Only they have great and glittering opportunities Everyone else is left to fester and rot The masses are supposed to spend their whole lives fantasizing about success Dream As George Carlin said It's called the American Dream because you have to be asleep to believe it

The African Roots of Marijuana Chris S. Duvall, 2019-05-09 After arriving from South Asia approximately a thousand years ago cannabis quickly spread throughout the African continent European accounts of cannabis in Africa often fictionalized and reliant upon racial stereotypes shaped widespread myths about the plant and were used to depict the continent as a cultural backwater and Africans as predisposed to drug use These myths continue to influence contemporary thinking about cannabis In The African Roots of Marijuana Chris S Duvall corrects common misconceptions while providing an authoritative history of cannabis as it flowed into throughout and out of Africa Duvall shows how preexisting smoking cultures in Africa transformed the plant into a fast acting and easily dosed drug and how it later became linked with global capitalism and the slave trade People often used cannabis to cope with oppressive working conditions under colonialism as a recreational drug and in religious and political movements This expansive look at Africa's importance to the development of human knowledge about marijuana will challenge everything readers thought they knew about one of the world's most ubiquitous plants
