Prison Treatment And Parole Survival An Empirical Assessment:

Prison Treatment and Parole Survival Gene G. Kassebaum, David A. Ward, Daniel M. Wilner, 1971 Prisoners in Prison Societies Ulla Bondeson, 2017-10-19 Prisoners in Prison Societies is a study of criminal career patterns over time demonstrating specifically how and in what ways imprisonment has a positive correlation with later recidivism The book combines original research and a ten year follow up study of Swedish inmates surveying their attitudes on everything from political ideology to prison reform The work is much more than a survey of prisoner attitudes however it also includes official statements and administrative staff assessments at the institutions examined As a result the text avoids the usual special pleading of criminological writings Prisoners in Prison Societies analyzes thirteen correctional institutions ranging from training schools to youth and adult prisons as well as a preventive detention facility These four types cover representative samples of male and female young and old offenders In individual and group interviews conducted with a time interval the author finds that the form of incarceration is less significant in determining prisoner behavior than the fact of incarceration as such Whether one looks at the data across variables or in longitudinal terms the fact of criminalization rather than the goal of rehabilitation creates conditions of permanent incarceration A leitmotif of the book is comparison of penal institutions and policies in the U S and Sweden with an encyclopedic presentation of the sociological and criminological literature From the American tradition Bondeson distinguishes between program research and sanction research Her notion of prisonization as a special form of socialization derives from the work of scholars from Clemmer to Goffman Her work utilizes notions of informal social systems within formal systems especially how the former preempt the latter The interplay of original research at the prison level coupled with a sweeping command of the basic literature makes this book unique Prisoners in Prison Societies Ulla Bondeson, 1989-01-01 Prisoners in Prison Societies is a study of criminal career patterns over time demonstrating specifically how and in what ways imprisonment has a positive correlation with later recidivism The book combines original research and a ten year follow up study of Swedish inmates surveying their attitudes on everything from political ideology to prison reform The work is much more than a survey of prisoner attitudes however it includes official statements and administrative staff assessments at the institutions examined As a result it is many sided and avoids the usual special pleading of criminological writings Among its unique features Prisoners in Prison Societies analyzes thirteen correctional institutions ranging from training schools to youth and adult prisons as well as a preventative detention facility These four types cover representative samples of male and female young and old offenders In individual and group interviews conducted with a time interval the author finds that the from of incarceration is less significant in determining prisoner behavior than the fact of incarceration as such Whether one looks at the data across variables or in longitudinal terms the fact of criminalization rather than the foal of rehabilitation creates conditions of permanent incarceration A leitmotif of the book is comparison of penal institutions and policies in the Unites States and Sweden with and encyclopedic presentation of the sociological and criminological literature From the American tradition Bondeson distinguishes between program research and sanction research Her notion of prisonization as a special form of socialization derives from the work of scholars from Clemmer to Goffman her work utilizes notions of informal social systems within formal systems especially how the former preempt the latter The interplay of hard and original research at the prison level coupled with a sweeping command of the basic literature makes this book unique in contemporary criminology Reform in the Making Ann Chih Lin,2002-06-10 Is it time to give up on rehabilitating criminals Record numbers of Americans are going to prison and most of them will eventually return to society with a high chance of becoming repeat offenders But a decision to abandon rehabilitation programs now would be premature warns Ann Chih Lin who finds that little attention has been given to how these programs are actually implemented and why they tend to fail In Reform in the Making she not only supplies much needed information on the process of program implementation but she also considers its social context the daily realities faced by prison staff and inmates By offering an in depth look at common rehabilitation programs currently in operation education job training and drug treatment and examining how they are used or misused Lin offers a practical approach to understanding their high failure rate and how the situation could be improved Based on extensive observation and over 350 interviews with staff and prisoners in five medium security male prisons the book contrasts successfully implemented programs with subverted abandoned or neglected programs those which staff reject or which do not teach prisoners anything useful Lin explains that staff and prisoners have little patience with programs aimed at long range goals when they must face the ongoing immediate challenge of surviving prison life Finding incentives to make both sides participate fully in rehabilitation is among the book's many contributions to improving prison policy Prison Construction Plans and Policy United States. efforts to control crime and to intervene effectively with offenders This breakthrough book brings together established correctional scholars to imagine what this prison future might entail Each scholar uses his or her expertise to craft in an accessible way for students to read a blueprint for how to create a new penology along a particular theme For example one contributor writes about how to use existing research expertise to create a prison that is therapeutic and another provides insight on how to create a feminist prison In the final chapter the editors pull together the lessons learned in a cohesive comprehensive essay
