Whales are the largest animals on Earth, and they live in every part of the world's oceans. Some whales, like the blue whale, are the largest animals ever known to have lived on Earth. They can grow as long as 100 feet and weigh as much as 300,000 pounds. Other whales, like the humpback whale, are known for their long, winding migrations. Some whales, like the sperm whale, live in the deep ocean, while others, like the minke whale, live in the shallow waters of the Arctic and Antarctic regions. Whales are also known for their intelligence and social behavior. They are highly intelligent animals that can communicate with each other using a variety of sounds, including songs, clicks, and whistles. They also live in social groups called pods, and they are known to help each other in times of need.
