Chitere,Roberta Mutiso,1991-12-29 This book addresses itself to mobilisation and involvement of rural people in development projects It describes an imperfect but nonetheless exciting and thought provoking exercise that drew social science researchers and students from four public universities in Kenya into an experiment in participatory research community education and development in two locations The experiment was grounded on the assumptions that the people of Kenya are a primary resource and that given proper roles and contribution of planners researchers and programme implementers self sustainable development can become a reality The contributors of this book have focused on the potential of the university to facilitate participation of the people in development They have given specific suggestions on how this might be accomplished

Politics, Participation, And Poverty Barbara P. Thomas,Barbara Thomas-Slayter,2019-05-28 Focusing on the distribution of benefits in relation to class ethnicity and gender this book explores the methods to which the rural poor can organize themselves to participate in economic and social development and examines the roles that self help organizations play in the political economy of Kenya Dr Thomas looks at the competition for power Beyond Ujamaa in Tanzania Goran Hyden,2023-11-10 Beyond Ujamaa in Tanzania Underdevelopment and an Uncaptured Peasantry explores the challenges of development and underdevelopment in Africa with a focus on Tanzania s experience during its early socialist years The book critiques the dominant ideologies of development whether capitalist or socialist as being rooted in Western industrial paradigms that often fail to address the realities of pre capitalist African societies It argues that the underdevelopment in Africa is not solely due to excessive penetration by global capitalism but also to capitalism s inability to dismantle the resilient pre capitalist structures in many rural societies The author highlights the role of the Tanzanian peasantry whose economic and social autonomy often resists the centralizing tendencies of modern development presenting them not as mere appendages to the global economy but as key players with their own modes of production and unique societal structures The book is grounded in over a decade of fieldwork and engagement with rural Tanzanian communities enriched by the author s fluency in Swahili and deep involvement in local life It argues for a more nuanced approach to studying African societies one that goes beyond Western assumptions and models By placing the peasant mode of production at the center of analysis the study challenges conventional wisdom and suggests that the primary development challenge in Africa lies not with multinational corporations but with understanding and working within the dynamics of the smallholder peasant economy The author also reflects on the limitations of conventional social science research and calls for greater involvement in the lived realities of the communities studied emphasizing the need for research methods that are sensitive to local contexts and values The book combines academic critique field observations and a focus on the epistemological biases of Western
