Language, Memory, and Cognition in Infancy and Early Childhood Janette B. Benson, Marshall M. Haith, 2010-05-22

Language cognition and memory are traditionally studied together prior to a researcher specializing in any one area They are studied together initially because much of the development of one can affect the development of the others Most books available now either tend to be extremely broad in the areas of all infant development including physical and social development or specialize in cognitive development language acquisition or memory Rarely do you find all three together despite the fact that they all relate to each other This volume consists of focused articles from the authoritative Encyclopedia of Infant and Early Childhood Development and specifically targets the ages 0 3 Providing summary overviews of basic and cutting edge research coverage includes attention assessment bilingualism categorization skills critical periods learning disabilities reasoning speech development etc This collection of articles provides an essential affordable reference for researchers graduate students and clinicians interested in cognitive development language development and memory as well as those developmental psychologists interested in all aspects of development Focused content on age 0 3 saves time searching for and wading through lit on full age range for developmentally relevant info Concise understandable and authoritative easier to comprehend for immediate applicability in research The Centered Mind Peter

Carruthers, 2015-07-23 The Centered Mind offers a new view of the nature and causal determinants of both reflective thinking and more generally the stream of consciousness Peter Carruthers argues that conscious thought is always sensory based relying on the resources of the working memory system This system has been much studied by cognitive scientists It enables sensory images to be sustained and manipulated through attentional signals directed at midlevel sensory areas of the brain When abstract conceptual representations are bound into these images we consciously experience ourselves as making judgments or arriving at decisions Thus one might hear oneself as judging in inner speech that it is time to go home for example However our amodal non sensory propositional attitudes are never actually among the contents of this stream of conscious reflection Our beliefs goals and decisions are only ever active in the background of consciousness working behind the scenes to select the sensory based imagery that occurs in working memory They are never themselves conscious Drawing on extensive knowledge of the scientific literature on working memory and related topics Carruthers builds an argument that challenges the central assumptions of many philosophers In addition to arguing that non sensory propositional attitudes are never conscious he also shows that they are never under direct intentional control Written with his usual clarity and directness The Centered Mind will be essential reading for all philosophers and cognitive scientists interested in the nature
