Losing Generations Adolescents In High Risk Settings:

Losing Generations National Research Council (U.S.). Panel on High-Risk Youth, 1993 This volume breaks new ground by exploring settings in which American youth are expected to mature to responsible adulthood Although no one would argue with the fact that individual initiative is important to life achievement any young person who tries to move forward does so within complex surroundings of family economics education and overall community life This new focus comes none too soon The major settings of adolescent life have become increasingly beleaguered especially in our inner cities among minorities and ethnically separated populations Crime and economic hardship have grown while community institutions have disintegrated Such settings have become the crucible in which the lives of increasing numbers of America's youth are being shaped To focus on settings is to recognize that context has a profound influence on the shape of a young person's entire life as well as the day to day decisions that result in high risk behavior After two decades of focus on individuals this book recognizes that there are roadblocks that even the most energetic youth cannot overcome Fully one quarter of adolescents today may be at risk of failing to achieve productive adulthood If we expect to help them we must take a hard look at the policies that intentionally or unintentionally create the threatening environments in which these young people are growing up This volume illuminates the challenging policy decisions that must be made BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved Losing generations adolescents in high-risk settings, 1993

School Safety DIANE Publishing Company, 1996-06 Provides information about some of the programs used by schools to curb violence Examines four promising prevention programs obtaining teacher and student views in these efforts and reviewed evaluation data on these programs Identifies key characteristics typically associated with promising school based violence prevention programs Identifies federally sponsored evaluations of violence prevention programs currently in operation Indicators of Children's Well-Being Robert M. Hauser, Brett V. Brown, William R. Prosser, 1997-12-04 The search for reliable information on the well being of America's young is vital to designing programs to improve their lives Yet social scientists are concerned that many measurements of children's physical and emotional health are inadequate misleading or outdated leaving policymakers ill informed Indicators of Children's Well-Being is an ambitious inquiry into current efforts to monitor children from the prenatal period through adolescence Working with the most up to date statistical sources experts from multiple disciplines assess how data on physical development education economic security family and neighborhood conditions and social behavior are collected and analyzed what findings they reveal and what improvements are needed to create a more comprehensive and policy relevant system of measurement Today's climate of welfare reform has opened new possibilities for program innovation and experimentation but it has also intensified the need for a clearly defined and wide ranging empirical framework to pinpoint where help is needed and what interventions will succeed Indicators of Children's Well-Being emphasizes the importance of accurate studies that address real problems Essays on children's material well being show why income data must be supplemented with assessments of housing medical care household expenditure food consumption and education Other contributors urge refinements to existing survey instruments such as the Census and the Current Population Survey The usefulness of records from human service agencies child welfare records and juvenile court statistics is also evaluated

Health Assets in a Global Context Antony Morgan, Erio Ziglio, Maggie Davies, 2010-07-15 As global health inequities continue to widen policymakers are redoubling their efforts to address them Yet the effectiveness and quality of these programs vary considerably sometimes resulting in the reverse of expected outcomes While local political issues or cultural conflicts may play a part in these situations an important new book points to a universal factor the prevailing deficit model of assessing health needs which puts disadvantaged communities on the defensive while ignoring their potential strengths The asset model proposed in Health Assets in a Global Context International Health and Development offers a necessary complement to the problem focused framework by assessing multiple levels of health promoting aspects in populations and promoting joint solutions between communities and outside agencies The book provides not only rationales and methodologies e g measuring resilience and similar elusive qualities but also concrete examples of asset based initiatives in use across the world on the individual and community levels

Adolescent Health Services Institute of Medicine, National Research Council, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Adolescent Health Care Services and Models of Care for Treatment, Prevention, and Healthy Development, 2009-01-03 Adolescence is a time of major transition however health care services in the United States today are not designed to help young people develop healthy routines behaviors and relationships that they can carry into their adult lives While most adolescents at this stage of life are thriving many of them have difficulty gaining access to necessary services other engage in risky behaviors that can jeopardize their health during these formative years and also contribute to poor health outcomes in adulthood Missed opportunities for disease prevention and health promotion are two major problematic features of our nation's health services system for adolescents. Recognizing that health care providers play an important role in fostering healthy behaviors among adolescents, Adolescent Health Services examines the health status of adolescents and reviews the separate and uncoordinated programs and services delivered in multiple public and private health care settings. The book provides guidance to administrators in public and private health care agencies, health care workers, guidance counselors, parents, school administrators, and policy makers on investing in strengthening and improving an integrated health system for adolescents.

Understanding People in Context Ellen P. Cook, 2015-01-12. This exceptional book emphasizes uniquely designed interventions for individual counseling, group work, and community counseling that consider clients as individuals within the contexts of families, cultural groups, workplaces, and communities. Part I describes the theoretical research base and major tenets of the ecological perspective and its applications to counseling practice. In Part II, experts who have used the ecological perspective in their work discuss its usefulness in various applications, including counseling diverse clients with specific life challenges, assessment, diagnosis, and treatment planning, and in schools, substance abuse programs, faith-based communities, and counselor training programs. Wasting America's Future Marian Wright Edelman, 1994-10-31. The Health and Human Services poverty line for a three-person family in America is $11,800 in annual income. One in every five American children is growing up in poverty. What does child poverty mean for the economic and societal future of our country? The Children's Defense Fund, widely considered the most powerful force for children in America, has assembled expert and ground-breaking information on how poverty affects health, childhood deaths, low birth weight, and injury; on the insidious connections between low family income and learning disabilities; on links between poverty, abuse, and neglect; and on self-esteem and much more. Wasting America's Future is the crucial citizen's handbook as we continue the national debate on welfare reform.

Values and Attitudes across Nations and Time Masamichi Sasaki, 2021-11-15. Values and Attitudes across Nations and Time contributes to an ever-growing body of work focussing on the elucidation of variations in values and attitudes throughout the world, not only what they actually are but also strategies for their detection, description, and classification. Researchers in the field seek to identify both similarities and differences. In this work, quantitative and qualitative views and methods are explored by nine well-known authors: Masamichi Sasaki, current President of the International Institute of Sociology; Theodore Caplow of the University of Virginia; Mattei Dogan of the National Center of Scientific Research, Paris; S. N. Eisenstadt of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem; Chikio Hayashi of the Institute of Statistical Mathematics, Tokyo; Geert Hofstede of the University of Limburg at Maastricht in The Netherlands; Alex Inkeles of Stanford University; P.
