New Global Order World Regional Geography:

The new global order Michael John Bradshaw, 1998 The theme adopted as the title of this text focuses attention on the essentially geographic nature of the forces at work for change in the world including political economic cultural and environmental concerns and processes It shifts the emphasis from a cataloging of differences between unique parts of the world to a context of interlinked dependencies and explanations that might form a basis for positive and productive action It alerts readers to an expectation of change and encourages personal involvement with a changing and unequal world It also questions the extent to which global forces are able to override local and internal country factors Within the format of regional geographic studies there is a comprehensive coverage of basic geographic concepts and a reflection of current research themes in the subject Pref

World Regional Geography Michael J. Bradshaw, Richard A. Walasek, 1997 New Global Order Michael Bradshaw, 1999-08-01 World Regional Geography in the New Global Order David Bradshaw, 1999-07 This text focuses on the geographic nature of the forces at work for change in the world including political economic cultural and environmental aspects It emphasizes the dynamic nature of geographic regions in a changing world and the interdependence of the regions around the world rather than cataloging their differences It alerts readers to expect continuing change and encourages personal involvement with the changing world The author focuses initial attention on the developmental problems of the poorer countries instead of imposing a Western model of development that is uncritically applied to the rest of the world

Non-Western Theories of International Relations Alexei D. Voskressenski, 2016-12-16 This book addresses the problem of World Regional Studies and its components regional complexes regional subsystems and global regions With an increasingly complex international system and the emergence of new actors it is clear that the conceptual framing within the classical disciplines of IR Political Theory International Political Economy or Comparative Politics can no longer fully explain a number of processes originating from a tighter and intricate nexus between local regional and global dimensions World Regional Studies explains the emergence of new phenomena in international relations and world politics on a regional and predominantly non Western regional level How do non Western societies react to the transformations of the global order Is a non Western democracy possible Should we discuss the possibilities for the appearance of a non Western IR theory or a new framework for analyzing the westernized global development This study based on decade long research and teaching post in World Regional Studies at MGIMO University and Russian University of Humanitarian Studies RGGU seeks to answers these questions

Brazil on the Global Stage Oliver Stuenkel, Matthew M. Taylor, 2015-04-15 In the past generation Brazil has risen to become the seventh largest economy and fourth largest democracy in the world Yet its rise challenges the conventional wisdom that capitalist democracies will necessarily converge to become faithful adherents of a US led global liberal order Indeed Brazil demonstrates that middle powers even those of a deeply democratic bent may differ in their views of what democracy means on the global stage and how international relations should be conducted among sovereign nations This volume explores Brazil's postures on specific aspects of foreign relations including trade foreign and environmental policy humanitarian intervention nuclear proliferation and South South relations among other topics The authors argue from a variety of perspectives that even as Brazil seeks greater integration and recognition it also brings challenges to the status quo that are emblematic of the tensions accompanying the rise to prominence of a number of middlepowers in an increasingly multipolar world system twentieth century maps were indispensable. They were how governments understood, managed and defended their territory and during the two world wars they were produced by the hundreds of millions. Cartographers and journalists predicted the dawning of a map minded age where increasingly state of the art maps would become everyday tools. By the century's end however there had been a decisive shift in mapping practices as the dominant methods of land surveying and print publication were increasingly displaced by electronic navigation systems. In After the Map William Rankin argues that although this shift did not render traditional maps obsolete it did radically change our experience of geographic knowledge from the God's eye view of the map to the embedded subjectivity of GPS. Likewise older concerns with geographic truth and objectivity have been upstaged by a new emphasis on simplicity, reliability and convenience. After the Map shows how this change in geographic perspective is ultimately a transformation of the nature of territory both social and political. The New Politics of Regionalism Ulf Engel, Heidrun Zinecker, Frank Mattheis, Antje Dietze, Thomas Plötze, 2016-10-04. This edited volume approaches regionalism as one potential pattern in a changing global order. Since the end of the Cold War different forms of territorialization have emerged and we are confronted with an increasing number and variety of actors that are establishing regional projects. This volume offers an innovative contribution to the study of this new complexity by exploring constellations of regional actors, spatial scales and imaginations beyond state centred perspectives as well as on multiple, often overlapping levels. The chapters analyse the emergence, trajectories and outcomes of regionalisms from the perspective of the Global South, specifically concentrating on regional projects in Latin America and Africa but also in the Asia Pacific. They attempt to identify the specific conditions and junctures of different forms of region making in their external, global and internal, local, national dimensions. The volume also places special emphasis on interactions, spatial entanglements and comparisons between regionalisms in different parts of the world. By expanding beyond the perspective of North-South transfers, this book seeks to better understand the dynamics and diversity of interregional interactions. This volume will appeal to scholars of global studies international political economy international relations human geography and development studies as well as area studies specialists who focus on Latin America and Africa
