Walled Up to Heaven Aaron Burke, 2018-07-17 As the first comprehensive study of fortification systems and defensive strategies in the Levant during the Middle Bronze Age ca 1900 to 1500 B C E Walled up to Heaven is an indispensable contribution to the study of this period and of early warfare in the ancient Near East Although archaeologists and ancient historians alike have discussed a variety of theories regarding the origin and cultural significance of the construction of earthen ramparts during the Middle Bronze Age only this work addresses these questions in detail In a tour de force Burke traces the diachronic evolution and geographic distribution of the architectural features and settlement strategies connected with the emergence of Middle Bronze Age defenses in the Levant By synthesizing historical and archaeological data from Mesopotamia and Egypt as well as the Levant he reveals the interconnectedness of the Near Eastern world during the first half of the second millennium to an extent not recently considered The result is a detailed employment of cognitive social and dirt archaeology to reconstruct the political social military and cultural implications of the construction of monumental defenses and the development of defensive networks during the period of Amorite hegemony in the Levant

Lawson Younger, Jr., 2003-12-01 The study of Syro Mesopotamian civilization has greatly advanced in the past twenty five years In particular the renewed interest in Eastern or Mesopotamian Syria has radically altered our understanding of not only the ancient Near East but of the Bible as well With Syria east of the Euphrates becoming one of the most active areas of archaeological investigation in the entire Near East the need for a synthesis of this research and its integration with the Hebrew Bible has greatly increased This volume charts the state of our knowledge following a general chronological flow and will appeal not only to scholars of the ancient Near East but also to Biblical specialists interested in the historical and religious backgrounds to the Israelite and Judahite kingdoms that are pervasive in the social fabric of any society and characterizable by a number of features These include the establishment of intermediaries in the relationship between humans and the divine the construction of ceremonial places for worshipping the gods and practicing ritual performances and the creation ritual paraphernalia Investigating the religious dimensions of ancient societies encounters problems in defining such elements especially with regard to societies that lack textual evidences and has tended to lead towards the identification of differentiation between the mental dimension related to religious beliefs and the material one associated with religious practices resulting in a separation between scholars able to investigate and possibly reconstruct ritual practices i e archaeologists and those interested in defining the realm of ancient beliefs i e philologists and religious historians The aim of this collection of papers is to attempt to bridge these two dimensions by breaking down existing boundaries in order to form a more comprehensive vision of religion among ancient Near Eastern societies This approach requires that a higher consideration be given to those elements either artificial buildings objects texts etc or natural landscapes animals trees etc that are created through a materialization of religious beliefs and practices enacted by members of communities These issues are addressed in a series of specific case studies covering a broad chronological framework that from the Pre pottery Neolithic to the Iron Age Cover illustration German Archaeological Institute photo N Becker Tell Arbid I.
