Program Development Handbook For The Holistic Assessment Of Writing:

A Program Development Handbook for the Holistic Assessment of Writing Norbert Elliot, Maximino Plata, Paul F. Zelhart, 1990 This book is a major breakthrough for developers of writing assessment programs who must certify the writing competency of undergraduate students Legislators and accreditation boards across the nation have called for and implemented large scale projects to measure educational outcomes This single source provides comprehensive information on the history underlying concepts and process of conducting a large scale writing assessment program at a specific institution of higher education The handbook opens with an analysis of the rationale for the assessment of writing during the junior year of the undergraduate curriculum The authors then turn to a case study of the success of their own institutional wide assessment program A history is provided of 20th century writing assessment practices as well attention is given to defining levels of literacy After describing an assessment process model discussion turns to the design of questions the administration of the assessment the rating of papers and the statistical analysis of data Attention is also given to the design of a course for those who are unsuccessful on the assessment The study closes with directions for further research and over 200 references in the bibliography

Landmark Essays on ESL Writing Tony Silva, Paul Kei Matsuda, 2013-10-31 In recent years the number of nonnative speakers of English in colleges and universities in North America has increased dramatically As a result more and more writing teachers have found themselves working with these English as a Second Language ESL students in writing classes that are designed primarily with monolingual native English speaking students in mind Since the majority of institutions require these students to enroll in writing courses at all levels it is becoming increasingly important for all writing teachers to be aware of the presence and special linguistic and cultural needs of ESL writers This increase in the ESL population has over the last 40 years been paralleled by a similar growth in research on ESL writing and writing instruction research that writing teachers need to be familiar with in order to work effectively with ESL writers in writing classrooms of all levels and types Until recently however this body of knowledge has not been very accessible to writing teachers and researchers who do not specialize in second language research and instruction This volume is an attempt to remedy this problem by providing a sense of how ESL writing scholarship has evolved over the last four decades It brings together 15 articles that address various issues in second language writing in general and ESL writing in particular In selecting articles for inclusion the editors tried to take a principled approach The articles included in this volume have been chosen from a large database of publications in second language writing The editors looked for works that mirrored the state of the art when they were published and made a conscious effort to represent a wide variety of perspectives contributions and issues in the field To provide a sense of the evolution of the field this collection is arranged in chronological order

Journal of the Association of Legal Writing Directors ,2006 Coming To Terms Patricia Lynne,2004-11-01 In a provocative book length essay Patricia Lynne argues that most programmatic assessment of student writing in U S public and higher education is conceived in the terms of mid 20th century positivism Since composition as a field had found its most compatible home in constructivism she asks why do compositionists import a conceptual frame for assessment that is incompatible with composition theory By casting this as a clash of paradigms Lynne is able to highlight the ways in which each theory can and cannot influence the shape of assessment within composition She laments as do many in composition that the objectively oriented paradigm of educational assessment theory subjugates and discounts the very social constructionist principles that empower composition pedagogy Further Lynne criticizes recent practice for accommodating the big business of educational testing especially for capitulating to the discourse of positivism embedded in terms like validity and reliability These terms and concepts she argues have little theoretical significance within composition studies and their technical and philosophical import are downplayed by composition assessment scholars There is a need Lynne says for terms of assessment that are native to composition To open this needed discussion within the field she analyzes cutting edge assessment efforts including the work of Broad and Haswell and she advances a set of alternate terms for evaluating assessment practices a set of terms grounded in constructivism and composition Coming to Terms is ambitious and principled and it takes a controversial stand on important issues This strong new volume in assessment theory will be of serious interest to assessment specialists and their students to composition theorists and to those now mounting assessments in their own programs
